SUITS TO REGAIN CANAL GRAFT TO FOLLOW TRIAL

Bowler to Act for Taxpayers.

Suits to force restitution of millions of dollars taken from the sanitary district treasury during the whoopee period of 1927-'28 when Timothy J. Crowe was president of the board of trustees, will be instituted as soon as the graft conspiracy trial before Chief Justice Harry Fisher in the Criminal court is finished. This announcement was made yesterday by Thomas J. Bowler, the present president of the district board.

The defense closed its case in the graft trial yesterday without offering any testimony to confute the evidence presented by the prosecution in the last eight weeks. After Judge Fisher had overruled most of the defense motions for striking out the evidence presented by the state, First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup began the closing argument for the prosecution. Crowe and six of his former associates in the sanitary district administration are on trial.

Pay Rollers to Be Sued.

President Bowler said the first suits would be directed at the pay rollers, who testified in the trial concerning the amounts they received while performing no work for the district. Then will come suits against dummy concerns organized during the whoopee period to do business with the district. These will be followed by suits against concerns which overcharged the district for standard materials, concerns which collected twice for the same work, and perhaps against former officials who spent taxpayers' money on unauthorized projects.

President Bowler refused to discuss his contemplated action at this time except to say that the suits would be started, perhaps in his name, as a taxpayer. The law department of the district will be utilized, it is said, to recover the taxpayers' money.

A Move to Clear Democrats.

The action, it was reported in political circles, is designed to take a blot off the record of the Democratic party. Crowe while president of the district was a power in the Democratic party and it is reported that President Bowler and his associates believe it is the duty of the party to reimburse the taxpayers as far as is possible by suits to recover the millions of dollars taken during the Crowe régime.

Members and former members of the legislature will be hardest hit by the suits. The evidence in the trial has shown that the lawmakers dipped deep into the sanitary district treasury apparently in return for having given Crowe and his associates favorable legislation.

The hard workers in the Deneen branch of the Republican party were nearly as numerous on the pay rolls as the Democratic precinct workers. This was because Frank J. Link, the Deneen representative on the board, held the balance of power.

Northup Offers to Help.

Prosecutor Northup said he would be glad to coöperate in such an undertaking as outlined by Mr. Bowler. He offered a recapitulation of the loss to the district as shown by the evidence in the trial as a starting point for the suits. It follows:

Project.	Cost to district.	Reasonable cost.	Excess.
Cinder bridle path	$1,068,861	$292,375	$ 776,486
Concerns selling in lots under $500.	487,668	206,004	281,664
Double pay-m'ts for wk. done under Tully-Costello contract No. 1	24,311	.... ..	24,311
Double pay-m'nts under Tully-Costello contract No. 2	52,747	.....	52,747
Other instances of double chgs.	24,853	.....	24,853
Cent. Auto Co.	20,393	.....	20,393
Pay roll padding	1,055,251	.....	1,055,251
Fake expense accounts	128,851	.....	128,851
Total loss to the district			$2,364,556

Prosecutor Northup said these figures represent a "mere drop in the bucket." He said much more could be proved in civil suits; that the criminal procedure rules are so strict that much evidence of fraud could not be produced in the graft conspiracy trial.

Attorney Albert Fink of defense counsel started the proceedings in the trial yesterday with a legal attack

U.S. Tax Boost Will Not Touch 1931 Incomes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The forthcoming tax bill with its increased rates and new taxes will not be retroactive as to 1931 income.

This was announced today by both the Democratic and Republican members of the house ways and means committee, which has the preparation of the bill now before it.

"The Democratic members of the ways and means committee have just had a conference relative to the tax bill," announced Chairman J. W. Collier [Dem., Miss.]. "Only one question was definitely determined, that being one of policy—that the bill would not be retroactive."

Will Balance U. S. Budget.

The Democrats agree that the budget shall be balanced to maintain the credit of the United States. No rates, details, or subjects for this tax were agreed upon. The Democratic members of the committee will sit around the table with their Republican colleagues to draft the bill, which will be a nonpartisan governmental bill.

The Republican committee members, through Representative Hawley [Rep., Ore.], added their assurance against a retroactive feature and gave their pledge that the bill would be considered from a nonpartisan point of view. Actual preparation is to begin next Monday.

The decision definitely repudiates much of the program for increased revenues as laid down by the treasury. Secretary Mellon recommended making the increased income tax rates retroactive; he recommended lowering the income tax exemptions.

The committee rather will seek to find new revenues through a consumers' tax on electricity, gas, and telephone calls, and perhaps a tax on gasoline and oil.

These Items Are Discussed.

The items most discussed by the committee today were:

A 5 per cent levy on electric energy, collected from the consumer on the basis of his monthly bill.

A 2 to 5 per cent tax on illuminating gas, gathered from the consumer.

A 5 per cent excise on oil, with a possible heavier impost on foreign imports.

An increase of the tax on stock transfers from 2 cents per $100 par value to 3 cents.

An increase in maximum estate taxes from 20 to 40 per cent, all of the increase to accrue to the federal government.

Increase in the surtax maximum to 40 per cent, making the maximum applicable to incomes of possibly $150,000 instead of $500,000 as recommended by the treasury.

Increase in corporation taxes from 12 to 12½ per cent as recommended by the administration.

Enactment of an automobile tax, possibly smaller than the 5 per cent maximum on passenger cars as recommended by the treasury.

The administration, it was indicated, was not going to see its program discarded without a fight.

Chicago Bar Votes in Favor of Dry Repeal

The Chicago Bar association is overwhelmingly in favor of the repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act and of returning the subject of liquor control to the jurisdiction of the states. This was made known yesterday in the results of a poll of the association's membership.

Of the 2,858 members voting, 1,937 favored repeal. Only 296 favored retention of the present act and its enforcement.

Two ballots were mailed to members several days ago after the board of managers had authorized the referendum. The first called for a vote on whether the referendum should be held. The count on this showed 2,416 for the referendum and 442 against it.

Four Propositions on Ballot.

The second ballot was composed of these four propositions:

1. The 18th amendment, the Volstead act, and all orders and regulations for enforcement thereof should be repealed, thereby remitting the subject of prohibition to the sole regulation of the states. The votes for this totaled 1,937.

2. The 18th amendment and the Volstead act substantially in its present form should be retained and efforts at its enforcement should be continued. Those favoring this numbered 296.

3. The 18th amendment should be revised so as to give congress power to regulate or prohibit the manufacture, traffic in and transportation of intoxicating liquors within the United States and territories for beverage purposes. There were 336 lawyers favoring this plan.

Vote on Congress Control.

4. The 18th amendment should be retained in its present form and congress should so amend the Volstead act to permit the legal manufacture, sale, and transportation of beverages which contain more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol, by weight, but which are not intoxicating in fact. The votes for this last proposition were 267.

By declaring against prohibition, the Chicago Bar association followed the lead of its parent organization, the American Bar association, which referendum, however, was restricted to repeal or retention of the 18th amendment. The national group received 20,119 ballots on the question, of which 14,782 favored repeal.

The ballots were mailed to the Chicago lawyers just a week ago. Replies poured in from the first day on.

The polls were declared closed at 4 p. m. and the tabulating began immediately.

The referendum was decided upon by the managers after a petition calling for it had been signed by 550 members. The first request was for a direct vote on the question of repeal. This, it was decided, would limit the test too strictly and the extended form of four propositions was adopted.

COLD SNAP DUE TODAY; CHANCE OF SNOW SEEN

Much colder weather, with some likelihood of snow, is in store for Chicago today, according to the forecast issued last night by C. A. Donnel, principal meteorologist of the weather bureau. Fair and still colder weather is predicted for tomorrow as a result of a wintry wave sweeping down from the northwest.

Subzero temperatures were reported in Alberta, where a snowstorm started yesterday. As the storm area swept into the United States a temperature of 2 below was recorded at Yellowstone Park.

Springlike weather continued in Chicago yesterday, with the mercury hovering near the 50 degree mark, the maximum being 52.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 29 (Friday).—The Chinese still are holding the Woosung fort, which was shelled by the Japanese today. A strong Chinese detachment is fighting to retain control of the Shanghai-Nanking railway station. In Chapei the Japanese have erected circular sandbag barricades, from which they are firing at Chinese snipers. The Japanese marines have established lines along the boundaries of the native town and are searching all Chinese as the refugees mill toward the foreign areas. Japanese stretcher bearers, carrying revolvers in their right hands, are bearing their wounded away.

TOKIO, Jan. 29 (Friday).—If Japanese bluejackets at Shanghai are overpowered by Chinese soldiers the government will send troops from Japan, the foreign office announced today, but it was added that the question still is purely hypothetical. It is understood the war office does not desire to send troops, believing the Shanghai situation should be handled by the navy. If troops are sent the league of nations will be notified in advance.

SHANGHAI, China, Jan. 29 [Friday].—Japanese invaders and Chinese defenders fought bitterly today for the mastery of Shanghai.

Fearing Chinese forces concentrating near Shanghai might overpower the Japanese bluejackets, officials said Japan, as an extreme measure, might consider a bombardment of Chinese quarters from warships in the harbor.

Chinese troops broke through the defense lines around the international settlement, tense with anxiety, and menaced a residential district, but were driven out by British troops.

Fire broke out in the international settlement this afternoon when a badly aimed bomb from a Japanese airplane fell in a street in the northern section. There were no casualties, but considerable damage was done. Shortly afterward another fell in the residential area just outside the settlement, and as a result of it many foreigners were leaving their homes and retiring within the settlement borders.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon Japanese planes continued the bombardment of the Chinese section. One explosive struck the China Merchants' wharf on the French bund several miles from the native distcirt of Chapei.

Planes Whir Above.

Above the battling forces five Japanese planes whirred, dropping deadly bombs on Chapei. Fire tore through the densely populated slums for a while, then died down in rain-washed gloom.

The Japanese occupation, begun at midnight, led to the most menacing situation since the seizure of Mukden by Japanese soldiers last September set the spark to a new conflict between the oriental powers.

In the international settlement, troops of three nations and volunteers stood by for defense. The American consul general, Edwin S. Cunningham,

HIGH POINTS IN FAR EAST BATTLE FRONT

MILITARY ACTION.

AT MANILA—Four United States destroyers are rushed to Shanghai to join American naval forces there.

AT SHANGHAI—Japanese marines invade city and battle Chinese troops. Native district burns and thousands flee into narrow streets as Japanese naval planes drop bombs.

AT HARBIN—Japanese troops notify Russia of plan to take over branch of soviet owned Chinese Eastern railway. Russian rail officials, backed by Moscow government, forbid Japanese use of Russia's Chinese Eastern railway.

AT NANKING — Former President Chiang Kai-shek takes control of government as three Japanese warships anchor off city.

DIPLOMATIC MOVES.

UNITED STATES—Dispatch of additional navy units to China marks stiffening of American policy toward Japan. Economic boycott discussed.

GREAT BRITAIN — Great Britain, through her ambassador, pledges cooperation in protective measures, but fails to say how far protective measures should go.

GENEVA—League of nations fails to take decisive action in Far East crisis.

TOKIO—Japan, before occupation of Shanghai, declares United States is "unduly alarmed."

Yankees Dance in Shanghai as Bombs Burst

BY PEGGY HULL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 29 [Friday].—Japanese naval and marine officers, in charge of the occupation of Shanghai, refused today to permit foreigners or newspaper correspondents to enter the captured areas. They even deny their naval planes bombed the city.

In company with other Americans I stood on the roof of the tallest building in the international settlement for three hours watching the planes drop their bombs. With the others I saw the resultant flames destroy hundreds of tenement homes in Chapei, where dwell close to 1,000,000 Chinese laborers. The tenements crumbled like pie crusts and the ruins burst into flame as the terrified Chinese fled into the narrow streets, running in packs like bewildered animals. Thousands huddled in the débris. It was a frightful scene of human misery.

Refugees Storm Gates.

The foreign settlement's borders were closed yesterday afternoon, but thousands of refugees were admitted. This morning thousands stormed the gates begging entrance. The streets of the settlement are now teeming with homeless Chinese.

The first clash between the Chinese and the Japanese marine occurred after midnight while Americans, Britishers, and other foreigners safe in the international settlement were dining and dancing in night clubs and hotels. They made merry while soldiers of their country kept guard at the barbed wire fences surrounding the settlements.

The foreigners have shown no fear of the Japanese troops, who appear to be orderly and well disciplined. They appeared to enjoy the fighting and the excitement and the soldiers exhibited their military skill like children with new toys. As this is being written, the Japanese planes continue their ominous patrol overhead.

Chinese Resistance Weak.

The Chinese resistance to the invasion was pathetically inadequate, and foreigners here bitterly resent what they term "a ruthless and unnecessary show of force."

The casualties have not been determined. It is impossible to estimate the property damage but the number of buildings in shambles is enormous. Since they were densely inhabited it is believed that hundreds, if not thousands of civilians may have been injured.

American patrols saw a few wounded Japanese soldiers but no sign of any Chinese troops dead or alive since the fighting began.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Four new American warships have been dispatched to the Shanghai trouble zone from Manila, the navy department announced tonight. They left shortly after 7 p. m., eastern standard time, and are expected to arrive at the mouth of the Yangtze river by not later than Saturday.

Orders strengthening American naval defenses in the vicinity of Shanghai, where Japanese and Chinese clashed today, were issued by Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, commanding officer of the Asiatic fleet, following the receipt of instructions from Washington. The four destroyers were requested by Rear Admiral Y. S. Williams, commanding officer of the Yangtze patrol, made up largely of gunboats.

Use Destroyers on Yangtze River.

Tense conditions along the Yangtze river between Shanghai and Nanking following the Japanese attack today prompted the rear admiral to ask for assistance in protecting the lives and property of Americans in that area. The destroyers are to be used along the Yangtze river, but will, of course, be available for use at Shanghai if necessary.

The hastening of additional warships to Shanghai disclosed a marked stiffening of American policy toward Japanese encroachments in China. Whether it will be followed by the use of stronger naval pressure or an economic boycott were questions that probably will not be answered pending further developments.

Plan to Subdue China?

The warships were sent in the belief that Japan plans to extend her occupation of Shanghai up the river to Nanking and Hankow. Japanese occupation of Chefoo, Peiping, and other cities in pursuance of the determination to bring China to her knees and end the boycott of Japanese goods would come as no surprise to official Washington.

"Commander of the Yangtze patrol [Rear Admiral Y. S. Williams]," Admiral Taylor notified the department, "has requested additional destroyers along the Yangtze. In accordance with request am sending four destroyers to Yangtze ports."

The destroyers sent on the mission are the Parrott, Edsall, Paul Jones, and Bulmer, with a total complement of 425 men.

Commanders of Ships.

The Parrott is commanded by Lieutenant Commander Otto M. Forster, St. Louis, Mo.; the Bulmer by Lieutenant Commander Lawrence P. Bischoff, New Auburn, Wis.; the Edsall by Lieutenant Commander Byron S. Dague, Danville, Ill., and the Paul Jones by Lieutenant Commander Norman Scott, Kirkwood, Mo.

In expectation that a call for their services would be made, President Hoover had directed that preliminary orders be sent today to Admiral Taylor to prepare for the movement of naval vessels to China.

Admiral Williams has six river gunboats in his command, but destroyers can navigate the river even above Hankow. At Shanghai are the destroyers Truxton and Borie. Admiral Williams forwarded also a communication from the Truxton, sent just before the Japanese attacked Shanghai. This read as follows:

"U. S. S. Truxton states that China has unconditionally accepted all terms of Japanese ultimatum. Japanese have replied this satisfactory if conditions are complied with to the letter."

Japan Sends Ships to Chefoo.

The request of Admiral Williams for reinforcements coincides with view held here today that the Japanese occupation of Shanghai was but a step in a far flung program which assumed even deeper significance when it was learned that some of Japan's naval vessels had gone to Chefoo. Similar measures were adopted some weeks ago at Foochow, and the Japanese garrison at Tientsin was strengthened at about the same time.

Whether by coincidence or design, the decision to send destroyers from Manila to the Yangtze, which is purely precautionary in character, was taken after Great Britain had agreed to coöperate with the United States in measures for the protection of their respective nationals in the zone of hostilities.

That Great Britain would coöperate in protective measures was communicated by Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, to the secretary of state today. Just how far the two powers would go in protecting their nationals or in following a unified program in the Shanghai situation will be determined by further exchanges of views. Thus the fate of President Hoover's undertaking to save China from Japan still is hanging in the balance.

No Definite Word Received.

No definite reply had been received tonight from London to the suggestion that England join the United States in application of economic embargoes and boycotts to trade with Japan, or both, which Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson made to Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador. The British government still has the proposition under advisement, according to the latest information from London.

The only light thrown on the situation in London was the remark of a British government official that the MacDonald ministry would not give serious consideration to boycotts and embargoes aimed at Japan. The impression here is that Great Britain is not likely to agree to anything beyond the dispatch of cruisers and destroyers for the protection of the international settlement in Shanghai.

U. S. Best Customer of Japan.

The Hoover administration's conception of feasible economic pressure on Japan is understood to be a boycott of Japanese goods by American and British consumers. The United States is the best customer of Japan, taking 45 per cent of her exports and supply 30 per cent of her imports. In 1930 Japanese exports to the United States were valued at $279,113,055 and imports from the United States at $164,658,158.

Silk constitutes 80 per cent of Japanese exports to the United States and 40 per cent of this silk trade is financed in this country. A spontaneous boycott of Japanese silk by Americans and a hint from the administration to the banks to cease financing the Japanese silk trade would be a solar plexus blow to Japanese commerce, according to the official view here.

It transpired during the day that the President's displeasure at the course Japan is pursuing at Shanghai was communicated to the Tokio government yesterday in the form of an inquiry by Secretary Stimson as to Japan's intentions. Mr. Stimson confirmed the dispatch of the inquiry, but declined to make the text public. The language employed is said to be forceful and to constitute a thinly veiled warning of the consequences of any further occupation of China by Japan.

Tokio Sends Reassuring Reply?

While press dispatches from Tokio quoted a foreign office spokesman as saying that the Japanese government was sending a reassuring response, it was said at the state department tonight that the reply had not arrived.

Mr. Hoover is proceeding on the theory that Japan is violating international law if she lands troops on Chinese soil for any purpose but the protection of Japanese nationals and their property. The Japanese in Shanghai live in the international settlement, which possesses a government of its own, headed chiefly by British and Americans, and is defended chiefly by British and American marines.

If the police of the international settlement were unable to protect Japanese and their property from attacks by Chinese, Japan would be fully warranted by international law in landing troops, according to the Hoover view.

Japanese Protected by Police.

The facts seem to be, however, that the Japanese in the international settlement are enjoying full police protection and that the Japanese naval commander, so far from landing troops in the international settlement, where the Japanese reside, has landed them in the Chapel quarter, outside of the international settlement, where only Chinese live. Apparently the purpose is not the protection of Japanese, but the intimidation of the Chinese into calling off the boycott on Japanese goods.

If, therefore, Mr. Hoover becomes satisfied that the Japanese have proceeded in contravention of international law, it is not doubted that he will renew his protests to Japan. The Shanghai incident is more or less a repetition of the Chinchow incident. Mr. Stimson repeatedly warned Japan not to occupy Chinchow, the last remaining foothold of the Chinese in Manchuria. The Japanese returned mollifying and reassuring replies, and then proceeded to occupy Chinchow. Thereupon Mr. Stimson sent Japan a stiff protest, in which, contrary to his expectations, Great Britain and other powers failed to join.

Tests Rapidan Agreement.

The apparent reluctance of the MacDonald government to back up Mr. Hoover in his Asiatic policy is the subject of much comment in official quarters. The refusal of London to file a parallel protest against Japanese occupation of Manchuria and the caution now being observed regarding joint action with the United States in the Shanghai affair suggest a certain impairment of the much vaunted Anglo-American entente negotiated by Messrs. Hoover and MacDonald on the Rapidan in October, 1929. According to their joint announcement the British and American governments henceforth were to stand shoulder to shoulder for preservation of peace by means of the Kellogg anti-war pact.

From a British source comes the explanation that the present British government has cooled considerably toward the Hoover-MacDonald entente since the Tories got into the saddle. The Tories are none too friendly to America, particularly, because of our unwillingness to cancel the British war debts to the United States.

The hint is thrown out from this source that America can regain that degree of British coöperation envisaged by the Hoover-MacDonald entente only by canceling or greatly reducing the war debt. The British hostility is said to be directed more at congress than at Mr. Hoover, who has proposed reopening the war debt settlements, chiefly for the purpose of relieving the British burden of war debt payments to America.

Opinion Divided in Congress.

In congress there is considerable diversity of opinion on the Asiatic situation. There are a good many senators and congressmen who feel that Japan merely is protecting her national interests in China and Manchuria by armed force, as the United States has done so frequently in the Caribbean and with such intolerance of interference therewith as to have compelled Mr. Wilson to exempt from the league of nations jurisdiction disputes growing out of the Monroe Doctrine on which our interventions have been based.

Others condemn Japan unsparingly. Representative J. Charles Linthicum [Dem., Md.], chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs, said today that the "Japanese have not been fair with the United States," but added:

"I trust our diplomats may be able to work out this matter and prevent war. I shall be happy when we confine more time to our relations with the nations of Central and South America. If we would but expend our money and time in creating friendships and business and coöperation in our own hemisphere and spend less time with those nations of Europe and Asia we would be a happier people."

Senator Clarence C. Dill [Dem., Wash.] introduced a bill to prohibit shipment of arms and other war munitions to Japan and China. Explaining his step to the senate, he said:

"Mr. President, the war between Japan and China grows increasingly alarming to the peace loving people of the world. While up to this time there have been no considerable shipments of munitions to the orient as the result of the fighting and killing there, should the carnage increase these countries necessarily must import great quantities of munitions or at least certain commodities for making munitions. I have introduced the joint resolution and I desire it shall be acted upon by the congress in order that this government shall thereby declare to the world now that we shall refuse to furnish fuel for the flames.

"Under the existing law the state department cannot stop the shipment of munitions to Japan or to the government of China. The passage of the joint resolution which I have introduced will not only give it such authority, but it will make such shipments unlawful. In the light of the report from Shanghai this morning there are other considerations which make the passage of the joint resolution even more imperative."

LONDON URGES CAUTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Great Britain's reply to America's request for coöperation in a naval demonstration against the Japanese action at Shanghai was dispatched to Washington today.

While the foreign office refused to disclose the terms, it can be stated that it is an appeal to America to exhaust first all pacific means of securing assurances from Japan that the open door will not be closed in China and that Chinese sovereignty and territorial integrity will not be attacked.

It is believed here that Japan is quite willing to give the desired assurances and that anything like a warlike action is unnecessary. British diplomats are puzzled by the pressure from America in favor of drastic action.

MANY U. S. SHIPS ARE STATIONED IN CHINA ZONE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Distribution of the Asiatic fleet according to latest available information is as follows:

Cruiser Houston, Destroyers Thompson, Edwards, Whipple, MacLeish, Buchanan, McCormick, Pope, Peary, Pillsbury, and Ford are at Manila. Twelve submarines of the S class, two mine sweepers, the Finch and Bittern, and one airplane tender, the Jason, with 12 planes, also are at Manila.

The destroyers Truxton and Borie are at Shanghai.

The destroyers Paul Jones, Edsall, Parrott, and Bulmer are en route from Manila to Shanghai.

The destroyer Tracy is at Swatow, 450 miles south of Shanghai. The destroyer Sampson is at Nanking, 125 miles up the Yangtze river from Shanghai. The destroyer Stewart is at Pagoda anchorage, 400 miles south of Shanghai.

The gunboats of the Yangtze patrol with latest reported position are as follows:

Tulsa, at Hsin-ho, 600 miles north of Shanghai; Luzon, at Kiukiang, 400 miles up the Yangtze; Tutuila at Shashi, 1,000 miles up the river; Panay, at Mowangtsue, 500 miles up the river; Oahu, at Hankow, 600 miles up the river; Guam, at Chungking, 1,500 miles up the river; Monocacy, at Ichang, 1,000 miles up the river; Mindanao, at Canton, 700 miles south of Shanghai, and Helena, also at Canton.

RUSSIA REFUSES JAPANESE USE OF SOVIET RAILWAY

Informs Tokio She Must Remain Neutral.

TOKIO, Jan. 29 (Friday).—(AP)—Soviet Russia today refused to let the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria transport Japanese troops to Harbin, where fighting is going on between Chinese factions.

Vice Chairman Kuznetzoff of the railway, which is jointly owned by China and Russia, denied the Japanese troops transportation, an official report said, under instructions from Moscow to observe neutrality.

Japanese Consul General Ohashi at Harbin notified the foreign office that the soviet official had told him that since the soviet government had denied use of the railway to the Chinese during the fighting in the Nonni river zone last autumn, it must decline to accommodate the Japanese.

Cites Japan's Protest.

Foreign Commissar Litvinov of Russia asserted the neutrality of the Chinese Eastern railway on Nov. 11. Vice Chairman Kuznetzoff recalled that Japan had protested to the soviet government against the railway carrying Chinese troops during the Nonni river trouble.

The Japanese consul pointed out that Japanese troops were needed in Harbin because of extreme danger from 10,000 marauding Chinese, and contended that the transportation of troops was essential for the security of Japanese interests.

The soviet official asked if it was not the Japanese intention to take possession of the Harbin-Changchun branch of the railway. Consul Ohashi replied that Japan had no such intention.

Fire at Japanese Consul.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Jan. 29.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Japanese troops were expected in Harbin today as rioting among disorganized Chinese troops became widespread.

Japanese apprehension was increased last night when several Chinese sped past the residence of the consul general in an automobile and spattered the building with machine gun bullets. They killed one Chinese policeman and wounded several other men of the guard.

The Rengo News Agency correspondent reported that the machine gunners were Chinese soldiers affiliated with Ting Chao, whose troops have been fighting for several days with the forces of Hsi Hsia, governor of Kirin province.

The residence of the Japanese consul general is close to the American consulate, which also is under a heavy guard of Chinese police.

JAPAN'S DRIVE BEGAN SEPT. 18 IN MANCHURIA

Destruction of Railway Bridge Blamed.

Hostilities between Japan and China—as yet not officially termed war—began on the night of Sept. 18 when Japanese troops, after several hours of bombardment, occupied Mukden, capital of Manchuria. The city's capture was necessitated according to the Japanese by the blasting that night of a South Manchuria railway bridge at Peitaying, Mukden suburb, by Chinese troops. The South Manchuria railway is owned and operated under special treaties by Japan.

Headquarters of the Japanese army in the Kwantung leased territory [also controlled by Japan by treaty] were transferred at once to Mukden from Dairen. Simultaneously all other towns and cities along the 700 miles of the South Manchuria railway from Changchun to Newchwang, were occupied practically without Chinese resistance.

Japanese Control Spreads.

Then came the gradual encroachment of Japanese troops upon Manchuria and the seizure of the province's economic control.

A few days after Mukden was taken, came the seizure of Kirin, capital of Kirin province, along with the Changchun-Kirin railway. By the end of the month a "peace" committee was established at Mukden to maintain order under Japanese control.

On Sept. 25 Japan issued the first of several statements denying that she had territorial ambitions in Manchuria. She justified her occupation by insisting that China "trampled upon her treaty rights" and that military action was necessary to protect the lives and rights of Japanese nationals.

Early in October after having been driven out of Mukden the former Chinese government of Manchuria, headed by Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, was established at Chinchow, in the extreme south, north of the great wall.

China Goes to League.

In October also began futile efforts by the league of nations to bring peace in the far east. China begged the league to act. Japan flouted its actions and increased her forces in Manchuria to guard against bandits.

The second major Japanese "offensive" took place just after the expiration date, Nov. 16, of the league's admonition to Japan to withdraw into her own railway zone. This offensive was the advance on Tsitsihar, capital of Heilungkiang province, Manchuria, it followed the battle near the Nonni river, south of Tsitsihar, the bloodiest of the campaign.

The Japanese troops, by taking Tsitsihar on Nov. 19, had occupied all three of Manchuria's provincial capitals, Mukden and Kirinz being the other two. The only important cities not held were Harbin, Hailar, Manchuli, Taheiho, and Chinchow.

By that date, too, Japan had acquired control of all railways except the Chinese Eastern, controlled by Russia, and a small part of the Peiping-Mukden road.

Drive Toward South.

The third phase of the Manchurian occupation, after a false start just before Christmas, began with a drive toward Chinchow on Dec. 28. Two days later the Chinese army was evacuating and on Jan. 2 the Japanese had driven the last remnants of regular Chinese troops and the last semblance of Chinese government from Manchuria.

Japan's army thus controlled a territory equal in area to the United States east of the Mississippi and containing a population of about 30,000,000. The Japanese population is approximately 200,000.

Change in Government.

Meantime a change had taken place in the Japanese government at Tokio. The seiyukai party had ousted the minseito party from control. But the policy toward Manchuria was maintained and, if anything, strengthened. However, Japan still insisted her purpose was merely to maintain order and protect her rights.

The new premier, Tsuyoshi Inukai, said on Dec. 28:

"Japan would not take Manchuria as a gift. If Manchuria were our territory today, we would give it to China and ask nothing in return. We could not afford the expense of maintaining a frontier guard and it would cost too much, moreover, to establish a formal administration."

Japan's Economic Program.

Nevertheless, despite her affirmation of an open door policy, Japan's economic invasion has kept pace with her military invasion in Manchuria. Early in December the Japanese general staff announced a program to construct roads linking north and south Manchuria, the establishment of air lines, development of electrical enterprises, and new railways.

A "standing commission," it was announced, has been formed to unify diplomatic, administrative and economic policies in Manchuria and Mongolia, to the west.

What Japan Controls.

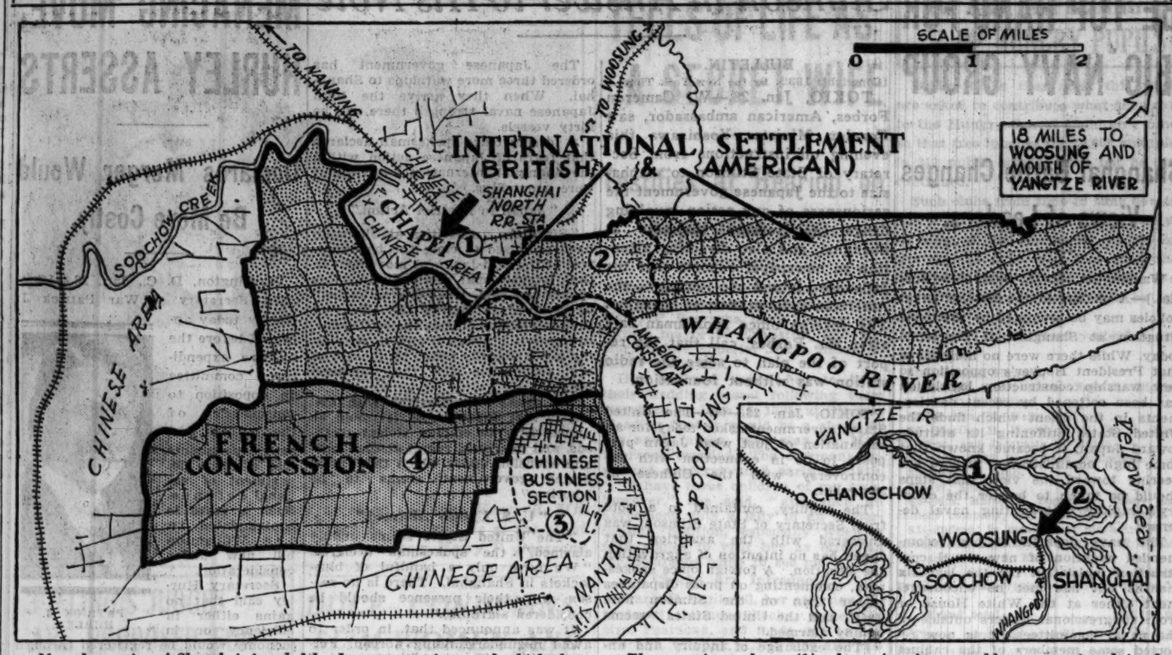
Already the Japanese control the following institutions and departments: Mukden municipal office; Fengtien municipal police department; Fengtien bureau of finance; Fengtien bureau of industries; Fengtien bureau of telegraphs; Mukden telegraph office; Chinese postoffice at Mukden; bank of the three eastern provinces; Li-Da & Co., controlling the export of soy beans, wheat, etc.; Mukden cotton mill; Fu-Chou-wan Coal company; Pen Chi-hu coal mine; Mukden Electric Light company; Newchwang Salt Gabelle office; public utilities in Mukden; and all railroads with the exception of the Russian controlled Chinese Eastern railway in northern Manchuria.

Although Manchuria is—or was—a part of China, it was high ly independent of the central government. Japan has never been conceded a protectorate over Manchuria because of the prevention of foreign powers, but she has claimed a highly preferred legal position because of her control of the South Manchuria railway and the Kwantung leased territory.

Tense relations between Chinese and Japanese at Shanghai flared into violence recently. Chinese attacked and fatally injured several Japanese monks. This was coupled with increasing application of the boycott of Japanese goods at Shanghai.

The Japanese issued an ultimatum demanding that the mayor of Shanghai apologize to Japan, redress all injured persons, and abolish the Chinese boycott associations. Before the ultimatum expired yesterday the Chinese mayor announced all demands would be complied with. The attack on Shanghai followed.

JAPANESE AND CHINESE FIGHT FOR MASTERY OF SHANGHAI



Map shows city of Shanghai, invaded by Japanese marines, and which they are struggling to hold. District No. 1 is the Chapei native section, where bitter fighting is now going on. District No. 2 is the international settlement, which is being guarded by American and British troops. District No. 3 is the Chinese business section, which has also been seized by the Japanese. The French concession is District No. 4.

The map inset shows (1) where American warships are stationed in the Yangtze river and (2) the Woosung fort, 18 miles from Shanghai, which commands the Whangpoo river where it flows into the China sea. The fort was shelled by Japanese warships. Later a Japanese detachment landed there. The four United States destroyers ordered from Manila are headed for the mouth of the Yangtze river.

MUSTN'T INVADE; IT'S ALL WRONG: LEAGUE TO TOKIO

China Demands Action, Not Mere Words.

BULLETIN.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Chinese delegation to the league of nations decided today to invoke articles 10 and 15 of the league covenant, which require the league to take drastic action to preserve the territorial integrity of China against military aggression.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Jan. 28.—Twelve members of the council of the league of nations met in secret session today and adopted a declaration on Japan's stand in Manchuria while the Japanese were taking Shanghai. The document was adopted at a meeting not attended by the Japanese and Chinese delegates.

The declaration turned out to be a docile document in which the twelve did not parallel Secretary of State Stimson's note to Japan as some members of the council wanted them to, but simply averred that certain kinds of international behavior could not be approved by the league. They took their stand upon famous articles of the league's convenant.

The American secretary of state in his note had flatly announced that he would not recognize any treaties signed between China and Japan imposed by Japan's military invasion.

"China Wants Action—Not Words."

Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese delegate, had previously told the council members that what China now wanted from the league was action—not words.

The councilmen did not show their declaration to Dr. Yen. They did tell him that they assumed that he would accept it tomorrow, when it will be made public by Chairman Joseph Paul-Boncour of France without questioning it. Dr. Yen indicated that he would say something and that his instructions from Nanking are in default of action by the league to invoke Articles XV. and XVI.

Dr. Yen tonight intimated that in invoking Article XIV. China might avail herself of the right of airing grievances before the league assembly, which he said could easily be constructed from the delegations to the disarmament conference.

"When twelve or fourteen men cannot reach a decision it is not likely that fifty or sixty could, but nevertheless it might be to China's interest to have her plight brought before and discussed by as many people as possible," Dr. Yen said.

Driven to Last Ditch.

"We have been mild, polite, and docile thus far. We have been driven to the last ditch. We can be driven no further. Instead of attempting to solve the difficulties, Japan has tied one knot after another. There has been no question of withdrawing to their zone, not even of withdrawal from one post.

"They have done nothing to enable us to calm Chinese public opinion so as to loosen the trade boycott. The league must do something immediately to stop Japan from continually making trouble. Inhabitants of Chinese cities are continually handicapped. There seems to be no end. China wants action."

PERFUME BOTTLE ON A BEDPOST CAUSED THIS FIRE

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 28.—The sun's rays, shining through a perfume bottle placed on a bed post in a girls' school here by a student this morning, set fire to the bed.

St. Ann's Academy on the Hill was the scene of the blaze. Sisters in the school discovered the fire on the fifth floor of the dormitory. An alarm was sounded and damage was limited to $50.

"What kind of perfume was it?" the fire chief was asked.

"Hot stuff," he replied, with a chortle beneath his iron hat.

NANKING PICKS NEW CABINET LEADER AND FOREIGN MINISTER

NANKING, China [Friday], Jan.—(AP)—Just before Nanking learned today of the Japanese occupation of Shanghai, a new governmental lineup was announced.

Wang Chen-wei, a follower of former President Chiang Kai-shek, was made president of the executive yuan [a post corresponding to premier] in succession to Sun Fo, who resigned the other day. Lo Wen-kan became foreign minister, succeeding Eugene Chen, who had advocated a strong policy against Japan.

New instructions were cabled to Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese ambassador to the United States, who is representing the government at the league of nations council meeting in Paris.

Japanese Warships Menace Nanking, Capital of China

BULLETIN

NANKING, Jan. 29 (Friday).—(Special.)—All Japanese residents were evacuated today from Nanking. The Japanese consul general and his staff remained on board the cruiser Hirado in the river.

NANKING, China, [Friday], Jan. 29.—[Special.]—Three Japanese cruisers lay off the waterfront today, carrying the threat of Japanese action against China's national capital.

The Japanese consul general ordered all Japanese residents to evacuate the city. They were concentrated on the riverfront under protection of the guns of the cruisers, whose marines will guard them. The consulate general's staff also was evacuating to the waterfront.

Chiang Kai-shek, deposed head of the government, appeared to be returning to leadership in the rôle of dictator.

Chiang Takes Command.

Faced with the dissolution of the Cantonese régime and the occupation of Shanghai by Japan, Chiang rallied the strongest of his allies in an emergency meeting and prepared to mobilize Chinese military strength while awaiting action by the league of nations.

A message signed by Chiang, Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang and Wang Ching-wei was sent to Chang Hsueh-liang, ousted Manchurian ruler, at Peiping, urging him to hurry to Nanking to aid in the government program.

The government also sent instructions to W. W. Yen, its delegate at Geneva, to invoke article 10 of the league of nation's covenant, if he is unable to persuade the league to take drastic action under article 13.

What Articles Provide.

The articles provide for the league members to act against Japanese aggression. Yen previously had reported that he was facing difficulty in efforts to invoke articles 15 and 16, which would provide for the most drastic economic or even military action against Japan if the council approved.

Wellington Koo, China's oustanding diplomat, is reported preparing to proceed to Geneva.

Meanwhile, the government received urgent messages reporting that the southern communist armies in Hupeh, commanded by the notorious Ho-lung, are advancing on western Anhwei province. Yingshan, Koshan, Liuan, and three other districts are threatened with capture. The communist armies recently have extended their control over vast areas in the southern interior provinces.

BLAME FOR SHANGHAI BATTLE IS LAID ON CHINESE BY JAPANESE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 29.—An official report from Admiral Shiosawa, Japanese naval commander at Shanghai, today charged that responsibility for the opening of hostilities in Shanghai rested solely with the Chinese. Admiral Shiosawa declared Japanese marines who had been assigned to guard the borders of the foreign settlement were fired on by Chinese as they took up their posts and that it was necessary for the Japanese to return the fire. He charged the Chinese used dumdum bullets.

Official Japanese reports put the Japanese casualties at ninety, including an officer and six marines killed. The reports said the Chinese casualties numbered hundreds. Bodies of Chinese dead were lying everywhere around North station, it was said.

Other Japanese reports said the Odeon theater, in North Schechuan road, had been set afire and that the flames were spreading rapidly. Several hundred houses were reported destroyed and no efforts were being made to fight the flames.

RAYMOND WILL BE UNABLE TO HELP FIGHT WAR

The Chinese will have to run their war without one 17 year old American colonel. Raymond Scanlon Jr., who was sure that a bright American youth could win his eagles in a month in the Chinese army, is going back to Detroit instead to reckon with Papa Scanlon.

"I guess I'll sit down," he told detectives who found him at the main postoffice, "because when Dad sees me I won't want to sit for a long time."

On Monday his mother gave him $20 to pay bills. Instead he bought airplane passage to Chicago. He was detained at the postoffice when he went there to get the package of clothes which he had wired his mother to send him, preparatory to resuming his trip to China.

Realty Dealer Shot During Quarrel Over Commission

Glenn Gans, real estate agent at 1025 East 79th street, was called from his office last night to talk to a man sitting in an automobile at the curb. The caller was William Skinner, 45 years old, 7146 Cornell avenue, and his wife was seated beside him. Skinner demanded money which he claimed was due him as a commission on a sale of real estate and Gans told him there had been no sale and there was no money due him. Enraged, Skinner drew a pistol and fired at Gans, striking him in the right arm. The bullet passed in front of Mrs. Skinner. Skinner was arrested by the Burnside police.

Fire Captain Is Arrested While Flourishing Knife

Fire Captain Paul Connors was arrested last evening while, police said, he was running about brandishing a large knife in his home at 8629 South Park avenue.

GAS BAG RIPPED DURING CRUISE OF LOS ANGELES

Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—While returning from a cruise over Virginia and Washington one of the largest gas bags of the thirteen in the dirigible Los Angeles ripped wide open near the bottom, it was revealed here today.

Lieut. George C. Calnan of the construction corps of the navy who was standing close by the rip caught a blast of the gas in his face and fell from the girder on which he was standing unconscious. Other men nearby saw him fall and ran to his aid. They carried him to the control car where he recovered immediately.

The ship lost about 3,000 pounds lift and a corresponding amount of ballast was dropped. The cruise was completed without further incident.

About 30 per cent of the helium in the damaged bag, which ordinarily contains close to 600,000 cubic feet, escaped, Commander A. H. Dresel said. Enough water ballast was dropped to compensate the loss and the ship proceeded on its way.

JAPANESE TAKE SHANGHAI; MANY SLAIN IN BATTLE

Chinese Recapture Station.

He said Japanese Consul General Murai had assured the foreign consuls that the Japanese did not plan to use force, at least until after today. Wu Teh-chen, Chinese mayor, protested to Consul General Murai that the resort to force was "unwarranted and illegal," inasmuch as the Chinese had made acceptable replies to demands for an end to anti-Japanese activities.

The battle alternated. The Chinese, forced from the important Nanking railway station [also known as the north station] soon after Japanese marines occupied the city at midnight, recaptured it eight hours later as its Nipponese defenders were diminished by calls for reinforcements to other sections of the native city.

Shortly afterward the Chinese military headquarters fell to the Japanese marines.

Extend Their Invasion.

The Japanese early in the day extended their way across the Whangpoo river to Pootung, where Japanese cotton mills were declared to be in danger, and there was every indication they would continue to advance into Chinese territory.

A formidable fleet of twenty-four Japanese warships lay in the harbor itself, ready for action, while others were anchored within striking distance.

(According to advices reaching the navy department at Washington the Japanese naval force at Shanghai numbers 39 vessels.)

It was almost impossible to determine the situation in Chapei, for all communications between the international settlement and the native quarter had been cut save for the Japanese telephone lines that communications detachments laid down immediately behind their advancing troops. Fires smouldered, but almost continuously the rattle of machine guns could be heard.

Fight Near Foreign Area.

The bitterest fighting of the occupation, which was carried on with the same machine-like precision displayed by the Japanese when they pushed their Chinese enemies out of the cities of Manchuria, took place at the very edge of the international settlement.

The civilian male population of the foreign city was mobilized, armed with rifles, and put on guard in the business district.

Several hours after the first wave of the Japanese advance moved through the tiny streets of the native city Chinese reinforcements were rushed up for a counter attack of major proportions.

Two armored trains brought these reinforcements and they were deployed and hurriedly put into action in an effort to stem the Japanese advance.

It was then that the Japanese airplanes were brought into play. The planes flew high, but the roar of their motors was deafening to observers in the international settlement. Among the aircraft were three from the carrier Notoro.

The bombing activity was brief. But after a pause of a little more than an hour it was resumed again at the first trace of the foggy, rainy dawn. In the interim planes had circled over Chapei, dropping flares.

Rain Hinders Visibility.

A drizzle of rain made visibility low, but the glare of burning Chapei was plain enough.

The explanation of the air activity was reported to be unexpected reverses suffered by the Japanese. Reinforcements were ordered into the district by the Japanese command.

Just before the planes went out the second time to drop their bombs on Chapei Japanese headquarters announced its losses were 9 killed and 110 wounded. No figures were available on Chinese losses, but they were reported to be heavy. Many civilians were believed to have been killed.

It was estimated by the Japanese that 4,000 Chinese opposed their 2,000 marines at the beginning of the fighting, but considerable reinforcements were moved in by the Chinese. About 24,000 Chinese troops were believed to be in the immediate vicinity of Shanghai.

The semi-daylight of 7 a. m. revealed four Japanese airplanes flying menacingly over the foreign settlements as well as the Chapei district. Half an hour later another plane joined them. They confined their activities for the most part to scouting, although occasionally they dropped a bomb.

Meanwhile the flames spread. As they swept through the lightly constructed houses of the native quarter they could be seen for miles around. Several sections of Chapei were burning to the accompaniment of the rattle of machine guns and occasional bursts of rifle fire.

Two Invading Waves.

The occupation was effected by two waves of invaders. The first started exactly at midnight from positions outside the Chinese sections of Hongkew and Chapei. Many of the men were crowded into motor trucks for the push into the territory of China.

They operated efficiently. As they moved along the boundaries of the Chapei section they dropped a strong detachment at the head of every alleyway. These detachments, in obedience to a signal, moved as one to the interior of Chapei, brushing back the lines the Chinese raised against them.

The movement caught the Chinese between the boundaries of the international settlement and the oncoming Japanese line. When the pincer action began to be felt, the Chinese put up vicious resistance. Reinforcements were rushed to them. But the outcome appeared certain.

One of the Japanese tricks was to plunge the whole Chinese city into darkness. All street lights were shot out—a measure taken, a Japanese officer explained, to protect the advancing soldiers from the rifles of Chinese snipers.

Sweep Through Darkness.

Heads down, rifles at the ready, with bayonets fixed, the Japanese line swept onward in the darkness through the little alleys of the Chinese section toward the open country.

The advance was carried on under the protection of the guns of Japanese ships of war lying off the Shanghai bund in the Whangpoo. Simultaneously the Japanese shelled Woosung, the fort 18 miles from Shanghai which commands the Whangpoo where it flows into the China sea. After the shelling a Japanese detachment landed there.

Three hours and a half after the first wave of the attackers got into action Japanese headquarters announced that virtually every position outlined in their original plan had been seized. But heavy fighting still was going on.

Japanese Move Toward Fort.

A detachment of marines was dispatched along the railroad leading from Shanghai to Fort Woosung. The Japanese plan seemed to be to seize the road in order to prevent Chinese troop movements.

The long threatened occupation of Shanghai, declared by the Japanese to have been necessary to stop anti-Japanese agitators, was looked upon as the most critical complication of the Manchurian conflict because of the foreign interests in this port. It was undertaken after the Japanese had served two ultimatums on the Chinese municipal authorities.

The original ultimatum expired at 6 p. m. yesterday. Two hours before that deadline Japanese Consul General Murai presented another one, demanding the removal of all Chinese armed forces stationed about the city, the immediate release of all Japanese goods seized during the boycott and the freeing of Chinese merchants held as prisoners by the anti-Japanese associations.

The original ultimatum, calling for the suppression of anti-Japanese societies, already had been accepted by the Chinese authorities when the new demands came. This acceptance was contained in a communication to the consul general from Mayor Wu Teh-chen, but the consul replied by remarking that it remained for the Chinese to make effective their promises.

"If the promises are not carried out," he said, "the Japanese will act without further warning."

ZACHARY TAYLOR'S KIN TO TAKE U. S. FLEET TO CHINA IF IT IS SENT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—If the United States masses its Asiatic squadron at Shanghai the man who will take over the task of protecting Americans there is Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, great-nephew of Fighting Zachary Taylor.

Admiral Taylor now is at Manila, aboard the U. S. S. Houston, most modern of American cruisers. It is lying at anchor in the bay, which Taylor first visited with Dewey in '98 for the memorable battle with the Spanish fleet.

Husky and ruddy-faced, the admiral doesn't look his 62 years. Noted for accurate thinking and quick decisions, fellow officers maintain he is the best man available for the difficult job which may develop. They say he never gets excited.

Those who know him best insist he resembles his great-uncle, who, before becoming America's twelfth President, won a soldier's fame in the Mexican war of the '40s. They should know, because Zachary's picture always looks down upon the admiral from his cabin wall. He is reluctant to talk about himself. Many have tried to draw him out on the Manila bay battle, which he saw from the deck of the famed U. S. S. Olympia, Dewey's flagship. But he makes little of that and of every other action he has seen.

The admiral has seen some important service, too, for he received the Distinguished Service medal for his service as commanding officer of the battleship Florida during the world war. 'Way back of that he played in the back field of the naval academy's first football team.

Like his one brother, Col. John R. M. Taylor, U. S. A., retired, he never has married.

WAR IN CHINA MAY BE TOP HAND FOR BIG NAVY GROUP

Shanghai Battle Changes Views of Leaders.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—A change in the Hoover naval policies may be prompted by the tense situation at Shanghai, it developed today. While there were no indications that President Hoover's opposition to new warship construction legislation has been softened by recent developments in the orient which finds the United States stiffening its attitude toward Japan, it became known that some high administration leaders are veering toward the view that steps should be taken to bolster the country's rapidly deteriorating naval defenses.

The navy department has recommended adoption of new naval construction legislation for the last six months but has met no encouragement either at the White House or from congressional leaders outside of the naval committees. It is now reported some members of the cabinet are of the opinion that the navy should be permitted to go ahead with its program for building up the London treaty especially if Japan keeps up her activities in Manchuria.

Hoover Remains Firm.

President Hoover within the last few weeks has taken the position that not one new warship should be authorized or one new war vessel added to the present construction program during the next year. Efforts of congressmen to persuade Mr. Hoover to change his attitude have proved unavailing.

Within the last few days the house Democratic leaders have made a target out of national defense legislation with the result that the Vinson 616 million dollar warship authorization bill was shelved and committee heads advised to slash army and navy appropriations. The result is that while the state department is protesting vigorously to Japan against that nation's encroachments in China the President and congress are cutting national defense expenditures.

Fleet on Down Grade.

Facts unearthed by the senate naval committee disclosed that the American fleet is on the down grade while that of Japan is improving rapidly. Statistics disclosed that Japan will attain parity with the United States in all types of ships prior to the end of the London naval treaty in 1936. The negotiators of the Washington arms conference in 1922 set the American-Japanese ratio at 5-3 on the theory that this would make each invulnerable to attack by the other in its own waters.

Calm Yourself! Japan Advises Stimson in Answer to His Note

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Jan. 28.—W. Cameron Forbes, American ambassador, saw Foreign Minister Yoshizawa this evening on instructions from Secretary of State Stimson to emphasize to the Japanese government the seriousness of any action involving danger to foreign interests at Shanghai, and also directing attention to newspaper reports that the Japanese intend to occupy the American radio station at Shanghai. The foreign office spokesman said after Mr. Forbes' call that the report of the plan to seize the radio station was without foundation.

TOKIO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The United States government asked today for an explanation of just what Japan purposes to do in connection with the controversy with the Chinese at Shanghai.

The inquiry, contained in a note from Secretary of State Stimson, was answered with the assertion that Japan has no intention of aggravating the situation. A foreign office spokesman, commenting on press dispatches rather than on the Stimson note itself, said the United States "seems unduly alarmed."

[The exchange of inquiry and answer at Tokio took place before the Japanese had occupied Shanghai.]

Note Not a Protest.

It was authoritatively said the Stimson note could not be considered as a protest. The communication pointed out, it was understood, that the United States has large commercial interests in Shanghai, that there were conflicting reports about the Japanese intentions, and that the American government, in common with other governments, was eager to avoid any measures that might jeopardize its interests.

The Japanese government has ordered three more warships to Shanghai. When they arrive the total Japanese naval strength there will be forty vessels.

A foreign office spokesman declared that fears of Japanese action within the Shanghai international settlement were groundless.

"Japan to Restrict Action."

"Since the authorities at Shanghai have promised to close the headquarters of the anti-Japanese movement in the international settlement," this spokesman said, "Japan's action will be confined to closing the offices of the associations outside the settlement, by force if necessary, and to recovering goods illegally seized by those who are responsible for the Japanese boycott."

The spokesman asserted with emphasis that Japan hoped it would be unnecessary to employ violent methods, and expressed regret at the "misapprehension under which the United States government seems to be laboring."

"U. S. Unduly Alarmed."

"The United States seems unduly alarmed," the spokesman declared. "We have only a handful of bluejackets in Shanghai. There is no reason why their presence should be considered alarming."

It was announced that, in order to avoid misunderstanding abroad, Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa had directed all Japanese diplomats to explain to the various governments that as long as the Chinese permitted anti-Japanese organizations "and certain lawless elements" to continue their activities Japan would be forced to adopt strong measures for self-defense and the protection of her nationals, at Shanghai and elsewhere.

Ambassador Debuchi at Washington has informed the foreign office here that in his last interview with Secretary Stimson, he found the secretary depressed by developments in the Manchurian conflict.

TERRIER IS JAILED AS LURE USED BY DOG KIDNAPERS

Pepper, a sprightly fox terrier of the feminine gender, was held last night at the Oak Park police station, charged with being the lure for a pair of alleged dog kidnapers. Arrested with her were Herman Schank, 35 years old, 5221 South Kilpatrick avenue, and John Goetz, 43 years old, 4220 South Richmond street.

The suburban police arrested them when they saw the two men let Pepper out on a long leash, while they sat at the curb at Kenilworth and Greenfield avenues in a small coupe. Goetz admitted that their purpose was to capture any male dogs who might attempt to flirt with Pepper.

At Schank's home police found half a dozen dogs whom Pepper had lured into her harem.

SLUG POLICEMAN, FLEE WITH $350 IN STORE HOLDUP

Sergt. Theodore Teague of the Hudson avenue station was knocked unconscious yesterday during a robbery of the L. Fish Furniture store at 654 West North avenue, in which four robbers escaped with $350. Four women and two men employés were forced to lie on the floor.

Sergt. Teague was talking to the manager, Leonard J. Anderson in the rear of the store when the bandits entered. Before the policeman was aware of their presence, one of them slugged him on the head with the butt of a revolver. The bandits took the money from the office safe. The thieves escaped in an automobile.

Teague was made a sergeant three years ago when he captured one of three bank bandits.

JOINT ARMY, NAVY MENACING MOVE, HURLEY ASSERTS

Declares Merger Would Be More Costly.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley today appeared before the house expenditures committee on opposition to consolidation of the army and navy departments into a single department of national defense. Such a move is contemplated in the Williamson bill now under consideration.

PATRICK J. HURLEY.

Secretary Hurley said that no gains either in efficiency or in economy would be registered through merging the war and navy departments under a single head. He asserted that the added personnel that would be needed to administer the new set up would add to the cost of government.

Secretary Hurley said the proposed merger of the two departments would result in confusion and slow up the national defense forces in event of an emergency. He particularly opposed any move to combine the two air forces into one unit, then giving this unit a relatively equal ranking with the war and navy departments.

"If this bill is passed," said Secretary Hurley, "congress would set up a 'super staff.'

"No matter how familiar the civilian head would be with war and navy problems, it would be impossible to operate without a 'top heavy' organization and subsequent confusion."

Secretary of the Navy Adams will appear when the hearings are resumed on Saturday morning, and chiefs of the two aviation units will follow him.

ELLIOT S. NORTON IS COMMITTED TO NEW YORK HOSPITAL

Elliot S. Norton, son of the late Oliver W. Norton of Chicago, millionaire founder of the American Can company, was ordered committed to Bellevue hospital in New York yesterday after several business men and physicians had testified that Norton had acted irrationally in recent months.

One of the witnesses was George Buckley, vice president of the National City bank. He said that at a recent bank directors' meeting Norton virtually broke up the session by rushing into the room and demanding that every director present give him a cigar, explaining that he smoked only cigars given him by bankers. On another occasion, Mr. Buckley testified, Norton demanded a $500,000 loan to bet a friend who wagered that the friend's Austin could beat Norton's Lincoln.

Norton was one of the organizers of the Acme Steel company of Chicago, of which his brother, Ralph H. Norton, 4930 Woodlawn avenue, is now president. Elliot S. Norton filed suit against his brother in 1920 over their stock holdings in the company and in that proceeding it was brought out that his brother had had him committed to a sanitarium for a time.

Friend of Harding Seeks Law to Protect the Dead

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Legislation to prevent the transportation of any book or other written matter defamatory to the dead has been introduced by Representative Mouser [Rep., Ohio], friend of the late President Harding. Mouser is a member of the Marion, O., law firm which successfully defended Charles A. Klunk in the libel suit brought last year by Nan Britton, author of "The President's Daughter." The measure would impose a penalty of $1,000 fine and a year in jail, or both.

UNIONS SUBMIT FINAL PROGRAM TO ROADS TODAY

Expect Compromise Offer on Wage Cut.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

The final stage of the rail wage negotiations at the Palmer house will be entered this morning when the railway union leaders meet with a committee of presidents to agree on terms of a settlement.

D. B. ROBERTSON. [Acme Photo.]

It was understood last night that the executives of the 20 brotherhoods participating in the parley have been given authority by their organizations to accept the 10 per cent wage cut for one year as asked by the railroads.

However, the labor executives are directed to reopen their negotiations with the presidents in an attempt to obtain "the best settlement possible," and it was reported that a compromise proposal would be submitted for labor when the joint session opens this morning.

Seek Smaller Pay Cut.

It was indicated that the unions, with David Brown Robertson as their spokesman, would first offer to accept a wage cut less than the 10 per cent sought by the roads. It was also reported that the unions would seek to have the presidents' committee enter an agreement that after the one year period of the cut has expired no further attempts to slice wages will be made during the year following.

Railroad spokesmen gave the impression that their committee would not agree to anything less than a 10 per cent reduction and that they would not bind themselves to a pact for maintaining the present wage scale during the year following the period of the reduction.

Some reports last night were to the effect that the union men are aware that they are fighting a losing battle, but are determined to wage it, anyway. These reports had it that the unions will finally agree to the railroads' terms and accept the 10 per cent cut for the year period.

For Job Stabilization.

If such an agreement on the wage question is reached the railroads will include in the formal pact certain concessions toward adopting part of a relief program presented by the unions. They will agree to stabilize employment on their lines "so far as may be practicable," and to coöperate in committee investigations studying plans for retirement insurance, workmen's compensation, and a dismissal wage.

The roads have refused to enter into a proposed joint investigation of the feasibility of the six hour day, but the unions have caused resolutions to be adopted in congress, which now await only the signature of the President, under which the interstate commerce commission is directed to make such an investigation.

Hope for Windup Tomorrow.

Many of those participating in the negotiations were inclined to forecast a windup of the whole matter by tomorrow, but Mr. Robertson refused to make any prediction. He declared that his organization and one or two others would be advised of the nature of any agreement which might be decided upon before he and the other executives would sign it.

Another possibility of a delay rested in a qualification of the authority allowed by the trainmen's brotherhood to their president, A. F. Whitney, and the members of their executive committee. A resolution adopted by the trainmen specified that any agreement reached must provide that the railroads would promise not to undertake further cuts within a year of the termination of the present agreement.

If the presidents should turn down this offer it would seem necessary for Mr. Whitney and his committee to return to their organization to gain authority for signing the pact without the extra agreement.

Unions United, Leader Says.

Few of the observers were inclined to opinions that the union leaders might reject the railroad presidents' terms and insist upon a compromise, even to the point of breaking up the negotiations without signing any agreement. Mr. Roberston, in declining to state the nature of the compromise to be offered, said that the twenty brotherhoods were solidly united in their program. One other union, the longshoremen, had withdrawn from the negotiations Wednesday evening.

The railroad presidents' committee has waited somewhat impatiently since last Sunday for the union representatives to make up their minds. Daniel Willard, chairman of the committee, who is president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, celebrated his 71st birthday yesterday. It might more correctly be stated that the event was "observed" by others, for Mr. Willard's only deviation from schedule was to work a bit harder.

MRS. PEARSONS TELLS OF LIFE AS A SECRET WIFE

Testifies at Hearing on Separation Plea.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith Pearsons, who is seeking separate maintenance from Harry P. Pearsons, bank director and former mayor of Evanston, told her story before Superior Judge Harry B. Miller yesterday.

Her husband urged her to keep their wedding secret following their marriage on June 16, 1928, at Ottawa, pleading that it would be a shock to his aged father, who was ill, Mrs. Pearsons testified. The ceremony remained a secret until early in 1929.

"I have three children of my own, however," she said, "and such an agreement puts a lady in an embarrassing position, especially when a man comes to visit her as often as Mr. Pearsons came to see me."

Checks Are Introduced.

Frank E. Cantwell, her attorney, introduced thirteen checks, signed by Mrs. Pearsons, and made out to her husband, totaling $1,200. She also testified that Pearsons, a month after their marriage, asked her to lend him $6,000, and helped her write a letter to her attorney in Kenosha, suggesting that the lawyer hurry the settlement of her first husband's estate, that she might get the money.

In October, 1928, Mrs. Pearsons charged, she went to her husband's home at 1816 Chicago avenue, Evanston, with some bedspreads. They lived separately throughout their marriage. Mrs. Pearsons' present address is 360 Ridge avenue, Evanston. When she entered her husband's home, she said, she saw a dinner table set for six, and a servant told her that Mr. Pearsons was having guests.

Asked to Leave, Charge.

"Mr. Pearsons came upstairs while I was there," Mrs. Pearsons said. "He refused to introduce me to his guests, and asked me to leave. I was heartbroken. I realized then that Mr. Pearsons didn't care for me. Two weeks later he called me and said, 'Betty, you and I can't go on like this. I don't think I want to raise another man's children. The best thing is to give me a divorce.'"

She then told how she informed newspapers of their marriage. She didn't see Pearsons again for several months, she said. In July, 1929, she took some furniture to his home, and found that he was having it redecorated.

"I asked him how he got the funds to redecorate," she said. "He told me that a lady whom he was interested in, a Mrs. Eugenie Gast, furnished the money."

Describes Arrest at Home.

Mrs. Gast was not identified further during the hearing. A month later, Mrs. Pearsons said, her husband took her for an automobile ride and told her that he had "reached the end" and was interested in another woman.

Mrs. Pearsons described the incident on Nov. 4, 1929, when she was arrested after she had broken a pane of glass in a door to admit herself to her husband's house. She did it, she said, after he had refused her admittance, and dared her to break in. Before the police arrived, she charged, her husband escorted some one, whom she identified only as having "a soft voice," out the rear door.

ASK BRIDGE CLUBS TO AID IN FEEDING OF HUNGRY PUPILS

Bridge clubs that meet this week are asked to contribute what they can to the Hungry School Children's fund so that free lunches for 10,000 children in 211 public schools need not be discontinued.

12 SUMMONED AS VIOLATORS OF SMOKE LAW

Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, yesterday summoned twelve alleged smoke law violators to appear at his office today to explain the dense smoke coming from the stacks of their buildings. Those summoned are:

Joint Emergency Relief, 54 West Austin avenue.
E. Gehr, 1845 Cleveland avenue.
Board of education, Avondale school, 2935 North Sawyer avenue.
J. R. Thompson company, 6240 South Halsted street.
Chicago T. and T. company, 4940 North Western avenue.
Liepold & Hicks, 1607 Howard avenue.
Barclay apartments, 4940 East End avenue.
Chicago Beach hotel, 5008 Cornell avenue.
I. Latman, 5940 South May street.
Peter Kagnades, 49 East 22d street.
Joseph Jilek, 1443 South Kominsky avenue.
Thomas Trumpy, 45 East 22d street.

Methods of firing furnaces which will eliminate dense smoke are recommended at the hearings by Mr. Chambers, in furtherance of his campaign to educate firemen and householders in smoke prevention.

CITY STATIONS TO SELL MILK AT COST ASKED

Ald. David L. Sutton [8th], chairman of a city council subcommittee which is investigating milk prices, yesterday requested Mayor Cermak to empower the board of health to establish emergency milk relief stations at which the city would sell milk to the poor at cost.

"The mayor told us to tell Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, to coöperate with the subcommittee," said Ald. Sutton. "The subcommittee will see Dr. Bundesen today and urge him to get the plan under way immediately.

3 ILLINOIS JUDGES ARE PROPOSED FOR U. S. SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Senator Otis F. Glenn today presented to President Hoover the names of three Illinoisians he considers qualified for appointment to the United States Supreme court vacancy caused by the death of Oliver Wendell Holmes.

He requested consideration of Justice Frederic R. De Young and Clyde O. Stone of the Illinois Supreme court and United States District Judge Walter C. Lindley. All three are veterans on the bench.

Justice De Young, a Chicagoan, served on both the Circuit and Superior benches in Cook county before his election to the high state court in 1923. Justice Stone of Peoria was elected to the Supreme court of the state in 1918 and prior to that had been county judge of Peoria county and had served as a Circuit judge. Judge Lindley, a resident of Danville, was appointed in 1922 in the then new Eastern district of Illinois upon the recommendation of the late Joseph G. Cannon, veteran speaker of the house, a fellow townsman.

RAILROAD SOON TO START 103D STREET OPENING

Attorneys for the Nickel Plate railroad indicated yesterday that the first phase of the construction work involved in the opening of 103d street will be started soon. This work, on which approximately $100,000 will be expended, consists of filling in a new site south of 103d street and east of Lake Calumet for the railroad's Stony Island avenue yards.

Previously the railroad had petitioned the Illinois commerce commission for an extension of one year on the time for starting the work, pleading its financial inability to start the new yard construction. Yesterday the railroad withdrew this petition with the statement that with completion of this first step it might ask an extension of time in which to start on the subway proper, which will continue 103d street under its tracks.

"K. Nomuni" Signs Check, Lands in San Diego Jail

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 28.—(AP)—K. Yamata, a Japanese, may or may not be a humorist. He was held under $2,000 bond today on charges of issuing fictitious checks. At a hearing prosecutors said most of the checks in question were signed "I. Nogota." They also produced one bearing the name "K. Nomuni."

DUCE CONDEMNS SLIM WOMEN AND BIRTH CONTROL

Tells Doctors to Frown on Dieting Urge.

ROME, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini has called on Italy's physicians to discourage women's desire for a thin figure as weakening the race.

In an address to the Italian Medical congress, made public today, Il Duce also asked the doctors to counsel against birth control and encourage a better mental and physical life.

In his criticism of the extremely slender feminine silhouette he called it a harmful "prejudice of fashion."

Duce Deplores Dieting.

"You should insist upon correcting fallacies that a doctor alone can cure," the premier said. "They are what I call the fallacies of contemporary civilization, which has great positive possibilities, but also negative. They are prejudices of fashion that end by becoming harmful, affecting one's strength.

"I will mention one—the fashion of excessive reducing. This weakens the race and also has economic reactions."

He proposed that each Italian eat two pounds more of rice a year, thus helping to solve the rice production problem.

"Another fallacy," he said, "is that maternity diminishes womanly beauty, while precisely the reverse is true, as you all can testify. The result is that the birth rate is diminishing in Italy."

He said there have been 56,000 fewer births in 1931 than in the previous year.

"Words Beat Medicine."

"I am deeply convinced," he added, "that our mode of eating, dressing, working, sleeping and our whole system of daily habits ought to be reformed."

With the suggestion that "a word is often better than medicine," he told the physicians to go into the 8,000 towns in Italy and teach the people the value of "sun and movement."

Encourage outdoor life with the motorcycle, automobile, gymnastics, and sports, he said, not only for the people's physical but also for their moral benefit.

Bids 7 Spades Minus Ace; Slapped; Divorced

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 28.—(AP)—A seven spade bridge bid without the ace led to a divorce for Mrs. William Blomberg today. Mrs. Blomberg, granted a decree, told the judge she bid with her husband as partner. She was set. When he found she lacked the spade ace he reached across the table and struck her in the face, she testified.

GRAND JURORS DEBATE COURSE IN LOESCH QUIZ.

Report They Will Refrain from Defying Judge.

FRANK J. LOESCH.

The January grand jury, which was technically arrested on Wednesday for defying the orders of Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court to come into open court to report to him, debated for several hours yesterday as to whether to go ahead with the hearing of charges of Attorney Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime commission. Mr. Loesch in his recent report to the commission referred to members of the judiciary as "cash register" judges and "mountebanks."

The jury foreman, Henry S. Henschen, a bank president, refused to issue a statement when the jury finally adjourned for the day. However, it is reported that the jurors decided not to defy the judge further, because the latter held within his power a weapon against which they could not fight. The judge has the power to peremptorily discharge the jury, and it was reported that he was ready to use it in the event of further defiance by the jurors.

New Jury Due Monday.

The jury will be automatically discharged today. A new jury, which Judge Fisher said he would instruct to take up the investigation of Mr. Loesch's charges, is scheduled to be impanelled Monday morning.

State's Attorney Swanson and two of his legal experts, Grenville Beardsley and John Holman, were summoned to the jury chambers yesterday. The jurors wanted advice as to their powers to conduct an independent investigation. It is said that among the decisions cited by the prosecutors was the Brautigan contempt case contained in the Illinois Supreme court reports, which says "that a court cannot limit a grand jury in its investigations." After debate, however, it is reported that the jurors decided to refrain from further disputes with the court.

Loesch Declines to Comment.

Mr. Loesch, who, according to some lawyers, has won immunity from any possible action by a grand jury, refused to comment on the situation yesterday. However, he expressed a willingness to appear before the February grand jury and tell of his reports about certain judges if not requested to sign an immunity waivers. Among those holding that Mr. Loesch has won immunity is Attorney Thomas D. Marshall, who has been appointed as a special prosecutor to conduct the investigation of Mr. Loesch's charges.

The immunity for the veteran battler against the alliance of crime and politics was won when he went before the grand jury and gave testimony without an immunity waiver. It was during this session on Wednesday afternoon that the judge ordered the technical arrest of the jurors. They were so interested in Mr. Loesch's testimony that they sent word to the judge that they were too busy to be disturbed.

A committee of the crime commission was in session yesterday discussing the situation, it was reported, but no public announcement was made concerning the outcome.

FOUND SLAIN IN AUTO; RUM TRADE STRIFE IS BLAMED

Philip Flavin, 42 years old, 5055 West Congress street, was found dead late yesterday in the rear seat of his automobile in front of 318 South Hermitage avenue. Death was due to gunshot wounds in the head.

Investigators said they had learned that Flavin had been peddling alcohol and beer on the west side. They theorized that he had offended powerful bootleggers and had been killed to eliminate his competition. He was until last June a part owner of a saloon at 229 South Halsted street, but according to Jerry Weitzman, who now conducts the place, had recently been in severe financial straits.

Flavin apparently was killed early yesterday morning. The car had been parked at the curb all through the day. It was assumed that the killers accomplished his death elsewhere and were taking the body to a secluded spot to dispose of it when the gasoline in the tank ran out and the car was abandoned. The body was discovered by boys attending the nearby St. Jarlath school.

U. S. DELEGATES TO ARMS PARLEY ARRIVE IN PARIS

Women's Pacifist Group Along as Observers.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 28.—America's delegations to the disarmament conference tonight set foot on land in France.

The plural is used advisedly. For in addition to the official delegates, headed by Senator Claude A. Swanson and Dr. Mary Emma Woolley, there is an unofficial but highly active delegation of ten earnest women, accompanied by numerous secretaries, representing feminine pacifist organizations such as the Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom. As a part of the baggage carried there are 13 cases of petitions for the benefit of the world's statesmen and the chiefs of staff.

The two groups are forever getting tangled together, and newspaper men covering the arrival had the greatest difficulty distinguishing the professional disarmers from those who have maintained an amateur status. The latter of the two delegations did nothing to obviate the confusion. They debarked at the same time as the official delegates and piled into the same boat train and indicated by every gesture that they intend to keep a close eye on the delegates until they get to Geneva. Once there they will be reinforced by the representatives of similar feminine organizations throughout the world constituting the greatest lobby ever organized for any cause.

Coffee Instead of Wine.

There was no official reception at Cherbourg when the President Harding bearing the disarmers dropped anchor, but M. Quoniam, president of the local chamber of commerce, apparently considering that he was witnessing the vanguard of a resolved tourist movement, was on hand to welcome the arrivers to La Belle France.

Remembering the difficulties arising during a visit to America the mayor did not offer the usual champagne, but tendered a discreet cup of tea with flowers for the ladies. The amateurs muscled in on this show too grabbing their share of the flowers and making sure that nobody slipped anything into the cups of their officially accredited colleagues.

This correspondent has learned from a confidential agent on board, that the President Harding which is officially dry being a United States boat kept the bar open all the way across, the liquor apparently having been hoisted in from a tender beyond the 12 mile limit. This observer reports, however, that the disarmers both official and unofficial maintained admirable sobriety.

Full of Enthusiasm.

While the female pacifists in the wake of the disarmament army were full of fire and enthusiasm the delegates themselves were very cagey. Even so ardent a pacifist as Dr. Woolley admitted that she was impressed with the difficulty of disarmament at the moment when Japan is at China's throat and with the Franco-German tension growing. "International action must give the nations the security they are seeking through armaments, but how can such action be organized?" she queried gloomily. But the learned doctor's remarks to the press expressing orthodox pacifist sentiments is equally guarded in tone indicating that she has been profiting from the coaching of the state department sphinx hounds.

Senator Swanson said "The conference opens at a critical period in the world's history. If it succeeds in reducing the financial burden which armaments impose on the peoples it will materially help to restore economic prosperity and dispel international suspicion and fear. If it fails the depression, suspicion and fear will be aggravated."

The delegation will depart tomorrow for Geneva after having caught only a few hours of uneasy slumber here. They will meet the other members of the United States delegation on the shores of Lake Geneva and go into a huddle, drafting plans for the conference which opens Tuesday.

Hear Judge Speak

Many Chicago children were graduated from elementary, junior high, and high schools yesterday. Most of the midyear commencement exercises, however, will be held today and tonight. Municipal Judge Edward B. Casey addressed the members of the graduating class at the Graham Junior High school at their exercises yesterday. He urged the graduates not to drop out of school, but to continue their education. He also urged parents to "give their children a fair chance."

Three Die When Plane Cracks Up in Florida

Monticello, Fla., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Three men were hurled to death here this afternoon when an airplane dropped a wing after slipping into a spin. The pilot's name was Fred Weisher, Hartford, Conn. Harvey Watson and Bill [William] Sargent, two employés of a nursery into the grounds of which the plane was plunged, are the other two dead. Witnesses said the ship apparently developed motor trouble. All three men were dead when dragged from the wreckage.

$1,725,000 VOTED FOR WORLD FAIR BY UPPER HOUSE

Glenn Absent as Roll on Bill Is Taken.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Participation of the federal government in the Chicago Century of Progress exposition was approved by the senate today when it passed the Glenn bill carrying an authorization of $1,725,000.

The bill provides for the creation of the Chicago World's Fair centennial commission, to be composed of the secretaries of state, agriculture, and commerce, the appointment of an executive commissioner at a salary of $10,000, and the expenditure of not more than $550,000 on a government building or for the rental of suitable space for the exhibition of "such articles and materials as illustrate the functions and administrative faculties of the government in the advancement of industry, the arts, and peace, demonstrating the nature of our institutions, particularly as regards their adaptation to the wants of the people."

The bill was called up by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois. Senator Glenn, its author, having been led to promise during a recent debate on economy that he would not argue in favor of the bill's passage, was not in evidence during the brief debate.

A special rule providing for the early consideration of the bill was adopted by the house and a vote in that body should take place some time next week.

ABANDON HOPE FOR 60 TRAPPED ON SUBMARINE

Official Report Indicates All Must Be Dead.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The admiralty announced this morning that, in view of a report received from the rear admiral in charge of submarines, it is no longer possible to hope for the rescue of any of the sixty officers and men who were aboard the submarine M-2 when it sank off Portland and that their deaths must now be presumed. The admiral said, however, that the search will continue despite the fact "we have no hope now of saving life."

PORTLAND, Eng., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Noises described as "slight tapping" beneath the surface of the English channel, reported by officers of the British destroyer Thruster, aroused a faint hope today that the submarine M-2 may be located and that life still exists aboard the missing craft in which are trapped a crew of 60.

The hope was admittedly slight, but it received some confirmation from reports that oil is drifting to the surface two and a half miles from Abbotsbury, where grappling ships have encountered an unidentified obstruction which may or may not be the sunken submarine.

Navy Spurred in Hunt.

These incidents were sufficient to arouse the naval authorities to renewed activity throughout the area south of Portland Bill, where the M-2 submerged on Tuesday morning.

Reports of the "tappings" heard by men aboard the Thruster were received with reservations, but it was considered possible, however, that some of the crew carried by the M-2 might even now be alive. In one American submarine accident, the sailors lived for 96 hours.

Find Oil on Surface.

The destroyer Portland, dropping anchor at 1:40 p. m. today, reported that a quantity of oil rose to the surface near the anchor chains. It was thought possible that some one aboard the M-2 heard the noise of the anchor as it struck near the submarine and released the oil in an attempt to show the position of the submerged craft.

REVOKE COIA'S PASS TO VISIT CAPONE IN JAIL

If State Representative Charles Coia desires to visit Al Capone at the county jail in connection with a "personal matter," he will have to explain to the government just what the "personal matter" is. That was the announcement yesterday of the United States district attorney's office.

Coia was given a pass on Monday to permit him to see Capone tomorrow. He explained at the time that it was a "personal matter." Yesterday the government revoked the pass and informed Coia that if he wants to see Capone, he must submit to a thorough questioning by Assistant United States Attorney Samuel G. Clawson.

LAUNCH DRIVE TO BREAK UP KIDNAP GANGS

Prosecution Demanded in South Bend Case.

Possible arrest and prosecution of the kidnapers of Howard A. Woolverton, wealthy resident of South Bend, Ind., appeared yesterday to be dependent upon the outcome of divided opinion in Indiana officialdom over these two phases of the kidnaping:

1. Was all or part or any of the demanded $50,000 ransom paid to effect Mr. Woolverton's release?

2. Is Mr. Woolverton able to identify his kidnapers?

H. A. WOOLVERTON.

Feeling was high in South Bend, business and political leaders there holding that the latest kidnaping indicated that the field of underworld victims is exhausted and that every reputable business man is now subject to abduction. If the kidnapers of Woolverton received money and are to escape punishment, declared County Prosecutor Samuel P. Schwartz, their success will encourage outlawry everywhere.

Alterie Ordered Extradited.

In Chicago active measures were taken against the kidnaping menace. A preliminary success against alleged kidnapers was obtained when Gov. Adams of Colorado ordered the extradition of Louis Alterie, gangster and once an associate of the murdered Dean O'Banion. Alterie will be brought here to face trial for the abduction of Edward Dobkin, a betting commissioner, last March.

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime commission, prepared a statement, to be made public today, outlining precautions that must be taken by business men and urging stern measures to prevent seizure for ransom. Some form of standing reward for the conviction of kidnapers will be recommended.

Five Chicagoans Threatened.

Also, Col. Robert Isham Randolph and Alexander Jamie of the Secret Six revealed that five wealthy Chicagoans have been threatened with abduction in recent weeks. The Secret Six and Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's staff offered their aid to South Bend authorities while Woolverton was a prisoner, but reported they were told their help was not needed.

A statement was issued by Attorney G. A. Farabaugh, representing the Woolverton family, to the effect no ransom was paid and that Mr. Woolverton had no chance to see his captors, due to his being kept blindfolded.

Believes Money Paid.

Prosecutor Schwartz said that while he had no positive information on the subject there was no question in his mind but that some money was paid for Woolverton's safe return. He admitted that the natural thing would be for Woolverton to wish to forget all about it and avoid any prosecution for the sake of his own safety and that of his family.

"But such action is not in accord with public welfare," Mr. Schwartz said. "People who have an experience such as Mr. Woolverton had should think of the future safety of their fellow men and give every aid to bringing about proper punishment for the kidnapers. I am going to talk to Mr. Woolverton along these lines tomorrow."

Chief of Police John Kruespert of South Bend said he was of the same opinion—no pay no release. Neither he nor Schwartz was taken into the confidence of the Woolverton family or their friends, Chief Kruespert declared, and consequently his hands were tied until he was notified at 11:45 o'clock Wednesday night that Mr. Woolverton was home.

Police Held in Readiness.

Secretary of State Frank Mayr, who has charge of the Indiana state police, was in charge of the state forces working on the kidnaping, having ten motorcycle policemen in South Bend, six of whom waited all day and evening at the police station. Late in the evening Capt. Rex Risher of the state police said he was going to make a search of some cottages near Wanatah, Ind., thirty miles from South Bend. Instead he was back in time to meet Mr. Woolverton on the train, according to an admission yesterday by his chief, Grover Garrot, at Indianapolis.

Mr. Mayr, who is a close friend of Woolverton, said last night that no money had been paid, and he denied that Capt. Risher's mysterious absence had anything to do with rumored negotiations with the kidnapers. His opinion was, he said, that the kidnapers released Woolverton because of the great amount of publicity given by the newspapers to the kidnaping.

Gov. Harry Leslie, who on Wednesday expressed himself strongly on the subject of prosecution of the kidnapers, could not be reached yesterday to find out if he intended to ascertain just what the state authorities know and which the county authorities do not know about the release of Woolverton.

Alterie Accused in Denver.

Alterie was confronted at the extradition hearing in Denver yesterday by Gus Sanger, who has confessed taking part in the Dobkin kidnaping. Sanger asserted he was with Alterie, William Thomas, and John Pingera, who are already under arrest, in a hotel room at 2400 North Clark street when they saw Dobkin get into an automobile. They all ran to the street, he said, and chased the Dobkin car in one of their own.

"We followed Dobkin into the loop, where he was forced to stop for a traffic light," the witness related. "Alterie and Pingera jumped from our machine and ran to Dobkin's. Each opened a side door and they climbed in. Then they drove away and Thomas told me to go on about my business. Two days later I was called to Alterie's offices and given $1,100."

Alterie was indicted here with Pingera and Thomas a month ago upon the testimony of Sanger and Dobkin. Sanger had been trapped in the kidnaping of Dr. Max Gecht.

Leave for East

Linda Watkins, one of the younger film actresses, and Gabriel Hess, attorney for the Motion Picture Producers' association, were married yesterday at the Blackstone hotel. The ceremony was performed shortly after the couple stepped off a train from California. They left on a train for New York.

Superior Judge D. J. Normoyle performed the ceremony. Hess had arranged through friends in Chicago to get the marriage license and arrange the wedding. Only two witnesses were present.

Hess' former wife, Katherine Hawley, who was killed in a fall from a horse, was Miss Watkins' best friend. Miss Watkins was one of the three "debutante" stars of 1931. She has not decided yet whether she will go back into the movies or not. Hess said the decision was "up to her."

$350,000 in Liquor Seized by Drys in New York Raid

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Liquor described by federal authorities as being of the highest quality and valued by them at between $350,000 and $500,000 was seized today by agents of Horace J. Simmons, special New York agent of the department of justice, during a raid on a garage. The liquor, found in 5,000 cases, hidden in chambers under the floor of the garage fitted with trap doors, was to have been sold, according to Simmons, to expensive night clubs.

AIRMAN LANDS BURNING PLANE, ESCAPES INJURY

Capt. H. M. Berry, pilot for Col. R. R. McCormick, landed a plane that caught fire on a test flight yesterday morning at Sky Harbor airport, in Northbrook. Capt. Berry was not injured. He was alone in the plane. The plane, a Fleetster high wing monoplane powered by a Hornet B motor, of 575 horsepower, was destroyed by the fire before fire fighting equipment from Northbrook, Glencoe and Deerfield could extinguish the flames.

Capt. Berry said mechanics had been working on the motor of the plane for two days, trying to rectify a scattering miss in the cylinders. They thought they had corrected the miss, and Capt. Berry took the plane up at 9 o'clock yesterday morning for a short test flight. On the take off the motor functioned perfectly, he said.

He had been up only about two minutes when the motor began backfiring. He closed down the motor and began to land the plane when the carburetor caught fire while the ship was still fifty feet above the ground and gas fumes that had gathered in the rear of the cockpit exploded almost immediately. Capt. Berry was able to land the plane and get out of it before the wing tanks exploded.

LA GUARDIA ASKS GOOD WILL SPIRIT ON PROHIBITION

"Get Together and Find Solution," He Says.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] today told his colleagues in the house that the only way to settle the prohibition question was for the wets and drys to "stop making faces at each other" and gather around a conference table to find a joint solution.

"There is no honest justification for postponing the solution of this problem," he said. "Every dry is not a fanatic and every wet is not a drunkard. There is no use repeating the same old arguments. Let both sides concede that the saloon at its worse is as bad as the speakeasy at its best. Let both sides admit that unrestricted, uncontrolled and unregulated sale of whisky is harmful. Let both sides admit that liquor traffic, to the extent that it exists today, cannot be carried on without the knowledge if not the connivance of town, village, city, county, state and federal officials.

Generally Conceded.

"Let both sides concede that the corruption of public officials for the purpose of violating an unpopular law is demoralizing. Let both sides concede that no state should be forced to legalize the traffic in liquor against the will of its people as likewise no state should be compelled to submit to absolute prohibition contrary to the will of its people.

"When all this is done reasonable men and women having the interest of their country at heart and the welfare of the people in mind can agree on a solution."

Representative La Guardia suggested that for the purpose of making a start toward this end, a group of wet members of congress meet with an equal number of dry members for the purpose of agreeing on a tentative solution.

Taber Is Against Beer.

Earlier, before the senate subcommittee considering the Bingham bill to legalize 4 per cent beer, Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, appeared as the first of a series of dry witnesses.

Farmers are against beer, said Mr. Taber, on "social, moral, and economic grounds." He termed the amount of grain which might go into making beer and whisky "insignificant" compared with the farm products used for food.

"No nation in history," he declared, "has ever been able to drink itself prosperous. The liquor business has always been a lawless business. It is lawless now and would be lawless if it we brought back."

Ohio River Two Feet Over Flood Stage at Evansville

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The Ohio river reached a crest of 37.2 feet here last night, which is 2.2 feet above flood stage, and is expected to remain at 37 feet for at least twenty-four hours longer.

Aviation Notes

Maj. James H. Doolittle has been drafted from civilian life by the war department to conduct a series of tests on the effects of high altitude flying on engine oils. He resigned from the army air corps two years ago, but is now at Selfridge field, Mich., on a tour of duty.

An exclusive preview of the National Aircraft show of 1932, to be held at Detroit airport April 2 to 10, will be held the morning of April 2, to which many prominent persons have been invited.

Flying Forecasts

Special flying route forecasts for the period from 9 p. m., Jan. 28, to noon, Jan. 29:

Chicago-Evansville—Mostly cloudy, probability of some rain; mostly strong southwest to west winds, shifting to west and northwest by morning most of the route.

Chicago-Cleveland—Rain over west, increasing cloudiness with rain by or before morning over east portion; strong south to southwest winds and gales changing to northwest extreme west portion.

Chicago-St. Louis—Mostly cloudy, possibly rain changing to snow flurries. Strong southwest winds and gales becoming northwest.

Chicago-Twin Cities—Cloudy, snow north; rain changing to snow in south portions; mostly fresh to strong north to northwest over north portion, and shifting becoming northwest extreme south portion.

Chicago-Kansas City—Cloudy, probably some snow flurries, except light rain changing to snow north portion; strong northwest winds, except southwest, shifting to northwest over north portion.

Route forecasts for 12 hours ending at noon:

Evansville-Atlanta—Occasional rain; moderate shifting winds, becoming southeast or south, Atlanta to Chattanooga, and fresh southerly near Evansville, probably shifting to northwest Friday forenoon up to 1,000 feet, and strong southwest at 5,000 feet.

Cleveland-New York—Increasing cloudiness followed by occasional rain from Cleveland to mountains Friday forenoon, probably extending to New York by noon; fresh, possibly strong southeast shifting to south winds near Cleveland and increasing southeast becoming moderate to fresh near New York up to 1,000 feet, and southwest gales near Cleveland and fresh southwest winds near New York at 5,000 feet.

CONFIRM DAWES AS DIRECTOR OF 2 BILLION BODY

Blaine Attacks Record in Senate Speech.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Gen. Charles G. Dawes of Chicago was confirmed by the senate today as a director of the two billion dollar reconstruction finance corporation, but not until after his part in the Lorimer bank case in 1912 and 1914 had been aired on the senate floor by Senator John J. Blaine, Republican insurgent of Wisconsin.

Harvey C. Couch, Arkansas utility and railroad head, and Jesse H. Jones, financier and builder of Houston, Tex., were confirmed after the senate had passed upon Gen. Dawes, who is President Hoover's selection for president of the government backed corporation. Mr. Couch also was attacked by Senator Blaine and there were ten votes, mostly those of senate radicals, cast against him. Seventy-one senators voted in his favor. There was no record vote on Gen. Dawes or Mr. Jones.

An offering of 350 million dollars of treasury certificates, with 290 millions to be used by the corporation, was oversubscribed by more than 296 millions, it was announced tonight by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. The subscriptions totaled $646,091,500.

Blaine Waxes Sarcastic.

Senator Blaine chose sarcasm as his method of attack. He believed, he said, that Gen. Dawes' connection with the Lorimer bank crash and the "magicians' hat trick" by which Dawes' Central Trust company put up $1,250,000 so that Lorimer's bank could get a state charter would make Gen. Dawes eminently fitted by experience to head the reconstruction finance corporation.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] came vehemently to Gen. Dawe's defense, declaring that no other American was so well fitted as Gen. Dawes to come to the country's rescue.

"Gen. Dawes' record has been under a microscope for forty years," he declared. "His integrity stands like a granite rock. He is held in his country's esteem and affection; no one else inspires such confidence. He has been a soldier under the American flag in peace and war and has never avoided a rendezvous with duty."

Applications Pour In.

An application by the Wabash railroad for a loan from the fund, mentioned by Senator Blaine, was but one of a torrent of applications which were reported to be pouring upon the corporation. It was disclosed on good authority that loans are to be made on the basis of the "intrinsic value" rather than the market value of securities offered for collateral.

Due to the administration's insistence, there is to be no report even to congress on who applies for loans or on the amounts loaned to specific institutions. The clause requiring information to be given in the corporation's quarterly report was stricken.

Seek Glass Bill Compromise.

With the directors of the finance corporation under consideration, President Hoover took the initiative to seek a compromise whereby the Glass bill for a revision of the federal reserve and national banking laws might be brought into line with the administration's ideas on that subject.

The President brought his influence to bear to bring together Senators Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] and Frederic Walcott [Rep., Conn.], members of the senate banking and currency subcommittee which wrote the bill, and treasury and federal reserve officials, with a view to drafting the proposed legislation into a more satisfactory form.

It is the President's hope, it is understood, that the administration's plan to help depositors in closed banks may be reconciled with the plan as embodied in the Glass bill. While it is felt that the immediate needs of depositors in insolvent banks have been met by passage of the reconstruction finance corporation bill, President Hoover is understood to be anxious that a more permanent form of relief along this line be established in the Glass bill.

ASSEMBLY POOR RELIEF CENTERS IN STATE BONDS

Governor Calls Third Special Session.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Conferences of lawyers, bankers and bond house executives yesterday caused the Joint Emergency Relief fund organization to center its entire hope for legislation to aid the jobless and hungry on the plan for the issuance of state tax warrants and bonds backed up by gasoline tax revenue.

Thorough inquiry into the practicability of a second plan for the issuance of county bonds for relief purposes completely shelved that idea. Without exception the financiers said that under the existing conditions Cook county securities of that sort are not marketable. On the other hand they believed that state paper can and will be sold within a short time after favorable action by the legislature.

Stand by Old Plan.

The county bond idea was hastily and informally agreed upon in a tentative way by assembly leaders on Wednesday because of downstate objection to the state securities plan, but those supporting the plea for relief intend now to stand by the plan agreed upon at the Springfield conferences on Tuesday and explained to the assemblymen by De Witt Billman, secretary of the legislative reference bureau.

"That plan [for state bonds] is our one and only chance for help from the legislature," said Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Joint Emergency Relief fund of Cook county. "It is that or nothing. It would be impossible to sell Cook county bonds for this or any other purpose."

This will be made plain to the assembly when it convenes at 4 o'clock next Monday in its third special session, for which Gov. Emmerson issued the call yesterday. Mayor Cermak, it is hoped, will be able to join in the presentation of this conclusion some time during the week.

Monday Sessions Brief.

The Monday meetings of the two houses will be brief and are intended only for the introduction of the relief bills, but it is expected that during the week the mayor and other speakers will have an opportunity to tell the legislators that their alternative plan—the one for county bonds—is impossible.

The governor opened his call with a broad provision for legislation for relief of unemployment which is intended to open the door for the emergency measures sought by Chicago. He also prepared the way for the termination of the second special session—now hardly under way—by merging it with the third or impending session. He included in his new call all the subjects for which consideration was authorized in the second session.

Waterway Placed in Call.

The two principal topics in his second call were retrenchment by the reduction of salaries and the abolition of state, county and municipal offices and proposals for a constitutional convention. He included as new subjects in yesterday's call the construction, use and maintenance of waterway terminals and the construction of the Illinois waterway through the Calumet-Sag channel of the sanitary district of Chicago.

Therefore it is expected that when the second special session reconvenes on Tuesday it will adjourn sine die, leaving its work to the third session which will have to reauthorize the salary slashing committees of the two houses that began work last week.

Income Tax Comes Up.

In the first special session, the chief authority of which concerns the enactment of the program sponsored by the governor's tax conference, the state income tax bill is a special order of business for next Tuesday morning immediately after that session reconvenes. It already has passed the senate and is up for final action in the house. And signs already have developed that its sponsors may endeavor to force support for it by threats of killing the Chicago unemployment relief plan.

In the unofficial gatherings of the two houses on Tuesday and Wednesday when the unemployment relief plan was presented speakers were asked why, instead of using Cook county's share of the present 3 cent gas tax to pay off the state bonds required to provide money for those stricken by the depression, the same sort of use might not be made out of a part of the county's payments under an income tax law.

This proposal was not received well by the proponents of the income tax who have made their chief battle on the argument that such a levy would lessen the taxation on real estate by the provision that the entire proceeds from the income tax go toward lifting school taxes. It is not believed that an attack on the Chicago program along these lines will get far.

It is agreed that a more serious maneuver is the insistence of some downstaters that Cook county carry its own load entirely by the issuance of county bonds. Downstate friends of Chicago were inclined to agree to this proposal at first glimpse, but the decision of the banks and bond houses that such securities cannot be sold is considered a complete answer to this proposal.

School Trustees Frame Reply to Kelly Economy Demands

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school board decided yesterday to reply specifically in writing to demands for economy presented by D. F. Kelly on Wednesday, and then seek a conference with the citizens' committee, which Mr. Kelly heads, on Monday. The committee is in charge of selling tax anticipation warrants to aid the local governments.

Today the school trustees will listen to those who desire to protest against the cuts in the budget already agreed upon. The discussion yesterday indicated that the budget will be passed next week. The trustees may agree to make some cuts, but it was indicated that such reductions probably will not exceed $1,000,000, as contrasted with the $9,950,000 total saving recommended by Mr. Kelly.

Will Tell of Economy.

First the trustees will attempt to convince the Kelly committee they have already done a good job of trimming in getting the budget down to $94,640,296. This is a reduction, in comparison with the 1931 budget, of $6,778,345. But in all of the two hours of discussion yesterday no trustee indicated any hope of getting $94,000,000 in taxes and other revenues this year.

No trustee questioned the forecast of Trustee Joseph P. Savage when he indicated that the board will probably owe its employées $40,000,000 in salaries and wages when the schools close next June, instead of the $24,000,000 owing at present. He phrased it this way:

"No matter what we do—and I am strongly in favor of conferring with the D. F. Kelly committee—we won't be able to pay the teachers and other employées. Perhaps the banks will give us $3,000,000 or $4,000,000, but they won't give us money in the amounts we need until taxes begin coming in. They won't give it to us because they can't do it."

Start Economy Feb. 1.

"I suggest that we put all of the economies agreed upon in effect as of Feb. 1," urged President Lewis E. Myers. "If we don't we are sunk. That can be done tomorrow afternoon or Saturday morning. That will indicate our good faith and intentions."

That program was adopted.

Mr. Kelly suggested to the board on Wednesday that no new buildings be started. The savings therefrom he estimated at $8,000,000, but he told the trustees he desired them to investigate the accuracy of the information given his committee.

The trustees decided yesterday that the saving would not exceed $4,175,000. The $28,902,000 building budget has $19,135,000 for new buildings, but of this sum $14,960,000 is represented by liabilities on buildings under construction.

Patrick Sullivan Protests.

Patrick F. Sullivan of the building trades council protested to the trustees against the elimination of the resultant $4,175,000. Trustee Walter Brandenburg asserted that the appropriations for repairs, totaling $3,583,000, "have been trimmed to the last dime," on the advice of the educational and other departments.

"Those are O. P. M. opinions," suggested President Myers. "I mean they are dealing with Other People's Money, and I haven't much confidence in the critical judgment of the educational staff on building repairs."

The other large reduction in expense recommended by the Kelly committee was the elimination of $1,000,000 in the cost of operating the schools. Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, a trustee, repeatedly urged that substantial savings be made along this line.

Won't Listen to Union.

"I'll not sit and listen to the union officials advise us what to do in this matter," she said with emphasis. "We did not call in the union teachers to advise us what we should do on list leave. The cost of operating the schools is staggeringly high. We have one so-called 'operator'—janitor, engineer, or firemen—for each four teachers, while a normal proportion would be one operator to each seven teachers."

"I have no brief for the engineers and janitors," said Trustee Savage, "but I doubt the accuracy of the comparisons presented to us which indicate that we have twice as many janitors and engineers as we should have. If the janitors and engineers were as good propagandists as the teachers, I think we would have a different story.

"The teachers work five hours a day and the engineers eight hours, and frequently longer. The teachers work 10 months a year and the engineers 12. There are different factors to be considered.

"We have cut the teachers about 16.5 per cent and other employés 14 per cent. The difference is that the teachers lose income when they do not work, while other employés are required to work without compensation."

More Cuts Called Justified.

At another point in the discussion, Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell said: "We will get no money unless we cut, and some more cuts are absolutely justified. It is ridiculous to continue some expense, even if there were no business depression. We might just as well face the music."

President Myers again urged the closing of the Normal school as one of saving an estimated $225,000. He said:

"We have two years' supply of teachers on hand by the figures of Supt. Bogan, and why train more teachers? His figures show we have 1,756 normal school graduates holding certificates to teach and no work for them. That is two years' supply by the records of the superintendent. For the school year of 1928-'29 we took in 322 new elementary teachers, in the year of 1929-'30 the number was 464 and for 1930-'31 it was 704. There is no sound reason why the Normal should not be suspended for a year."

Trustees Savage and Hefferan argued avainst the plan, and there was no vote.

PAY IN ADVANCE, PLEA IN POOR RELIEF CRISIS

Urgent appeals to those who subscribed to the Joint Emergency Relief fund went out from the relief commission's headquarters yesterday in an effort to collect payments in advance so that the charity distributing stations will not be forced to close Feb. 1. The most activicity was in the trades division and the special gifts committee, the latter headed by President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago.

"A crisis is at hand," read Mr. Hutchins' appeal. "Emergency relief stations will have to be closed unless additional cash can be raised immediately. Assistance from the legislature is hoped for, but even with favorable action from that quarter actual funds cannot be made available for several weeks. In the meantime, cash is urgently needed to keep emergency stations in existence until state aid is received.

"With a full appreciation of the generous assistance you have already given the fund, we appeal to you once more in this crisis. Will it be agreeable and convenient for you to meet all or part of the payments still outstanding on your subscription? It is desperately needed and will help meet this emergency."

California Solon Acts to Keep Filipinos Out of U. S.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—A bill to exclude Filipinos from immigration to the United States was introduced today by Representative Crail [Rep., Cal.]. Crail also introduced a bill to restrict immigration from Mexico, South America, and Central America.

MUSIC MATERIAL HELPS TO AMASS SCHOOL DEBTS

Thousands Spent Yearly for Instruments.

One of the reasons for the high cost of the public schools is the interest on debts which the board of education cannot pay. For the educational fund alone, these have accumulated until the current debts of this fund exceed $90,000,000.

Part of that debt was accumulated by the purchase of musical instruments. The board did more extensive buying in this line during 1930 than during 1931.

The 1930 purchases of musical instruments for the supply department, which in turn distributes to the schools, were as follows:

Number	Instruments	Cost.
132	Bugles	$283.20
35	Carrying cases for records	95.75
600	Castanets	275.00
300	Cymbals	165.00
480	Tambourines	150.00
75	Tom toms	131.25
100	Dozen sleigh bells	94.44
54	Field drums	462.60
36	Orchestra drums	290.70
132	Snare drums	307.92
1,750	Pairs drum sticks	182.50
48	Fifes	19.20
90	Parlor bells	157.50
50,000	Phonograph needles	15.75
700	Triangles	410.00
300	Whistles	12.00

In 1931 the board bought 480 tambourines, the same number as in 1930, but the price in 1930 was $150 as compared with $240 last year. The 100 dozen sleigh bells in 1930 cost $94.44 while the same number last year cost $120.

For the senior and junior high schools, the board purchased the following musical instruments during 1930, in addition to the supply stock presented above:

Number	Instruments	Cost.
21	Cellos	$ 740.69
30	Violas	882.49
10	Violins	82.50
4	Bassoons	428.34
49	Clarinets	1,577.78
9	Flutes	488.00
4	Oboes	192.50
4	Saxophones	301.70
2	Horns, alto	30.00
7	Horns, baritone	234.90
8	Horns, bass	440.00
15	Horns, French	806.00
36	Bugles	86.00
9	Cornets	179.00
6	Mellophones	178.15
3	Piccolos	94.20
11	Trombones	276.25
14	Trumpets	305.70
3	Tubas	179.00
2	Sets orchestra bells	47.16
7	Pairs cymbals	47.75
9	Bass drums	203.57
12	Field drums	103.80
6	Snare drums	68.50
2	Pairs tympani	183.00
1	Tom tom	4.25
860	Music stands	2,004.66
1,044	Reeds	71.35
234	Sets of strings	61.01

In addition the board bought drum slings, sticks, holders, lyres and mouthpieces to the extent of an added cost of $143.26.

Altogether the total 1930 cost of musical equipment was $13,351 as compared with $11,417 last year.

The musical instruments are part of the educational equipment in the accounts of the school board. The authority of the trustees to spend money for musical instruments is uncertain. It was started on an extensive scale when the R. O. T. C. was introduced into the schools. It was then contended that the musical instruments were for the bands of the R. O. T. C., but the purchases have since been extended to include nearly everything.

JACOBS POINTS WAY TO LOP OFF 285 COUNTY JOBS

Recommends Cut in Fee Offices.

Elimination of 285 jobs in county fee offices was recommended to the finance committee of the county board by J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer, in a meeting last night. The finance committee is preparing the 1932 budget. A committee of Circuit court judges, which was also given the recommendation of Mr. Jacobs, is expected to report to the entire Circuit bench today the number of positions recommended for each county fee office. The Circuit court is given this authority under the law.

The report showed that there were 1,951 county employés in fee offices in 1931. County officials have asked for 2,055 jobs for the coming year. Mr. Jacobs declared that only 1,666 jobs were necessary. He added, moreover, that under an effective merit system only 1,330 employés would be needed.

Discusses Merit System.

"Appointment of personnel is now based largely on the political patronage basis," read the report. "With the appointment, promotion, and retention of employé under an effectively administered merit law, further improvements in the department personnel, organization and services could be obtained."

The number of jobs in county fee offices in 1931, the number asked by officials for 1932, and the number recommended by Mr. Jacobs, both under the patronage and merit systems, are shown in the following table:

Office		1931 Jobs.	Jobs asked 1932.	Patronage sys.	Merit sys.

County Hospital Budget.

At a daytime session the finance committee considered the 1932 needs of the county hospital which must be included in the economy budget. Warden Michael Zimmer asked for an appropriation of $2,703,532. This includes the appropriation for the Cook County School of Nursing, which is now under fire as the result of purchases of expensive furniture, tableware, and linens for the living quarters of Miss Laura R. Logan, dean of nurses.

Warden Zimmer's estimate was $82,697 less than the 1931 expenditures, but the committee quickly cut $52,700 from supply and operating expenses.

Defends Food Item.

The warden asked that $220,000 for food supplies be included in the budget. This provoked comment from the commissioners, who noted that only $217,000 was spent for this item in 1931. The warden was asked if the lower price of foodstuffs did not justify a much lower appropriation for 1932.

Mr. Zimmer replied that the population at the hospital was increasing daily. The average daily population in 1930 was 2,339, it was 2,483 in 1931, and at present there are 2,679 patients in the hospital. About 35 per cent of the patients require a special diet, he declared. The food appropriation was left open for further investigation.

GIRL AIDS HOTEL ROBBER.

Accompanied by a young woman, a bandit held up the Green Briar hotel at 6220 Greenwood avenue and took $47 from Martin Brown, the night clerk early yesterday.

CANAL BUDGET CUT $7,328,075; 201 JOBS PARED

Appropriations for 1932 Approved by Trustees.

The trustees of the sanitary district yesterday adopted the 1932 budget and lopped 201 jobs from the pay roll. The budget provides for a total appropriation of $66,618,000, a reduction of $7,328,075 from the total for 1931.

The reduction included a 10 per cent cut in the salaries of all employés, trustees included, and a decrease of $11,026,000 in appropriations for the engineering department. Increased fixed charges and bills overdue from 1931 partly offset this saving.

The monthly saving of $42,176 on salaries of the 201 engineers, designers, and laborers who are to be dropped from the pay roll on Feb. 1 is not represented in the budget figures, however. The necessary appropriations were made and it was agreed by the trustees that the positions should be filled again when funds become available.

Comparison of Appropriations.

The appropriations by departments for 1931 and 1932 are compared in the following table:

	1931.	1932.
Engineering	$41,897,376	$30,871,000
Law department	1,053,684	470,000
Illinois valley	117,874	110,000
Clerical	221,510	206,000
Treasury	8,700	7,000
Trustees	90,800	84,000
Gen. & fix. charges	2,992,600	3,929,000
Bond and int.	27,563,530	30,589,000
Pension	.....	352,000
Total	$73,946,075	$66,618,000

"When it is realized," said Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, "that the 1932 figure includes approximately $2,400,000 of unpaid bills and contractual obligations accrued from 1931, an increase of $4,000,000 in bonds, interest, and fixed charges, and $350,000 for pensions, it will be seen that this budget represents a reduction in fact of approximately $14,000,000."

Bowler Going to Washington.

President Thomas J. Bowler of the sanitary district will leave for Washington this morning to confer with war department officials on the order to the district to construct twenty bridges for the Illinois waterway. He will seek an extension of time and will tell the department that the district is financially unable to install lifting machinery in existing bridges or build new ones. A resolution stating this inability was adopted by the sanitary trustees yesterday. It was implied that the district doubts that it should bear the burden of this bridge building, feeling that the government should participate.

School Employes Receive Two Weeks' Pay from City

Chicago's 18,000 teachers and school board employés yesterday received a check for two weeks' pay. To date they have been paid for only two months since May 1. The funds became available when Mayor Cermak ordered that the city, out of its aggregate of funds, buy $2,500,000 in school warrants. The checks were for the last half of October.

SCHOOLS TO CLOSE IN CHICAGO HEIGHTS FOR LACK OF CASH

For want of money to pay teachers, all of the elementary schools in Chicago Heights will close for an indefinite period following today's sessions, it was announced yesterday by Supt. Floyd T. Goodyear. The closing order affects 3,300 children and 97 teachers.

Next week the Parent-Teacher association will make a house to house canvass, Supt. Goodyear said, in an effort to sell $60,000 worth of 1931 tax anticipation warrants. If their efforts are successful the schools are to reopen the following week.

The 154 teachers and janitors in the Waukegan elementary schools will not receive their pay on schedule today, it was announced last night by John E. Reardon, secretary to the board of education. Negotiations for the sale of tax warrants are under way, however, he said, and it is expected that the money will be available Monday.

How we sharpened our pencil when we cut these prices!

Whether the price tags read $65 or $80, we slashed them to $45. When we came to the $45 to $75 suits, we repriced them at $35.

But price alone, even low price, is not sufficient reason to buy any suit. These are fine worsteds, cheviots and serges, hand-tailored throughout, with style sewn into them—to stay.

Suits $35 & $45

Not in Chicago can you find better values, no matter how large the type they are printed in or how much of a newspaper page they cover.

Our statement, "Money back if you want it," tells you that here you will surely find a suit you will be proud to wear.

TWO CANDIDATES QUIT "HARMONY" SLATE OF G. O. P.

Balk at Assessment for Campaign Funds.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Hard times came a-knocking at the door of the Harding-Crowe-Emmerson-ex-city hall "harmony" group yesterday and knocked two candidates off the "harmony" Republican slate. The two who dropped off were Ald. Joseph C. Ross [Emmerson], who was slated for coroner, and Ald. William H. Feigenbutz [Emmerson-ex-city hall], sergeant at arms of the county committee, who had been put down for clerk of the Superior court.

It happened at a meeting of the group candidates at the Bismarck hotel, at which the "harmony" managers broke the news of campaign assessments. The ticket for candidates for Municipal judges was made a flat $1,500. For county candidates the slatemakers made it 5 per cent of salaries. For a $9,000 job running four years this would mean $1,800.

Two Candidates Withdraw.

Saddened expressions stole over the gathering at the 5 per cent call, which was perhaps vaguely reminiscent of brokers in 1929 yelling for margins. What with 1932 looking like a Democratic year, the assessment to some appeared highly speculative. Dr. Ross and Feigenbutz arose and took a high moral stand against gambling. They withdrew from the slate with a few remarks about the gold standard, currency vitality, stabilization of the dollar, and monetary phenomena in general.

Most of the retiring Republican Municipal judges were present. Three vacant places on the Municipal bench slate were allotted for filling: George F. Harding is to pick one candidate for judge, Ald. William V. Pacelli is to pick another, and Andrew C. Metzger will select the third. The meeting was presided over by Ald. Oscar Nelson, floor leader of the city hall machine that was thrown out last April and a slate candidate for a Superior court vacancy.

Meanwhile, Dr. William E. Buehler, chairman of the Pontiac division of the pardon board and chief of the governor's staff, earlier in the day gave the harmony slate a push by circulating petitions for nomination for coroner.

Malone Challenges Opponents.

Reapportionment and taxation without representation surged in with the wet and dry question last night as top notch issues in the campaigning for the Republican nomination for governor.

William H. Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission, sent out letters to three other Republican candidates inviting them to meet him downstate on the platform and argue the reapportionment issue. He made a challenge to Omer N. Custer to meet him in open debate in Custer's home town of Galesburg, another to Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom for a similar argument at Aledo, and one to Len Small at Kankakee.

Sees Convention as Illegal.

Malone's challenges followed his recent open letter to Gov. Emmerson protesting that a constitutional convention, as asked by the governor in his special session call, would be illegal, because the delegates could be elected from the legislative districts, now thirty years old, and a minority would be able to write any proposed new constitution. At his meeting last night Malone said:

"For 20 years the governor and members of the assembly have taken the oath to support the state constitution with their fingers crossed. Nothing could be more hypocritical than to see lawmakers passing laws and providing heavy penalties to insure their enforcement and at the same time flouting the basic law of our state.

"My three opponents have, by their public utterances, taken the position that the people are not entitled to equal representation. Mr. Custer, Mr. Carlstrom, and Mr. Small are opposed to placing all of the people of Illinois on the same footing as the citizens of their home towns of Galesburg, Aledo, and Kankakee."

Candidates Custer and Carlstrom have taken positions for restricting Cook county to control of one house, downstate to control the other house.

William H. Dieterich of Beardstown, congressman at large, appeared yesterday to be slated by the Democrats for United States senator.

Painters and Paperhangers at Peoria Accept Wage Cut

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Peoria painters, paperhangers, and decorators today accepted a 12½ per cent reduction in wages, cutting their scale to 87½ cents an hour. Other trades unions in Peoria may accept similar reductions.

Expert Calls Federal Reserve Scope too Narrow in Crisis

H. P. WILLIS.

A "hands off" policy is the best for the federal reserve system to follow in times of depression, according to H. Parker Willis, professor of banking, Columbia university. He delivered the second lecture yesterday in the institute on "Gold and Monetary Stabilization" now being held at the University of Chicago under the Norman Wait Harris Foundation.

Prof. Willis, who was director of research of the federal reserve board from 1918 to 1922, argued that the reserve system has a fundamental flaw in that it has no direct dealings with the borrowing public, and this makes it hard for reserve policy to react directly upon domestic business, although it is felt in foreign trade. Among his conclusions he declared that the present setup destroys the possibilities of credit control by the federal reserve and that a central bank is "a dangerous agency through which to undertake inflation."

No Access to Public.

"The fundamental flaw in the structure of federal reserve banking," said Mr. Willis, "is found in the imperfect means of access granted to the public with respect to federal reserve banks by reason of the fact that the reserve banks are bankers' banks which deal only with member institutions.

"It is the price paid for the original adoption of the federal reserve act, which could not perhaps have been passed had it adhered to the world tried principles of European central banks by giving access to the public in direct dealings between borrowers and reserve institutions.

"Changes in the policy of the Bank of France were immediately felt by the business world in the form of changes in the bank rate at its hundreds of branches. Changes of policy at the Bank of England are immediately made known to the community through its extensive dealings in bills and other marketable paper.

Limited Scope in U. S.

"In the United States the federal reserve banks have found themselves confined to the comparatively limited group of institutions which deal in government bonds and obligations generally and in bankers' acceptances, and they have refrained from even exercising the open market powers which were given to them for direct dealings in commercial paper.

"One of the reserve banks even restricts its dealings as a rule to persons or institutions which are in possession of a capital of one million dollars or over.

"In these circumstances it is of course exceedingly difficult for changes of reserve policy to react directly upon domestic business or trade. They are far more likely to operate upon the sensitive mechanism of foreign financial markets and to influence the movement of funds between the United States and foreign countries."

BRUCKER SPEECH IS SEEN AS BID FOR RE-ELECTION

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Wilber M. Brucker chose the annual meeting of the Michigan Association of Supervisors, which closed here today, to launch unofficially his campaign for reëlection.

The governor did not definitely declare himself in the race, but the trend of his discussion, defending his administrative policies, praising his department heads, and promising further reforms in the future were taken by political observers as an announcement.

Gov. Brucker stressed the point the general fund has emerged "from the red" for the first time since last spring and that governmental economies have resulted in a cash balance comparable with that of last year at this time, in spite of reduced tax collections.

COUNTY SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT HIT BY LOWDEN

3,000 Cheer Speech at Farm Session.

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Nearly three thousand Illinois farmers, attending the largest banquet in the 16 years of the Illinois Agricultural association's history, heard former Gov. Frank O. Lowden doom the present economic and ineffectual local government system and the unnecessary taxing burden it has brought upon prosperity.

FRANK O. LOWDEN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Cheered by his agrarian admirers for ten minutes on their feet, Mr. Lowden derided the antiquated county system of government and proposed in its stead the consolidation of local governments and reorganization of the taxing units to which the larger part of our taxes now go.

Cites Cook County.

"It is often said that we have too much government," Mr. Lowden declared. "At any rate we have too many governments. An extreme illustration is Cook county. All the activities of the county, social, economic, and political, revolve around Chicago. In fact, Cook county comprises only a part of the metropolitan district of which Chicago is the heart. Portions of other counties are as directly related to Chicago as Cook county. Yet the county alone contains within its borders 392 independent local governments. Is it any wonder Chicago with all its vast resources should be in financial distress?"

Mr. Lowden launched a tirade against the peril of continued federal expenditures which were causing billions in deficits. Referring to Germany's nearness to collapse because she could not balance her budget, and Great Britain being "in financial distress threatening the credit structure of the world," for the same reason, he asked:

"Are we in America sure that the same danger does not threaten us? Isn't it time for us to take warning from what is happening all round the world?"

Agriculture, he pointed out, has used its best weapon during a long period of deflation, that of organization and the development of coöperative marketing.

Assails Attitude of Banks.

"Tariffs in imitation of or in retaliation for our own have been adopted by most of the world, with an ever narrowing market for the products of the farm," he said. "Manufacturing industries of this country are increasingly transferring their operations to foreign lands. These factories, erected with American capital and employing foreign labor, can scarcely add to the home market for wheat, cotton, corn, and live stock. Yet this has been the basis of appeal to farmers for their support of a protective tariff."

Mr. Lowden also criticized the attitude of banks and the federal reserve system toward what constitute liquid assets.

"Our bankers tell me that they have lost more money on bonds which they were compeled to buy than they have on all the loans they made to farmers. Yet these bonds have been approved by bank examiners in preference to loans to farmers for legitimate purposes. Bankers seem to think it is no longer respectable to own land, the source of wealth for which man has worked and fought through history."

Earl Smith Also Speaks.

Earlier in the day, Earl Smith, president of the State Farm bureau of 60,000 members, declared that so long as less than a majority of farmers were unorganized, the keynote of the Illinois Agricultural association must be further organization of farmers.

At the close of the banquet tonight Mr. Smith was reëlected president of the association and A. R. Wright of Varna, Ill., was reëlected vice president.

LONG IS BOOMED FOR PRESIDENCY IN HOME STATE

New Orleans, La., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Louisiana politicians are running around in circles tonight and apparently do not know what it's all about. This condition was brought about by the sudden departure of Senator Long from Washington. He will arrive here tomorrow morning.

He will be greeted by the announcement that the Democratic state central committee in session here has gone on record as boosting him for President of the United States.

Road Work Discontinued.

The politicians seem more concerned about the senator's return than they do about his being mentioned for the presidential nomination. One report has it that Long is returning to Louisiana because of Gov. King's slashing of the state highway pay rolls and the discontinuance of road work. It is said that at least 2,000 men will be laid off and that Mr. Long intends to see that is friends are kept on the pay roll jobs.

He is also worried by the audit of the state highway funds, which shows that the state aready has out promissory paper of $12,000,000, drawn against the proposed $35,000,000 authorized bond issue, which has not been sold.

Cyr May Be Cause.

Some politicians seem to think that Paul N. Cyr's contemplated ouster suit against Gov. King has had something to do with Senator Long's return. Dr. Cyr says: "There is no doubt that I am governor now and am only being kept out of office by the force of arms."

Senator Long announced that he was coming here to take his family back to Washington. This is not regarded seriously.

TON OF FLASKS STOLEN.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Five hundred dollars worth of aluminum flasks, weighing a ton, used in moulding, were stolen from a storehouse in the William Moulds company, brass foundry. The flasks were stored a month ago with other materials in the rear of the plant.

MASSIE DEFENSE IN NEW FIGHT TO KILL INDICTMENT

May Remove Murder Case from Hawaiian Court.

HONOLULU, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A second attack on the validity of the second degree murder indictment against Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three navy men in the lynching of a Hawaiian charged with assaulting Mrs. Fortescue's daughter, was made by defense forces today.

At the same time there remained the possibility that the accused navy men might be taken out of the jurisdiction of the civil courts and tried by court martial. Barry S. Ulrich, special prosecutor, said this had been considered but no definite move had been made.

The new attack was in the form of a supplementary motion to quash the indictment, being similar to a motion filed yesterday by defense attorneys charging Judge A. M. Cristy had coerced the grand jury into returning the indictments.

Judge Christy, it was revealed in a transcript of the grand jury proceedings, had declined to accept the report until notified an agreement had been reached on the second degree murder indictment.

Will Seek Freedom Today.

Official circles also discussed the possibility that congress might be asked to enact special legislation transferring the case to other courts. In Washington, Representative Chapman had indicated such legislation would be sought.

Two of the defendants, Mrs. Fortescue and her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, are expected to seek bail at their arraignment in territorial court tomorrow.

The other two, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, were said by attorneys to be without funds. They are enlisted men. All four have been held in custody of naval officers at Pearl Harbor since the abduction and slaying Jan. 8 of Joseph Kahahawai, accused of raping Mrs. Massie, wife of the lieutenant, last September.

The supplementary motion charged the indictment was invalid because it did not represent the true findings of the grand jury.

Ready to Report "No Bill."

Members of the investigating body, the supplementary motion said, informed Harry A. Franson, the foreman, last Friday they were ready to report a "no bill," but in appearing before Judge Cristy the foreman disregarded the instructions and told the judge the jury had nothing to report.

Judge Cristy, the motion said, thereupon stated he refused to accept the report. The jury recessed at midday, but later met and returned the indictment.

2 SHOT IN BANDIT BATTLE AT HOME OF ALD. ANDERSON

A state highway policeman and a bandit were wounded in a gun battle during a robbery in the home of Ald. Louis B. Anderson of the 2d ward at 3800 Calumet avenue early this morning. All concerned are Negroes.

Four bandits invaded the alderman's home. They forced Ald. Anderson, his daughter, Mrs. Jessica Kelly, and State Policeman Charles Greer, 3637 State street, into a bedroom on the first floor. Then they locked the door and ordered Ira Kelly, the alderman's son-in-law, to lead them upstairs "to the safe." Finding no safe, they robbed Kelly of $200 and marched him downstairs.

One of the robbers opened the bedroom door to get at the imprisoned victims. But Greer was waiting for them, gun in hand. As the door swung open he fired. One of the robbers cried in pain and backed away. His companions, however, blazed away into the darkened room and struck Greer in the right arm. Several bullets missed the alderman and his daughter. The four bandits escaped as Greer still fired. Greer was taken to the Provident hospital.

ACCUSE ONE OF AKRON CRITICS OF STEALING PLANS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—One of the two authors of a charge that the airship Akron might burst in mid air because of hidden flaws was accused today by his former employer of "stealing" plans of a naval vessel.

At the same time, naval experts joined Paul W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation, in denying before the house naval committee that there were any defects decreasing the ruggedness and safety of the ship.

Litchfield insisted W. B. Underwood of Madisonville, Tenn., was not discharged because he criticized the craft, but because "we found him taking government drawings of a naval vessel out of the shop."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MORE TRANSPORT REGULATION.

Senator Hiram Johnson wants the shipping board to regulate transportation on the inland waterways, as the interstate commerce commission regulates the railroads. Various objections to provisions in the measure proposed, senate bill 1,963, are urged by organizations interested in the development of inland water transport, such as the Ohio Valley Improvement association and the National Industrial Traffic league, but apart from these details the general purpose of the bill is fallacious. What transportation in the United States and a good part of business enterprise needs is not the extension of government regulation, but relief from it.

Modern water transport in the United States is in its infancy, and to entangle it in bureaucratic control will certainly retard its growth if not strangle it. The plight of the railroads ought to be a warning. Instead of strictly confining reform to restraints of law upon the evils which sprang up in competition we put upon a government agency the impossible task of regulating the immensely sensitive and complicated rate structure of the railroads, with the inevitable result that rates are generalized without relation to practical conditions of traffic and made rigid to an extent profoundly injurious to the carriers, shippers, and the public. Healthy adjustment has been blocked and the carriers have been unable to meet effectively new forms of competition and changing conditions. To impose this upon inland waterways is folly, only conceivable by minds obsessed by the fallacy of government control as a panacea for all ills, real or imaginable.

The Johnson bill, as the Ohio Valley association points out, would put every small carrier under regulation, imposing the duty of filing tariff and reports and trotting to the shipping board for permission to do this and that, a prospect which the lover of bureaucracy enthusiastically welcomes—for other people—but which is a deadly burden on any enterprise. The nation needs a transportation system coördinating not in a straitjacket of bureaucratic rules but on a basis of profitable coöperation, with government intervention restricted to plain general considerations of the public interest. To thrust another agency of minute regulation into the field of transportation insures not only the suppression of initiative and enterprise in our reviving water transport, but a pest of bureaucratic squabbling between the commission and the board.

The Johnson bill is reactionary, not progressive. It will retard water transport development as railroad regulation has retarded railroad development, and for the same reasons.

GOVERNORS IN LOUISIANA.

Gov. Paul N. Cyr has again taken the oath of office as governor of Louisiana, but he cannot get in the governor's office at Baton Rouge because it is occupied by Gov. Alvin O. King, who was named governor by Gov. Huey P. Long when Gov. Long went to Washington to take the oath as United States senator. Gov. Long had sworn that Gov. Cyr should never be governor and Gov. King, having accepted the appointment as governor from Gov. Long, has the governor's office barricaded. Gov. Cyr, who was elected lieutenant governor, is considering ways and means of getting Gov. King out. There is also another governor whose name has been forgotten. He was a citizen of no previous distinction who concluded, not without his show of reason, that Louisiana was a state wherein any one could be governor.

Nothing in which Gov. Long is an engaged combatant could be called a war of the roses, but the citizens of Louisiana may find this civil strife quite as disturbing before the dynasties are worn out. It will be perplexing enough to choose the right colors and swear the safe allegiance. If the embattled governors all take to levying taxes it will be ruinous.

AMERICAN INFLUENCE IN DARTMOOR.

One of the inquiries made to discover the reason for the uprising of English convicts in the Dartmoor prison was whether there was any considerable number of American born or of men of American experience among the prisoners. The elan of the riot seemed to indicate American inspiration and technique, but apparently this idea reflected unworthily upon the spirit of the English criminal, although when search was made for any like incident in British history it was necessary to go back to 1815, when American prisoners of war in Dartmoor revolted against prison treatment.

It may be that American movies have suggested to the British new possibilities of life within prison walls, but these possibilities are not all violent and disorderly. They contain intramural sports, music and dramatics. If many Americans were in Dartmoor it would soon be found that the institution had Rugby and soccer football teams, a crew, a student council, a council on foreign relations, a branch of the English Speaking union, a Sulgrave Manor chapter, a theme song, a college yell and homecoming days. A riot alone and by itself is not sufficient evidence that Americans are in the prison population.

AN UNFORTUNATE DIVERSION.

In his instructions to the grand jury directing that body to investigate remarks made by the president of the crime commission upon certain unnamed judges, Judge Fisher is reported to have used the following language:

"There is in existence in Chicago an organization known as the Chicago Crime commission. Its president is a certain Mr. Loesch. Henry Barrett Chamberlin is its operating director. There are a number of directors and this organization is, I am told, an incorporated body."

Although this was quoted as verbatim, we are reluctant to believe that it faithfully reports the attitude of Judge Fisher toward the crime commission and its distinguished president, or the spirit in which he would have had the grand jury proceed with the inquiry he directed it to undertake. As reported, the language imports by obvious innuendo a contempt of the conspicuous public service of the one and of the high and nationally known character of the other. Unless Judge Fisher assumed an unfortunate ignorance of our civic affairs in the grand jury we can hardly believe that he would have felt it necessary to inform them in such phraseology that "there is in existence in Chicago an organization known as the Chicago Crime commission." There is indeed such an organization, established 13 years ago by no less a civic body than the Chicago Association of Commerce and largely supported by it. The crime commission is not only in existence, but its services to the community are known not only to our citizens but throughout the country. As for its president, described in the language reported as Judge Fisher's as "a certain Mr. Loesch," he enjoys not only among the reputable citizenship of Chicago but in the United States generally a high repute, earned by notable activities in the cause of good government.

Perhaps it is unfair to Judge Fisher to credit him with the innuendoes his language as reported must convey to the public, for they suggest a hostility to the crime commission and its president we should deplore in any responsible citizen and especially in any public spirited official. Errors of judgment, if they have been committed by either, certainly have not justified disparagement of their great and repeatedly demonstrated usefulness, and it can only react against any one who attempts such disparagement. The crime commission is indeed "in existence" and will continue to exist, we are confident, as long as its service continues to be as valuable and as necessary as it has proved to be. And as for "a certain Mr. Loesch," he is in fact a very certain Mr. Loesch. He is as certain as any citizen we know to be in the thick of every fight our citizens wage for better government.

Meanwhile the responsible citizenship of Chicago cannot but regret that in the midst of our struggle to better the defenses of the community against organized crime and its allies, corrupt politics and complaisant officialdom, there should arise any differences among those who should be united for the public welfare.

Editorial of the Day

WHO DARES?

[Chicago Daily Times.]

Historians some day will tell us interesting things about how our public sentiment has been changing during these gloomy, prohibition-depression years. Some day people will see psychological changes as clearly as we now see material upheavals.

Prof. E. R. A. Seligman, economist of Columbia university, sums up some of the material changes in our national finances. He says if Uncle Sam taxed distilled and fermented liquors now he'd collect, based on past figures, about a billion dollars a year. This revenue would make federal income taxes, and even tariffs, unnecessary. He says the United States has "voluntarily abandoned the chief source of revenue upon which every other civilized country depends."

There speaks the economist. Psychologists some day will tell us of another change, much graver, that has come upon us . . . the lack of confidence in majority opinion, and in its ability to bring about wise changes. People, more and more, are blaming the depression on "higher ups"—and not doing what they themselves can to restore business. We're not exactly afraid, we're fatalistic. And prohibition must share part of the blame for the unusual feeling of fatalism.

Why? Many millions of our people believe prohibition was a wartime measure. At least it was adopted in a period when those of us who were not in France on war duty were still in the wartime frenzy to accept anything that was proposed for the general good. When the frenzy left us we saw clearly that the government couldn't make a success of prohibition. We saw bootleggers rising to wealth beyond the dreams of avarice, and to political power. We saw more saloons [speakeasy, modern slang] than ever before.

We know that the fall down of prohibition has created one of our most serious domestic problems since the civil war, yet we have the deadening knowledge that our national constitutional structure is so unwieldy that it gives thirteen of the 48 states the power to make whatever change is necessary a herculean task. Worse, we have the spectacle of our national political parties, led by timid men, straddling and twisting in their efforts to avoid recognition of popular will. As a result, Washington—the White House and congress—stands pat on the dry side. So millions of Americans have come to say: "What's the use? You can't buck the Washington bigwigs; they're dug in too solidly. I've only one vote—and no control of the issues to use it on. My government doesn't seem to care what I think. What's the use?"

This fatalism, born of the failure of our national leaders on prohibition, has carried over into the depression. We tell the people to get rid of fear, to start buying, spending, building, traveling—so that money will circulate and men and women can go back to work. We appeal to the people to will the return of prosperity. But we forget that the people have lost faith in their own will by their experience on prohibition. They have a will to have something done about prohibition, but that willing has been ineffective. Nothing has happened. The "higher ups" have blocked them, the people say to themselves. And from this state of the public mind comes at least part of the public belief that some indistinct "higher ups" must do something about the depression before the people can pull their own oar.

Prohibition has caused the public mind to doubt its own powers. That's a fact for our industrial and political leaders to recognize when they ask the public mind to cast out its fear in order to beat the depression.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By R. L.

JOHN DOE APOLOGIES.

The repeated mussing up of American ministers and consuls in various countries all over the world and the tardy apology made afterwards suggests that something drastic should be done. We do not wish to intrude in the province of the excellent Mr. Stimson, the w. k. secretary of state, but we have an excellent idea, if we do say it as shouldn't. Let all foreign nations keep a stack of John Doe apologies in Washington. Then whenever a U. S. diplomat is assaulted in a foreign country the representative of that country, as soon as he sees mention of the incident in the newspapers, can immediately fill out the John Doe apology and send it to the agitated Mr. Stimson, who is always soothed and comforted when he receives an apology. The John Doe apology could follow this form:

To the Secretary of State of the United States of America:

Honored Sir: The government of (here insert name of country that is doing the beg your pardon thing) is desolated, extremely sorrowful, and almost frantic with grief that the highly respected U. S. minister (or U. S. consul or vice consul, as the case may be) while going about his duties in our delightful country (write to our Minister of Travel for handsomely Illustrated Tourists' Guide) was unfortunately set upon by some of our——

- ☐ Soldiers.
- ☐ Peasants.
- ☐ Street urchins.
- ☐ Poor illiterates.
- ☐ Policemen.
- ☐ Constabulary.
- ☐ Ignoble herd.

(Place cross in square in front of name of offenders.)

And we regret to report that your highly esteemed and much valued minister, consul, or other representative was——

- ☐ Punched on the snoot.
- ☐ Chased down an alley.
- ☐ Pelted with decayed eggs.
- ☐ Kicked in the pants.
- ☐ Stood on head.
- ☐ Thrown in mud puddle.
- ☐ Pulled around by ears.

(Place cross in appropriate square.)

The government of (insert here name of country in which indignity occurred) hereby expresses to the United States of America its profound grief, horror, dismay, and lamentations over this most shocking occurrence and offers its deepest, profoundest, and most sincere apologies. If the honorable Secretary of State of those United States of America will kindly place cross in square in front of punishments named below we will take great pleasure in immediately inflicting said penalty upon the person or persons who so vilely, rudely, maliciously, and unwarrantedly attacked the official representative of the great United States of America, with whom we wish always to live in peace, amity, concord, understanding, and brotherly love.

- ☐ Boiling in oil.
- ☐ Beheading.
- ☐ Hanging by the neck until dead.
- ☐ Fine of thirty days' pay and suspension from duty for two weeks.
- ☐ No present from Santa Claus next Christmas.
- ☐ Slapping three times on left wrist.
- ☐ No half holiday next Saturday.

Trusting your excellency will accept this most abject apology and indicate what punishment shall be inflicted upon the lowdown splinters of Hell's midnight that caused this most regrettable incident I remain (king, prime minister, general, chief of staff, chief of police, town marshal, keeper of dog pound, or other official) of (name of country where disturbance occurred).

SONNET XLVIII.

FOR C.

Keep this for me as though you kept a dream, fearing a little that the dreamer wake, fearing a little that the thing might break of its own weight, and be not as it seem.
Yours are the hands, so smooth, so clean and strong,
that know how to hold a delicate thing like this,
yours are the hands that touch me as a kiss touches the soul, and drifts away on song.

See how I trust the smile that warms your eyes, know that your thoughts to me are as the sea,
deep, and cool, and fragrant as the night.
That is as you must be to find what lies within this little thing I give of me into your keeping, for your dear delight.

TRUE BLUE REPUBLICAN, G. G. K., One of Lincoln's Boys and William B. Fox have written letters cheering us on in our great work of organizing our "Draft Dawes for President Club." Gentlemen, we welcome your support; we thank you for your enthusiastic reception of our suggestion; we will keep up the good work. BUT, gentlemen, understand one thing, we absolutely decline to be the one who calls upon Charles to acquaint him with the idea. Hellen Maria, we're not looking for trouble! Nevertheless, Mr. Dawes now being in Washington or somewhere down east (we hope), we bravely step forward and, again raising our feeble voice, we shout: "Draft Dawes for President!" (Note to our office doorman: If somebody smoking a sort of upside down pipe and looking pretty mad comes up to see us tell him we have just broken a leg and been taken to somebody's hospital—you don't know which one.)

THE JAPS have taken Shanghai and war clouds are hovering low all around the globe. Whatever became of the Kellogg peace pact, the league of nations, and the disarmament conferences, anyhow?

A WAY TO EASE PAIN.

SOME years ago we published a method of relieving the pain of toothache that had long been used by Dr. J. E. Keefe. It consisted of injecting alcohol into the nasal cavity. This method has been found to ease the pain of toothache and to keep the patient comfortable for several hours. Since toothache tends to come and go, this treatment often seemed to effect a cure. It cured, in a sense, until such time as the stage was set for another attack and, in some cases, the second attack was slow in coming.

While this procedure was original with Dr. Keefe, a method of relieving some cases of headache by a method of depending on the same principle was used by Dr. Sluder nearly thirty years ago. Now physicians have a modification of the same method, which they use for the relief of symptoms of other kinds, as well as pain, located in many other parts of the body as well as in the head area.

The modified method consists in applying local anesthetics by means of a small pledget of cotton wrapped around the end of a nose probe or applicator. The solution used is a watery 50 per cent solution of butyr and 1 to 1,000 epinephrin. The swab, moistened with this solution, is passed through the nose to a depth of about two and a half inches, and then brought in contact with one wall of the passage from the nose to the throat back of the palate. The cotton is left in position for five minutes.

A person suffering from symptoms for which relief is sought has the application made through the left nostril. If it does not give relief in five minutes it is withdrawn and a similar application is made through the right nostril. If no relief follows it is taken as a sign that the method is not suited to that case. If application to one side gives relief, thereafter treatment is limited to applications made through the nostril on that side. A case is not considered relieved unless the symptoms disappear and remain away for four hours.

Dr. H. Byrd, who reports very extensive use of the method, has seen it give relief in cases of the following long list of disorders: Angina pectoris, high blood pressure, Buerger's disease, tachycardia, dyspnea, cardiospasm, hiccup, asthma, chronic pain after herniotomy, diarrhea, renal colic, gallstone colic, frequent urination, pain of cystitis and ovaritis, dysmenorrhea, vomiting of pregnancy, pain from cancer, bunions, flatfoot; chronic tender spots around head, neck, breasts, lower border of ribs, end of spine; sciatica, lumbago, polyneuritis, pleurisy, arthritis, gout, writer's cramp, chorea of leg and arm, vertigo, nausea and vomiting, acute hyperthyroidism, and shingles. To these are to be added toothache and some kinds of headache.

Dr. Byrd reports especially good results in treating lumbago. After one or a very few applications the pain and stiffness disappeared, and, in some cases, has not returned.

LOOK TO YOUR FRIENDS.

J. W. writes: My habits are clean. I wash my hair every week, but still I am troubled with lice and nits. I fine-comb my hair thoroughly after each washing, but two or three days after they seem to have come back again. Now, is there any remedy I can use?

REPLY.

Clean associates are more important than clean habits. Kerosene is the standard remedy for this purpose. The infestation is widespread and the remedy is widely known. The business is keeping up the dividends on Standard Oil. Use warm vinegar for a chaser. And—can some friend.

CAUSE IS NOT KNOWN.

A. C. E. writes:
1. What is a duodenal ulcer?
2. What is the general cause?
3. Is it dangerous?
4. Is diet the best cure for this ailment?

REPLY.

1. An ulcer located in the first part of the small intestine.
2. I wish somebody knew.
3. Yes, sometimes it is dangerous. At others it is not so much so.
4. Some cases are cured by operation. Some by diet.

DOES NOT BECOME CITIZEN.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—Would appreciate enlightenment regarding naturalization. I am, or rather was, a British subject, having arrived in the states in August, 1923. My wife arrived two years later, along with my boy, who was then 7 months old. I recently took out my final citizenship papers and am now an American citizen. I am told that my wife, according to the British law, automatically became an American citizen, but according to the American law she must apply for her own papers in order to become a citizen. I can't conceive of anything more stupid and complicated and would therefore appreciate your view in the matter.

A. F. D.

Under the act of Sept. 22, 1922, a foreign born woman does not become an American citizen through the naturalization of her husband after that date, but must apply for naturalization in her own name.

CONSULT PASSPORT OFFICE.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I intend to hike and work my way over to Rumania, Europe. 1. Do I need a passport? 2. Do I need any other paper or permit beside the passport? 3. Do you think I could go with just my citizenship papers? I intend to return again. J. S.

Take these matters up with the passport office in the Transportation building.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

RESULT OF NO PAY.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise me through your column whether a loan company can force us to sell our furniture if we fail to pay on the principal but have kept up the interest. I work for the county and haven't had any pay for three months. C. C. W.

It seems probable that your papers are so worded as to authorize them to sell.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

This nation has had other serious financial depressions, as the following excerpts from The Tribune files reveal. Each of these periods of hard times has been followed by periods of great prosperity.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 29, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Eddie Mack, veteran Chicago pickpocket, confessed that he was the chief of a band of four New York gunmen who executed the robbery of the Washington Park National bank. He said his mob was imported with the connivance and protection of certain policemen who wished to discredit the campaign by Chief of Detectives Nicholas Hunt and State's Attorney Hoyne to clean up the police by spreading a reign of terror in Chicago. He gave the names of policemen whom he charges with accepting bribes. The New York gangsters under arrest are Harry Kramer, Charles Kramer, Harry Feine, and Alex Brodie. In addition to these, seven accomplices, including four women, were seized. The robbers were taken in a raid on a gang hangout in a flat at 406 South Western avenue where $13,200 of the loot was recovered.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson nominated Louis D. Brandeis of Boston to succeed the late Justice Lamar on the United States Supreme court bench. The nomination created a sensation in the senate in which there was an immediate split over his confirmation. Nearly all progressive Republicans and Democrats favor his confirmation, but conservative senators of both parties came boldly into the open in opposition to him and announced they would make every effort to beat him.

WAR NEWS.—Paris reports indicate the Germans have begun a new offensive in the west. The scene is a wide front in the Artois region and extending from near Givenchy to the south of Arras. There were attacks on at least five separate points, but Paris admits losses at only one—to the west of Hill 140.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 29, 1902.

LONDON.—Dr. Abraham Kuyker, premier of Holland, has made an offer to England of the services of his government to help end the Boer war in South Africa. The Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, made the announcement in the house of commons. He said that the communication which had been received from the Dutch government is now under consideration. Further developments are expected in a short time.

NEW YORK.—Lawyers defending Albert T. Patrick in his trial for the murder of William Marsh Rice, Texas millionaire, scored their first big victory against the prosecution when they succeeded in preventing, for the time being at least, the Rice will of 1896 from going to the jury as evidence. This is the will in which Rice made the William M. Rice institute, in Houston, Tex., his residuary legatee. By the terms of the will of 1900, Patrick is substituted for the institute as residuary legatee. The latter will, according to the prosecution, was forged by Patrick.

COUNTRY BOYS MAKE GOOD.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—I would like to take issue with Cartoonist Orr. What makes the artist think that we farm boys, coming from the corn fields of Iowa and the wheat fields of Kansas, are such failures that we seek our places of lodging in the tenement section of the city and that we have to depend upon the motoring public to take us back home to see dear old mother and dad?

I can offer no statistics, but I believe I've spoken to as many city boys and country boys now living in the city as the artist has. I find that the country lad, soon after coming to the city, is holding down better jobs and more responsible ones than his city brother does.

Sure we look countryfied, green and dumb when we first come to the city, but it was not long after arriving here that we got on to the ropes and now we have just as many dates with good looking and nice girls as our city brothers do, and have money enough in our pockets to show them just as good a time.

So I suggest the next cartoon the artist draws is one in which the country boy is pictured driving up the lane leading up to the old homestead in his new roadster car with his best girl sitting at his side, taking her home to meet the folks. COUNTRY LAD.

ANOTHER LAST LAUGH.

Roselawn, Ind., Jan. 22.—Please permit me to add my heartiest indorsement to the suggestion of Mr. H. E. Walters which you published in yesterday's Voice of the People under the title "The Last Laugh."

I, too, was bullied and called a traitor, a pro-German, a hyphen, and other fancy names because I loved my country and hated to see her pursuing such a mad career of unspeakable hysterical folly. I was shadowed by spies and threatened because I insisted that we should keep our boys and our gold at home and let the European maelstrom seethe alone.

Had we minded our own affairs, Ireland, definitely freed from the affiliation which has ever been her curse, would have rapidly recovered her ancient glory as the university of the world and the Star-Spangled Banner would have waved—it is practically certain—from the arctic to the Rio Grande.

J. T. ALDRIDGE.

GOOD OLD YELLVILLE.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Just a line to express my appreciation of "Gasoline Alley" of Jan. 16. I used to live down in that country and want to go back. I could almost pick out our old house in view of Yellville. I sent copies to six of the county officers and the two local papers. E. B. GRISWOLD.

LA SALLE AND VAN BUREN.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Will some one please tell me why the Rapid Transit company doesn't change the name of their La Salle and Van Buren station to Clark and Van Buren? Not one train that I've been on has ever stopped anywhere near La Salle. Why? Ninety per cent of the passengers walk back to La Salle. BROKER.

MORE ABOUT HAWAII.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Again I write in defense of the people of Hawaii.

Most of the people here think that conditions are terrible in Hawaii just because the newspapers are full of the happenings in these Pacific isles. There must be a reason for this, and there is. In the first place, the Hawaiian newspapers [which are written in English] themselves exaggerated the situation because they saw in these two rape cases [only three having occurred in the previous ten years] a means by which the people could be stimulated to action and bring about a reorganization of the police department, which like many of the municipal police departments of the United States of America was full of graft and corruption. Incidentally, this reorganization has already taken place. In the second place, Lieut. and Mrs. Massie are people of social prominence in military and other circles and would naturally rate the headlines.

Do not get the idea that I am against the person or persons who killed one of the supposed rapists. I am all for Lieut. Massie and Mrs. Fortescue, for on taking an inventory of myself I find that I would have acted in a similar manner. What I am against is the manner in which the people of and the conditions in Hawaii have been grossly misrepresented, just because five criminally inclined youths in these islands attacked a lady, something which happens in every city in the United States and in most cases more frequently.

One of the Chicago papers depicted Honolulu as being a city full of vice. This is not true. However, I will say that whosoever in Honolulu reaps when vice flourishes can thank the noncommissioned element of the United States army and navy. RODNEY T. WEST.

PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER.

Webster, S. D., Jan. 22.—I would like to call your attention to the financial condition of our little town of 2,000 population, situated in the north central part of South Dakota. On Jan. 1, 1932, this city had a surplus on hand of $18,670.34, consisting of cash and Liberty Loan bonds and no indebtedness. Also the county [Day county] has no indebtedness. I am chairman of the finance committee of the city council and think this a good showing compared with other cities, both large and small. Some of your large cities, like New York and Chicago, might come out here and find out how we do it. W. B. STEVENS.

KAYO AS AUTHOR.

Jacksonport, Wis., Jan. 14.—It has often been said that Moon Mullins writes the editorials for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, but after reading the two recent editorials on the great state of Wisconsin I feel that Kayo could have done better. CHARLES E. BUTLER.

IT CAME TO LIFE.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Meticulous means timid, and the word is obsolete. [Webster Dict., Unab. Ed., 1924.]

But now even our Mr. J. O'Donnell Bennett has perverted the dead word to an incomprehensible meaning.

1931 A RECORD YEAR IN U. S. FOR BANK FAILURES

Chicago District, with 630 Total, Leads Nation.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—More banks failed in 1931 than in any other year on record, according to a report made public by the federal reserve board. During the year 2,290 banks in the United States closed their doors to the public on account of financial difficulties.

The deposits, according to the report, aggregated $1,759,484,000.

Of the total number, 410, with deposits of $473,406,000, were national banks; 108, having deposits totaling $302,762,000, were state banks; while the great majority, 1,772, with deposits of $983,316,000, were nonmember banks.

Chicago District Leads.

With a total of 630, the Chicago federal reserve district had more bank failures during the year than any other similar division in the country, according to the report. The second largest number of failures occurred in the Minneapolis district, where 271 closed their doors. Eighty banks suspended operations in the New York district, while the lowest number of failures was in the Boston district, with only 33 reported.

By far the greatest number of failures in the Chicago district were nonmember banks, according to the report, which showed that of the 630 total 527 were in this category. Seventy-one national banks and 32 state banks failed in the district, the figures showed.

The total deposits of the suspended banks in the Chicago district aggregated $444,774,000, it was stated. Of these deposits $252,992,000 was in nonmember banks, $100,956,000 in state banks, and $90,826,000 in national banks.

Compared with Other Years.

The 1931 total of failures compares with 1,345 in 1930, 642 in 1929, 491 in 1928, and 4,830 in the decade between June 30, 1914, and June 30, 1928.

During 1931, the report showed, 271 banks, which had closed either during the year or previously, reopened their doors. These banks, it was shown, had deposits totaling $157,936,000. In the Chicago district 36 banks reopened during the year, with deposits amounting to $26,815,000. The largest number of reopenings took place in the Richmond district, the report showed, where 33 institutions resumed business.

CLOSE MENDOTA PAIR OF BANKS; PLAN A NEW ONE

Mendota, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The First National bank of Mendota and the Mendota National bank were closed today on orders of the directors. This leaves Mendota without a banking institution. Officials of the two banks announced that plans were going forward to organize a new bank, which they hope to open soon.

The banks have been closed under a moratorium proclamation issued by the mayor last Saturday, which suspended all business in Mendota for a seven day period. Yesterday a committee seeking nonwithdrawal pledges reported it was meeting with almost 100 per cent success. The closing of the banks came as a great surprise, as the moratorium was not to expire until Saturday.

Close Bank at Dubuque.

Dubuque, Ia., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The Federal Bank and Trust company closed its doors here today, marking Dubuque's first bank closing in over a half century. Total deposits of the institution were $1,741,511.

PRESIDENT LOSES 27 POUNDS SINCE TAKING OFFICE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—President Hoover has lost 27 pounds since he entered the White House. His associates attribute his drop in weight from 210 pounds to 183 to physical exercising and a regulated diet. In reducing his tendency toward a noticeable embonpoint, the President followed the advice of Commander Joel Boone, his personal physician. His exercise consisted of volley ball in the morning and long walks in the afternoon. In the matter of diet the ban was against the overconsumption of fat making foods.

The President was also induced to adopt a regular schedule in the matter of meals.

It was recalled today that the late President William Howard Taft, who, from a standpoint of weight, was the giant of all the Presidents, resorted to exercise and diet to reduce his weight. He was in the 300 pound class and the diet in his case was more rigorous than in the case of Mr. Hoover. The "Taft diet" became famous and was published all over the world. In the end Mr. Taft weighed about 75 pounds less than when he went into training.

$195,000 PAYMENT IS MADE TO CREDITORS OF A DEFUNCT BANK

Creditors of the closed South Side Savings Bank and Trust company received $195,200 yesterday as the result of a compromise offer made by the Foreman State corporation, which was accepted before Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg. The offer represents 40 per cent of the stockholders' liability of the corporation, which owned most of the stock in the bank and trust company.

The South Side Savings Bank and Trust company closed on June 8, 1931. A payment of 25 per cent to depositors has already been declared, leaving obligations of $2,400,000. Attorneys said that the compromise offer was the utmost the Foreman State corporation could ever hope to pay.

Earle S. Nelson, treasurer of the Nelson Brothers Bond and Mortgage company, paid up the company's indebtedness of $42,000 to the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, it was announced.

About $35,000 was recovered for the depositors of three closed banks by State Auditor Oscar Nelson through a settlement made with the Chicago Trust company, formerly receiver for the Citizens Trust, Roosevelt-Bankers, and Lake View State banks. While serving as receiver the trust company paid itself receiver's fees and also additional fees as "officers' salaries," according to the auditor's office. Auditor Nelson refused to approve these payments.

The First State Bank of Barrington was closed by State Auditor Nelson yesterday at the request of the board of directors. Deposits in the bank had dwindled from $730,000 in June, 1930, to $330,000 at the time of closing.

Fire Sweeps Massachusetts Church; Fireman Is Killed

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—One fireman was killed and two priests and three other men were rescued today as fire swept the rectory and church of St. Francis of Assisi, East Cambridge, the fifth Thursday morning fire of suspicious origin in the city in seven weeks. The loss was set at $25,000.

5 HURT, GASOLINE PUMPS WRECKED BY AUTO CRASH

Cab Driver Held in Death of His Passenger.

Five persons were injured, one seriously, in a collision of two automobiles last night at Mannheim road and Grand avenue, Franklin Park, in which both cars overturned and one caught fire. One of the machines wrecked two gasoline pumps at a filling station at the intersection.

Three of the injured, Stephen Remington, 32 years old, of 6731 Albion avenue, Norwood Park; his wife, Margaret, and their child, Stephen Jr., 1 year old, were in one car. Walter Markowicz, 24, of 2422 Rutherford avenue, and Miss Anna Gombisky, 20, of 2250 North Laurel avenue were in the other. All were taken to the Westlake hospital in Melrose Park, where it was said Remington might die.

Runs Past Stop Sign.

Police said Remington, driving north in Mannheim road, had stopped his car at Grand avenue and just started ahead when Markowicz, driving through a stop sign, crashed into his machine from the east. Remington's automobile hurtled against the gasoline pumps, knocking them down. Markowicz' machine caught fire. Andrew Sedlin, owner of the station, extinguished the blaze with chemical apparatus and prevented the flood of fuel from the broken pumps from catching ablaze.

Harry Holles, 28 years old, 3018 North Kedzie avenue, a taxi driver, was ordered held on a charge of manslaughter yesterday by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of Charles J. Gibbons, 5040 Windsor avenue. Gibbons was a passenger in Holles' cab and was killed in a collision with another car at Center and Halsted streets.

Hoodlum Is Freed.

Philip Mangano, west side hoodlum, was freed of a charge of manslaughter by Municipal Judge James F. Fardy in the Felony court yesterday. The charge involved the death of a child killed in the collision of two automobiles at Parkside and Schubert avenues on Jan. 17. Mangano was released when the court was informed that a coroner's jury had been unable to fix responsibility.

Three deaths in Cook county yesterday increased the automobile toll since Jan. 1 to 103. The victims:

Julius Celewski, 74 years old, 5118 South Marshfield avenue. Died in the Southwest General hospital from injuries received on Wednesday when he was run down at 53d street and Ashland avenue. Lawrence Kerr, 1053 South Racine avenue, was the driver.

Mrs. Johanna Erickson, 62 years old, 3020 Clifton avenue. Died in the John B. Murphy hospital of injuries received earlier in the day when she was run down by the automobile of Benjamin Buske, 35, of 2316 North Latrobe avenue, at Belmont and Ashland avenues.

Doyle Lewis, 48 years old, Negro, of 4835 Forrestville avenue. Killed last night by the car of a hit and run driver at 48th street and Prairie avenue.

ABYSSINIA APOLOGIZES FOR ATTACK ON U. S. ENVOY BY POLICEMEN

ADDIS ABABA, Abyssinia, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Spreading an elaborate ceremonial, the Abyssinian government tendered a formal apology today to American Minister Addison E. Southard for the attack made on him by native policemen about ten days ago.

The ceremony took place in the morning at the exact spot on the road where Mr. Southard was knocked down after his automobile had run over a woman's foot. A hundred Abyssinian police in full uniform were drawn up in the road. They saluted Mr. Southard while the ten offenders stood chained hand and foot.

The apology was read publicly and was followed by recital of the sentences for the culprits—prison for one year and $500 fines, which is virtually equivalent to life imprisonment, inasmuch as none of the prisoners has the remotest prospects of paying his fine.

CANNERS WANT AID OF U. S. TO STABILIZE PACK

A resoluion asking stablization of the canning industry and the adjustment of its output to market requirements was adopted yesterday in a special meeting of the board of directors of the National Canners' association in the Stevens hotel. The resolution will be submitted to the association at the closing session of its twenty-fifth annual convention today.

The resolution calls on the federal department of agriculture, through its bureau of agricultural economics, to extend its service to the canning industry to include adequate information on crop acreage and production, the amount of canned products carried over from one year to another, price ranges and other economic conditions affecting the industry.

Canning companies, it was explained, do not buy products after they are harvested, but before they are planted. They estimate the number of cases of corn they will can, according to normal consumption, and contract with farmers to plant a certain number of acres, reckoning on an average yield. A committee reported great waste, with consequent upset in price levels, has resulted from this method, which has not included consideration of carryover.

Asked if the proposed federal survey would be under the control of the farm board, officials stated it would not be.

A standing committee which controls the association's advertising funds in a meeting yesterday decided to discontinue advertising in magazines for the next year and advertise solely in newspapers.

A can of corn should not only be appetizing after it is opened, but while it is still in the can, F. L. Roeck, general manager of purchases of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, Cincinnati, told the corn section in the morning.

"The BANKERS finally got him!"

★ POPULAR FALLACIES OF BUSINESS ★

Of all the bankers I have met,
I never saw a banker yet
(And don't believe one can be found)
Who dressed or spoke or froze or frowned
Or acted or behaved, in fact,
The way he was supposed to act.

DON KNOWLTON

WHEN an enterprise fails someone is sure to whisper, "The banks stepped in and starved it" in order to "take it over." Friends of the head of the concern shake their heads and say, "There won't be much left of him when the banks get through."

A fallacy! For no one is more interested than is the banker in having his customers continue prosperous.

A bankrupt concern is usually the last thing a banker wants on his hands.

Because banks deal in credit—an intangible commodity—the service of bankers is mysterious to many people. They forget that the funds a bank may loan belong to its depositors and so must be rigidly safeguarded. The proper precautions which a conscientious banker imposes are taken to imply a grasping self-interest.

Nation's Business serves business by helping every agency in business to be better understood. It interprets the banker to the business man, the business man to the banker. Nation's Business is the only publication that views business as one whole, and whose fundamental purpose is to make possible a better, smoother functioning of the whole.

WHAT POPULAR FALLACY MISREPRESENTS YOUR BUSINESS

This advertisement, one of a series on the popular fallacies of business, is designed to serve business by creating a better understanding of its problems. As a new feature of its twenty-year-old fight against erroneous thinking, Nation's Business publishes each month a "Gallery of Popular Fallacies."

Every industry, every business, has its popular misunderstandings—real estate, advertising, medicine, architecture, construction. Write me personally of yours. They will be discussed currently in Nation's Business and, through courtesy of the National Broadcasting Company, over a nation-wide radio hook-up.

LONG FORGOTTEN RECIPES WORTHY OF BEING REVIVED

Old Favorites Will Have New Attraction.

BY FLORA MARTIN.

Why not take a few hours off some time this week to go through the assortment of recipes which have been packed away for future reference in that bottom drawer of the kitchen cabinet? Perhaps, at the bottom of them all, you'll unearth one treasured in bygone days, but gradually crowded to the background by fancier and more modern recipes.

Many of them probably will bring back pleasant memories, half forgotten in the whirl of modern times. You doubtless will run across a few old favorites, several of which you'll want to revive. All in all, it will be a great sport.

The other day while looking through a mass of recipes accumulated by various members of the family over a period of years, I found a cheap little notebook filled with recipes, a relic of grammar school cooking class days.

Memories of School Days.

Memories came flooding back of an 11 year old pig tailed girl, capped and gowned in white, learning the rudimentary laws of cooking and dishwashing in a weekly sixth grade domestic science class. And then of the same earnest cooking student experimenting at home with the recipes, which, tried and tested in class, had proved worthy of more than sampling.

But forgetting memories and getting back to the subject of the notebook, it was a sort of makeshift cookbook in which the recipes were penciled in childish scrawl. Here and there were words whose curious spelling violated all rules in the old school speller. The whole book was far the worse for wear with a few of the pages torn loose. Pages on which favored recipes were scrawled were well thumbed and carelessly spattered with spots of grease and cake batter.

A Favorite Recipe.

There was one, the favorite of them all, on which the writing was hardly discernible. It was for a coffee cake, which had proved worthy Sunday morning fare many times a decade or more ago. Many of the words were almost effaced. Fortunately, however, the faint penciled lines were still readable, so that the coffee cake can once more take its proper place in future breakfast menus.

Here is the formula as it stands in the old makeshift cook book, all written in methodical form:

1-3 cup granulated sugar.
3 tablespoons fat.
1 egg.
1 cup milk, either sweet or sour.
2¼ cups flour.
1 teaspoon baking powder and ½ teaspoon soda with sour milk.
3 teaspoons baking powder with sweet milk.
½ teaspoon salt.
For top, 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

METHOD.

1. Grease and flour two layer cake tins.
2. Sift flour, salt, baking powder, and soda.
3. Cream sugar and fat in another bowl.
4. Add egg and beat until creamy.
5. Add milk and sifted flour and then beat smooth.
6. Put into pans, brush top with melted butter, and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar mixed.
7. Bake 20 minutes; in medium oven for 10 minutes and then increase the heat so that it will brown nicely.

SPANISH GOLD NAME OF NEW AND HARDY CORN

A new sweet corn, said to rival Golden bantam, and called Spanish gold, comes to take its place among the sweet corn varieties. Spanish gold is a multiple cross developed by Dr. D. F. Jones of the Connecticut agricultural experiment station. One parent is the Cinquantino, an early, hardy corn of the Pyrenees.

The new corn is similar to Golden bantam, but hardier, earlier, and of good size and shape, acording to Prof. Paul Work of the New York State college of agriculture.

Golden gem is another early yellow corn that is widely favored, he says.

Pork Loin Roast Makes Inexpensive Sunday Meal

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states:

"In buying the meat for her Sunday dinner the housewife will find an unusual bargain this week in pork loin roast. This cut of meat is selling at low, attractive prices throughout the entire city. Pot roast of beef is also recommended as an economical buy at the present time."

It may seem a little out of season to be talking about tomato catsup now. Late summer and early fall, not January, is the really proper time to make use of the abundant supply of fresh tomatoes in catsup, chili sauce, etc., but this is an out of season recipe. It is for catsup made from commercial tomato juice. And tomato juice is now available any time of the year.

You will say this is not an economical practice. Perhaps so. I am not making that claim. I only suggest it as a simple, convenient, novel scheme to be taken advantage of if your reserve supply runs low or if you are a city apartment dweller and are denied the comforts of plenty of storage space. In these days of kitchenettes and two room apartments, the fruit cellar is becoming more and more a legend.

Use your own favorite recipe if you have one, but for your convenience I will give you mine.

To 1 gallon tomato juice add 1 large onion, grated; 1½ cups vinegar, ¾ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons salt, ½ tablespoon cinnamon, ½ tablespoon cloves, and 1 teaspoon cayenne pepper. Simmer all together until the spices have become thoroughly blended and the catsup is of the proper consistency. Pour into sterile bottles and seal air tight.

How easy, you say. It certainly is a great time saver not to have to peel all those tomatoes and extract the juice.

I like to eat newly made tomato catsup on fresh bread, buttered, as you eat bread and jelly.

CHEESE SOUFFLE.

3 tbsp. butter	½ tsp. peppery table sauce
4 tbsp. flour	3 egg yolks
¾ cup milk	3 egg whites
½ tsp. salt	¾ tsp. baking powder
⅛ cup grated chese

Make a thick white sauce of the butter, flour, milk, and salt, cooking for 5 minutes. Add the cheese; let it just melt so that it may be evenly blended with the white sauce. Cool and add the sauce, well beaten egg yolks, and lastly the stiffly beaten egg whites and baking powder. Pour into a well oiled baking dish, bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 45 minutes. Serve immediately.

Yield: Four servings.

KRAUT SCARCE THIS YEAR, DUE TO SHORT CROP

But There's Enough Left to Make Some Soup.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

There is a shortage of kraut this year.

This is particularly bad news, said Roy Irons, secretary of the National Kraut Packers' association, yesterday, in an era of flattened spirits and flattened pocketbooks, because kraut juice is one of the inexpensive effective spring tonics.

"The United States is particularly in need of sauerkraut and sauerkraut juice now," said Mr. Irons. "Health authorities recommend it for its health value. As thousands of persons are without the means to obtain a plentiful supply of food and a well balanced diet, the need for kraut to help make up this deficiency is greater than ever."

A Poor Kraut Year.

Last season there was a crop of 215,000 tons of kraut cabbage, while this year it is only 135,000 to 140,000 tons, Mr. Irons estimated.

"It is possible that the shortage may be even greater when final figures are reported," he said. "This situation is due to reduced kraut acreage, dry weather during the growing season, and the damage from plant pests."

Try These on Your Stove.

For those fortunate enough to obtain a portion of these few thousand tons still available, the Kraut Packers' association suggests two new soup recipes to vary your form of kraut consumption. Either one is a substantial soup with a predominating flavor and contains enough food value to make it an excellent luncheon dish.

SAUERKRAUT SOUP.

2 cups sauerkraut.
1-3 cup carrot.
1-3 cup turnip.
1½ cups potatoes.
⅓ onion.
1 quart water.
5 tablespoonfuls butter or other fat.
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.

Wash and prepare vegetables by cutting them in small pieces. Mix vegetables [except potatoes] and cook 20 minutes in the butter or other fat. Add water and potatoes and boil one hour. Add sauerkraut. Beat with spoon or fork to break vegetables. Add salt and paprika. Serve hot with croutons.

CREAM OF SAUERKRAUT SOUP.

4 cups hot white stock [chicken or veal] or water.
2 cups sauerkraut.
¼ cup butter or bacon fat.
1 slice of onion.
1 stalk celery cut in inch pieces.
½ bay leaf.
¼ cup flour.
2 cups milk.
Salt and paprika.

Cook onion, celery, and bay leaf in butter five minutes, add flour, add hot stock or water; add milk, allow to boil; add sauerkraut; cook five minutes more. Season with salt and paprika. Strain, return one-half of the sauerkraut to the soup. [It is rather thick if all sauerkraut is left in the soup, but if it is preferred the soup need not be strained.]

Serve with toasted bread sticks.

NEW DISCOVERIES CONFIRM VIRTUES OF BRAN IN DIET

Supplies "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

For ten years, now, millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, pleasant way to overcome common constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from this condition.

Recent laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron, by weight, as beef liver.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like the "bulk" in lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit forming.

Think how much better it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to take endless pills and drugs, which often lead to harmful habits.

Two tablespoonsful daily—in serious cases with every meal—are usually sufficient. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MILLIONS EMPLOYED IN PROVIDING FOOD FOR NATION'S HOMES

"Nearly one-half of the adult population of America is employed today directly or indirectly by the food industry," according to C. M. Chester Jr., president of General Foods corporation, who is visiting this city, accompanied by Clarence Francis, executive vice president of the same company.

C. M. CHESTER JR.

"By keeping nearly half the nation at work, the food industry has prevented general business from suffering still greater declines, and it provides a foundation for general recovery," Mr. Chester stated. "According to government records, almost one-third of all retail establishments are classified as food stores. There are between 10 and 11 million adults on farms; about 2 million person work in food stores; nearly a million in food factories, besides millions connected with transportation, making of containers, and other ramifications.

"Retail food sales total more than 11 billions yearly; adding values of food used in restaurants and institutions, exports, and food consumed on the premises—by farmers, ranchers, and fishermen—the total would reach a figure close to 20 billion dollars."

CALLS GROCERY BUSINESS MOST STABLE OF ALL

The grocery business is the most stable of all major retail businesses, the physical volume remaining about the same in hard times and good times alike, Carl W. Dipman, editor of The Progressive Grocer, New York, declared recently in addressing a meeting of the National Wholesale Grocers in the Congress hotel.

"People must eat, regardless of the times, and the per capita food consumption varies little, even though some people get their supply in a bread line," he said.

The retail grocery bill of the country was nearly $8,000,000,000 in 1931, as compared with $9,500,000,000 in 1929, Mr. Dipman said. The tonnage was greater in 1931, but the dollar volume was less, due to the price decline, he said.

DIFFERENCE IN THESE CHEESES IS ALL IN THE "I"

No discriminating cheese fancier would eat a true pimento cheese unless he were very fond of allspice flavor, yet several manufacturers are omitting an "I" in labeling what is really pimiento cheese, according to H. A. Lepper, chemist in the food control laboratory of the federal food and drug administration.

Pimento allspice is obtained from the dried, unripe, aromatic berries of the pimento tree. Pimiento, a Spanish sweet pepper, is always used in the manufacture of true pimiento cheese.

Mr. Lepper offers this explanation as a guide to cheese manufacturers and to buyers of cheese flavored with pimiento.

CHICAGOANS EAT WINTEREGGPLANT BY THE CARLOAD

Florida Supplants Cuba as Principal Source.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Whether we know it or not, we Chicagoans consume "solonacæ melongena" by the carload during winter months and even larger amounts by the truckload in summer and fall months. For that is the botanist's name for the eatable varieties of eggplant, at present coming principally from Florida.

Formerly some of the eggplants in the early months of each year came from Cuba and Florida, but low prices have discouraged the Cubans, although they are sending some of the higher priced commodities, such as cucumbers and tomatoes. The eggplant in Chicago is retailing for anywhere from 7 to 25 cents each, depending on size, but averaging around 12 to 14 cents.

Now Take Eggplant.

Before divulging more information on the winter vegetable market, it is interesting to note a scientist's study of the aforementioned eggplant which has been made the sole subject of an extensive collection and study. Varieties now number 101 in the "solonacæ" obtained by Prof. Grant B. Snyder of Massachusetts State college.

Thirty-eight sources contributed to the eggplant investigation. China, Siam, Egypt, Japan, Algeria, Bulgaria, France, England, and Canada added eggplants to the United States collection.

"Some are weak in growth and others are vigorous; some never get more than 10 inches in height, while other plants grow to more than three feet," says Prof. Snyder. The mature fruits vary in length from one inch to 25, and in color from green, red, white, cream, yellow, and violet to purple.

Spinach Is Cheaper.

To return to collection available to Chicago's green grocer and housewife, practically all of the vegetables common to home grown production are coming in quantities from the southlands. Texas red and green cabbage and radishes and spinach from the lower Rio Grande are popular commodities.

Of the spinach crop, two types are bringing different prices. The flat leaved is selling wholesale at 75 to 85 cents a bushel. From this housewives can deduce that a peck is worth around 25 cents for the flat leaved greens. The curly leaved is selling for less, being worth around 50 cents a bushel wholesale for good quality.

Shallots, turnips, and peppers are among other southern crops now coming into the northern market. One can also buy the home grown turnips harvested last fall and held since in storage houses or root cellars.

Celery Is Cheaper.

Back to the old standby, however, we find potatoes getting even cheaper than they were last fall. Two or three months ago wholesalers found that about a cent a pound was the average price for "round whites," which now are worth 70 to 80 cents a hundred or about 12 to 15 cents a peck retail. Russets and the larger baking types are worth more, shoppers find.

Celery and lettuce are comparatively cheap. Bunches of the Michigan and New York celery are worth anywhere from 6 to 10 cents retail, with some of the Florida celery higher. Head lettuce is selling for around 8 cents a head for fairly good quality.

OVERCOOKING OF VEGETABLES SPOILS FLAVOR

No longer should vegetables be coked until they are mushy and soft, but should be cooked such a short time that formerly they would have been considered "almost raw," according to Dr. Sybil Woodruff, associate professor of foods, University of Illinois. She pointed out that they retained the largest percentage of vitamins, as well as color and flower, cooked only a short time.

DEMONSTRATION OF CANNING SUCCESS

PROFESSOR FINDS EVEN A COCKTAIL HAS PERSONALITY

Even a cocktail has personality!

The best cocktails have definite characteristics involving texture and color, and these in turn bear directly upon the success of the cocktail in its dual rôle of providing an appetizer for the diners and supplying a large share of the vitamins for the meal, says Miss Ida Shilling, professor in the foods and nutrition department at Iowa State college.

Miss Shilling has found that color may be supplied in the cocktail by garnishes, red and green cherries, shreds of colored cocoanut, and bits of California grapes which now are tinted and bottled.

Vegetable coloring also may be used successfully. Green coloring may be added to juices covering pears, grapefruit, pineapple, and other fruits with pale complexions. After standing half an hour the colored fruit may be lifted out and employed as a delicate garniture.

If a little sweetness is desired, marshmallows may be used. Colored marshmallows now are found in many shops. Ingredients in these "personality plus" cocktails vary widely, depending solely upon the desires of the housewife or the fruits which she finds available, says Miss Shilling.

CANNED PEAS ARE BIGGER, BUT STILL ROLL OFF KNIFE

1932 Models Gain in Size and Quality, Say Cooks.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Fashions in vegetables obtain just as fashions in dress do, and now that canners have learned that housewives liked large peas better than small peas, they have begun canning large peas.

This was not done, however, until exhaustive research into the flavor and tenderness of large peas was made, C. B. Sayre, of the New York agricultural experiment station Geneva, N. Y., told a recent meeting of the National Canners association in the Stevens hotel.

"The prejudice against large sizes is disappearing and the market preference now will tend toward large seeded varieties of peas," said Mr. Sayre.

Can't Preserve Original Color.

Although it takes many years to produce a new variety of peas, Mr. Sayre said, and several more years to determine their commercial value, various research agencies have obtained data on hundreds of varieties.

An attempt was made to find a large pea which was not only sweet, an early variety, and tender, but which when canned would present the bright green color which fresh peas have when cooked with baking soda, he said. It was found that baking soda could not be used, however, as it lowered the vitamin content of the peas.

The tests in search of fine, large peas were begun in 1929 and extended through 1931. In 1931, 12 varieties were tested, of which the Early Canner, a new variety introduced by the Associated Seed Growers, was found to be the most successful from standpoint of flavor and tenderness.

Color Changes in Canning.

"Apparently little improvement can be made in the color of canned peas through varietal differences in the color of the raw product," Mr. Sayre said. "This is because the green color is due to chlorophyll, of which there are two forms. Chlorophyll A has a deep green color and chlorophyll B has a blue-green color. In an acid medium, which is the condition in canning, both forms are chemically changed to a dull brownish or olive green color.

"In an alkaline medium, which results when soda is added to peas, a salt of chlorophyll is formed which is bright emerald green in color. The French obtained the same result by adding a copper compound, which, of course, is not permitted by our pure food laws. Neither are canners permitted to use soda. In addition to reducing the food value of peas, it would result in an alkaline condition."

Six years' carefully observed tests have shown that early planting of peas increases the yields, and that, contrary to expectation, a rain or snow within 48 hours after planting decreases the yield, he said.

TRADES FARMS FOR BIG UPTOWN GARAGE BUILDING

M. E. Anderson Buys Clark Street Property.

One of uptown's largest garage properties, the one and two story building at 6517-29 North Clark street, was purchased yesterday by M. E. Anderson from Fred Madsen for an undisclosed consideration, subject to a first mortgage of $46,000. A farm in Wisconsin and another in Michigan were given as part payment by Mr. Anderson.

The property fronts 154 feet on North Clark street and has a depth of 100 feet. The front part of the structure is only one story, with the rear comprising two stories. It has accommodations for 125 automobiles. It is known as the Duplex garage. Joseph C. Ficklin of 105 West Monroe street was the only broker in the transaction, representing both parties.

Buys Bank Property.

The Northern Trust company, as trustee, has taken title for an undisclosed client to the northeast corner of Springfield avenue and West 26th street, 116x57, from the Twenty-sixth Street State bank for an indicated $40,000. The corner is improved with a two story building.

Robert J. Rosenberg of 520 Greenleaf avenue, Glencoe, has taken title through foreclosure to the three apartment building on the east side of Sheridan road, 100 feet north of Morse avenue, lot 40x150, from E. Philip and Ada Tuber.

Angeline G. Olson has leased from John S. Cram, trustee, the three story building at 4167 South Halsted street, 25x126, for forty years from Jan. 1, 1932, at a term rental of $28,000. The lessee purchased the building for $1,250. W. D. Kerfoot & Co. were brokers.

Buys Uptown Corner.

The apartment hotel property at the southeast corner of Kenmore avenue and Montrose boulevard, lot 63x150, has been conveyed by Louis Feder, as trustee; Abe Feder, as successor in trust, and Harry Glasser to Eras Zook.

The county records disclosed yesterday that the United States government will pay $1,400 rental annually for the postoffice quarters at 3743 Grand boulevard, in Brookfield. Charles and Helen Koenig are the lessors. The term is three years, with an option of two years' renewal. The first floor space is 23x58, with basement space in addition.

BATTLE CONVICT NEAR BUSIEST GOTHAM CORNER

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Arthur Becker, paroled Connecticut convict, wanted in that state on a charge of attempting to kill a policeman, was captured by Connecticut and New York policemen today in his room on the eighth floor in the Knights of Columbus hotel, just off Times square.

Becker, after a siege, emerged from his room, which he had barricaded against attack, with tears streaming down his face, the effects of tear gas which the police had discharged through the keyhole of the door.

When the policemen burst into the room Becker cried, "I'll surrender!" and tossed two fully loaded revolvers out the window.

Becker is wanted in Farmington, Conn., on a charge of attempting to kill Police Chief Nathan Fuller. He is known in Connecticut as a bootlegger and gambler. He was serving a ten to twenty year sentence in Wethersfield prison for attempting to kill Detective Sergeant Lawrence J. Lowe of Hartford when he was paroled in February of last year.

BILL FOR RELIEF PASSES; DOUBLES TAX ON INCOMES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—After a deadlock of more than two months the legislature today passed a relief bill to provide $7,000,000 and at least doubling every one's income taxes on 1931 earnings. The bill is certain to be signed by Gov. Philip F. La Follette.

The new emergency tax will at least double the average citizens' income tax payments. The normal income tax rate from 1 to 6 per cent is duplicated in the surtax. Incomes including dividends will be more than doubled because dividends are to be taxed in the surtax while they are exempt under the normal income tax provisions. Persons who have capital losses can subtract them in figuring their normal income tax, but cannot under the emergency tax.

Thieves Milk His Cows at Night, Farmer Charges

Mitchell, Ind., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—William T. Burton, who owns a farm near here and runs a small dairy, reports that thieves have been coming to his dairy barn at night and milking the cows. At first they stole all his chickens.

KIN ATTACK WILL GIVING $2,500,000 TO DOGS AND CATS

Claim Perpetuities Law Violation.

The opening move in a court fight which, attorneys say, will eventually be taken to the Illinois Supreme court was made yesterday when a suit was filed in the Superior court to construe the will of the late Mrs. Marion E. McConnell, a widow, who left the major portion of her $3,000,000 estate to benefit homeless dogs and cats.

The action was brought against the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company as trustee for the estate. The plaintiffs are Augustus D. Warren and Horace E. Warren, both of Putnam, Conn., and both first cousins of Mrs. McConnell. They ask that the will be declared invalid and that the estate be divided into six equal parts and immediately distributed to themselves and four other first cousins, who, they assert, are the only legal heirs.

Based on Perpetuities Rule.

Attorney Samuel S. Holmes, who filed the suit, explained that the contentions upon which the suit was filed are highly technical. The action charged that the will is void because its clauses are so framed as to violate the principle of Illinois law called the "rule against perpetuities."

The Illinois statute on perpetuities restricts the life of trust funds and contains provisions against increasing estates through restrictions on uses of incomes and profits.

The bill also charged that the paragraphs of the will which ordered that the estate be held in trust for five years subsequent to the admission to probate, violated the law against perpetuities.

Mrs. McConnell was 74 years old when she died last Oct. 25. She had been a resident of the Windermere hotel for many years. Her fortune was gained largely from the estate of her husband, Horace C. McConnell, who died 14 years ago.

Humane Societies Benefit.

More than $2,500,000 of the estate, attorneys said, was ordered held in trust for five years by the bank. The income was to be paid in shares of 40 per cent each to the Anti-Cruelty Society of Chicago and the American Humane Association of New York.

The Boy Scouts of America were to receive the remaining 20 per cent and at the end of the 5 year period the whole estate was to be divided among the beneficiaries in the same proportions as the income which had been received.

KIDNAPERS RELEASE VICTIM CAPTURED THROUGH MISTAKE

Adam J. Bartcher, 60 years old, owner of a bill distributing company at 738 West Madison street, was kidnaped late Wednesday night at 43d street and Drexel boulevard, but was released when his captors decided they had taken the wrong man. He was let out of a car near his home at 4151 Lake Park avenue about 2 a. m. yesterday.

"The three men who halted me," said Bartcher, "were Negroes. They put me in the rear of an automobile and tossed a blanket over me. They were later joined by two other men. One of the original three said to the others: 'This is Bartcher.' There was a quarrel among the men and the three Negroes put the other pair out of the car.

"I was then taken to a room. No threats were made and no money was demanded. The only way I can account for this is to assume it was a case of mistaken identity. One of the men must have been employed by me at one time, although I did not recognize any of them."

Bartcher said he employed nonunion bill distributors but had never been molested on that account.

NATION'S FIRST JOB INSURANCE BILL IS SIGNED

Wisconsin Act Permits Voluntary Reserves.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Supporters of unemployment insurance gathered in the office of Gov. Philip La Follette this afternoon to see the executive sign the Groves bill which gives Wisconsin the first law of this kind in the nation.

The group included Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber, Prof. John R. Commons, Mrs. E. B. Raushenbush, Prof. Harold M. Groves, and Henry Ohl Jr., president, and J. J. Handley, secretary, of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor.

Operation to Be Delayed.

While unemployment insurance is intended to lift some of the burden from the unemployed, the bill that became a law today is not aimed to touch conditions in the present depression and it is admitted that at best the new law is but a start in what its sponsors contend is a right direction.

The new law provides that its compulsory unemployment insurance features go into effect next year unless employers have brought 175,000 of the state's workers under a voluntary system by that time that is considered satisfactory.

The law provides that should it become effective, every employer of 10 or more people where employés are receiving less than $1,500 a year must tax his pay rolls two per cent until a fund of $75 has been built up for each employé. When an employé is laid off for reasons other than his own creation, a trade dispute or an act of God, he is entitled to draw up to $10 a week for a maximum of ten weeks.

The plan differs from the dole idea in that the reserves will not be pooled into one state fund. Each employer shall administrate his own fund and is responsible only to his own employés.

Adopts Voluntary Plan.

William Mauthe, Fond du Lac manufacturer, has already adopted a voluntary unemployment insurance plan and he advocated passage of the new law by the legislature. Other prominent manufacturers told the legislature that they have been working on similar plans of their own.

Farm labor, personal or domestic service in a home, employment on governmental relief projects, employment as an elected or appointed public officer, employment as a teacher, part time workers, employment on railroads engaged in interstate transportation and employment in logging operations are exempted under the act.

Exempt Busy Plants.

Any employer who can guarantee at least 42 weeks of work in a year with at least 36 hours in each week is to be exempted under the act.

Actual payments cannot start under the act for at least two and a half years. The law provides that a survey will be made June, 1933, to determine whether industrial records show that the compulsory act should go into effect and if the finding is positive, unemployed persons cannot start drawing insurance funds until a year has elapsed.

No Money, No Work, Is Vote of Seattle Street Car Men

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Employés of the Seattle Municipal railway voted today to strike unless their pay warrants totaling $112,000 are cashed before next Tuesday. The decision was reached by unanimous vote at a meeting of the Car Men's union. If no funds are provided by the council the men will walk out Tuesday morning.

$10,000 FARM FIRE LOSS.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Benjamin Meyers, Elkmount farmer, suffered a loss of between $8,000 and $10,000 today when fire, believed due to spontaneous combustion, destroyed his barn and all its contents. A pure bred Holstein bull, three cows and three heifers perished in the flames.

on the evidence presented by the prosecution. He made sixty separate motions asking that virtually all of the evidence be stricken from the record. Prosecutor Northup replied briefly during the afternoon session and then Judge Fisher went into conference with Judges James J. Kelly and John Prystalski, who are sitting with him in an advisory capacity, and a decision was given at once.

The only parts of the evidence stricken were as follows:

1. The part referring to the reconstructed bank records showing $418,000 in deposits by Crowe. The judges held that they could not infer that records existed which were not produced. However, evidence to bring out the fact that certain records of Crowe's bank accounts were missing was allowed to remain, as well as the evidence of the $12,700 check to which, it is charged, Crowe forged an indorsement. The remainder of Crowe's bank records also remained in evidence.

On $1,000,000 Bridle Path.

2. All the testimony relating to the $1,068,000 cinder bridle path along the north shore channel road was stricken except that part showing the amount paid by the district for the path and that showing that the fair cost of the project should have been $200,000.

3. The records of the Central Auto service, showing that the district spent $120,000 for taxicab hire, were stricken because the judges said the real facts about them were not put into evidence. This was because John Saracino, head of the company, and Miss Nettie Clint, bookkeeper, dodged subpoena servers.

4. The evidence relating to the burning of sanitary district records was stricken because it occurred prior to the time allowed by the statute of limitations.

Asks Acquittal of Touhy.

All other defense motions for striking out evidence were overruled. Attorney Fink then moved that the court make a finding of not guilty as to the defendant, John J. Touhy, who is still a trustee of the district. He pointed out that Touhy's name was mentioned only once in the trial, and then only by an aggrieved henchman, who said he had to swing an ax to collect his pay while many of the district's pay rollers did no work.

Prosecutor Northup offered no serious objection, but said that it would be better to take that matter up after all the arguments were concluded. The decision of the court was held in abeyance until that time. The defense attorney then made a general motion to discharge all the defendants for lack of evidence, and this motion was also taken under advisement.

Prosecutor Northup then began his argument as follows:

"A mere statement of the disclosures presented by the evidence in this case paints a picture too amazing, too astounding for human belief, without strong confirmation. But confirmation is not lacking. Something like 700 men and women, under their sacred oaths, have attested to its truth, and the stipulations of 240 pay rollers confirm it still further.

"It is a picture without parallel, so far as I have been able to ascertain, in all the annals of the courts."

The prosecutor, with the aid of a specially made chart, then summed up the extent of his evidence, which he contended showed that, through the manipulations of the defendants and their friends, the taxpayers were defrauded of $2,363,600.

DIES OF AUTO INJURIES.

Dixon, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—William C. Moser, 30, died at the Dixon hospital today of injuries received in an automobile accident Tuesday.

Bad weather alone does not cause winter ills. Germs are also to blame. And they trouble people most when their resistance is low.

If you lack vitality, you have good reason for worrying about wet feet and drafts. Any extra tax on your strength may result in illness.

But why let this happen? How much more sensible to increase your powers of resistance, a little every day.

Begin now! Take Squibb Adex Tablets, a new vitamin concentrate of cod-liver oil.

Squibb Adex Tablets contain Vitamin A, the important resistance-building factor.

Vitamin A, it has recently been established, helps to maintain resistance against infections of the nose and throat.

In addition to Vitamin A, Squibb Adex Tablets supply Vitamin D, the essential sunshine vitamin which gives tone to the system.

So very rich are they in Vitamins A and D that each tablet contains as much as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil.

People who have known for years about the health-building value of cod-liver oil and wanted to take it can now obtain its benefits this pleasant, new way.

Squibb Adex Tablets are small, sugar-coated, and easy to swallow.

Taken regularly every day, they will help you to stay well this winter!

Right now isn't too soon to start. Ask for Squibb Adex Tablets at any reliable drug store.

Just Follow These Rules

1. Each day for 36 consecutive days (except Sundays) the Chicago Daily Tribune will print a Washington Bi-Centennial Crossword Puzzle. In each puzzle an historic event in Washington's life will be named. You are invited to solve the puzzle and name the event.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved complete sets of puzzles in accordance with these rules. Note: This means that you do not necessarily have to solve each of the 36 puzzles correctly to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest.

3. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys, and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

4. Puzzles are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 36. Then send them to "Crosswords," Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Puzzle No. 36 has been printed.

5. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Postoffice Department. Make your entry simple and neat. Neatness will count.

6. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

7. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

GASOLINE ALLEY—HAPPY LANDING

Author's First Novel Strikes Plaintive Note

"The Phoenix-Kind" Is Sweetly Tuned.

"The Phoenix-Kind," by Peter Quennell [Viking].

"THE PHOENIX-KIND," a first novel by a comparatively unknown English author, is one of the most interesting books that have come across the water lately. The title, chosen from a poem of Lord Brooke, symbolizes love that:

". . . burns itself in self made fire,
To breed still new birds in the mind,
From ashes of the old desire."

The plot of the story is very slim. It serves merely as an outline, a sort of elementary design which is necessary and important in the blocking out of the novel. Paul and his younger brother, Julian, take a house in London where Julian tries to write short stories and novels and Paul to carry on his studies at the British museum. Paul, a perfect example of the too introspective type, is extremely sensitive, inexperienced, unattractive physically, and sickly.

Within himself is a world of ideas, impressions, observations which, because of his solitude, he is unable to express outwardly. He lives vicariously in the experiences of his brother and only for a short moment does he have a direct contact with the world of actuality. After that he retires once more to his private and cherished loneliness.

Julian conversely throws himself avidly and actively into the world around him. The subtle clash between the brothers is suggested in the author's amazing and intuitive writing. The girl, Virginia, who is responsible for much of the action, though a necessary part of the literary design, is used only as the point at which the distinct and different personalities of the brothers converge.

There rarely is any direct dramatic presentation of scenes, either in the conversation or in the narrative. In fact the scenes between Paul and Julian and between Virginia and either of the brothers are superb examples of understatement, but none the less effective. The author presents the problems and situations purely intellectually. The reader never sees nor feels the direct impact of tragedy or rapture or disillusion on the lives of the characters. These vital experiences are given to the reader through the introspective haze of the mind of Paul, the narrator. Though the writing is intensely personal, it has a curious objectivity that is characteristic of the work of Marcel Proust. Not only in the writing but also in the philosophical concept is there an echo of Proust's "Remembrance of Things Past." Out of the mass of detail in the novel there emerges a definite and clear statement of the philosophy of the author through Paul.

In Paul all experiences find a reception. He examines them and makes them a part of himself.

Paul, always speaking in the first person, relishes life in a way peculiar to the sick and highly sensitized person. His sensuous equipment seems sharpened by the very fact that he is denied active participation in the life of the senses. His reactions to flowers, to wine, to noise, to people, to love are held close to his heart and mind while he squeezes every sensation out of them and makes them a part of his rich but ineffectual personal equipment for life.

The style of Peter Quennell should be examined closely. The use of similes and metaphors, the careful choice of words, the rhythms, harmonies and dissonances of sentences used for emotional effects, the building up in one sentence, or one paragraph or one chapter through words, individual and combinations, of a motive, a climax, and anti-climax, all the brilliant, dramatic, and emotional devices of language in the theater, Quennel handles with almost consummate skill.

British Talkie, 'Speckled Band' Proves Thriller

THE CAST.

Dr. Rylott.....Lyn Harding
Sherlock Holmes.....Raymond Massey
Helen Stonor.....Angela Braddeley
Dr. Watson.....Athole Stewart
Mrs. Staunton.....Nancy Price

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

The English screenization of one of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's best known Sherlock Holmes stories, should meet with favor, for it is a mystery thriller that is interesting and suspenseful. It possesses, in the person of Raymond Massey, a likable and convincing Sherlock Holmes—and we who have seen innumerable portrayals of that languid and astute sleuth, know that the woods are far from full of believable Holmeses.

In the present instance, the superdetective is called in to investigate the case of a terror-stricken girl whose sister has been killed the year before, and who has reason to believe that her own life is in immediate danger. It is, indeed! But rest assured that the Hound of Baker Street runs her persecutors to cover and noses out the facts concerning "the speckled band," of which the sister had muttered incoherently as she expired.

The Mr. Holmes on the Castle's screen is a cynical, handsome and quite-young gentleman with a whole lot of "it." Smooth and finished actor, Mr. Massey! May we see more of him.

Lyn Harding plays the "heavy" with apoplectic zeal, and Angela Baddeley portrays stark fright in a manner to make your scruff rise, being good to look at, besides. Athole Stewart as Dr. Watson doesn't act so bright, but he fits into the picture nicely. Minor rôles are well enough presented.

The director was clever about his sets, scenery and photography, which combine in giving an eerie atmosphere to the whole.

A slightly new departure is introduced by Dr. Watson's moderization of Holmes' quarters. Adjoining the rooms where the hero abides is an uptodate office, complete with stenographers, files, records, dictaphones, etc. A brisk and progressive office which the present Mr. Holmes regards with a twinkle. But he does use the dictaphone, and seems to like it.

See you tomorrow!

THE STAGE

THE management of "Grand Hotel" has withdrawn its announcement that the Chicago run would end on Feb. 7. The engagement at the Grand Opera house has been extended for three weeks beyond that date, or until Feb. 27. Extra matinées will be given on Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays.

"The Last Waltz," an operetta by Oscar Straus, will be offered at the Princess theater next Sunday afternoon and evening by a company of German and Viennese singers. The principal rôles will be sung by Lucie Westen, Rudi Hille, Helen Holstein, Ernest Robert, Jose Danner, and Anna Neuller-Kaeuffl.

Burton Holmes will begin his annual series of travel-lectures in Orchestra hall Feb. 10. His topics will be: "Beauty Trails in Switzerland," "The Capitals and Countries of Northern Europe," "All Over Italy," "From the Alps to the Ends of Sicily," and "Doing Paris and the Colonial Exposition." This is Mr. Holmes' thirty-ninth year on the travel-lecture platform.

The engagement of the Theater Guild's production of Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra" at the Blackstone theater will begin Monday, Feb. 15. The tragedy will be shown here for a limited engagement.

Daniel Poole, the actor who has been selected for the rôle of President Lincoln in "If Booth Had Missed," to be staged in New York next week, was recruited from the field of dramatic readers—like Richard Harrison, interpreter of De Lawd in "The Green Pastures." He was chosen because he fulfills almost exactly Lincoln's description of himself, written for the Congressional Record of 1859. Here is the Emancipator's self-portrait:

"If any personal description is thought desirable, it may be said that I am in height six feet; lean in flesh, weighing on an average 160 pounds, dark complexion, with coarse black hair and gray eyes. No other marks or brands recollected." C. C.

Plan Stage Party to Help Hospital Conducted by Nuns

Mrs. Joseph F. Herrmann of 6743 Cornell avenue is program chairman of the Valentine stage party to be given in the Auditorium theater on Shrove Tuesday evening, Feb. 9, to benefit the Little Company of Mary hospital.

Advertisers will present "living Valentines," portraying their advertising messages. Stage, radio, and movie stars are expected to take part in the performance.

Among the boxholders are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Bernard E. Sunny, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan Spalding, Mrs. Charles F. Spalding, and Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman Jr.

Tickets will go on sale at the box office of the Auditorium next Monday.

A Vivid New Novel

by BRADDA FIELD

SMALL TOWN

THIS brilliant novel is the work of one of the most striking talents to appear in contemporary fiction. The author has depicted life and characters in a small town near Montreal with amazing reality. It is a fine-etched picture of a woman rebellious at the morass of humdrum, narrow living, and who in the end finds the temptation of luxury and ease irresistible. $2.00

MOVIE CLOSEUP

Today and for a whole week the Balaban & Katz theaters will make hey hey! They should, for their fifteenth anniversary has rolled around! All houses in the B. & K. group will join in the celebration, the nucleus of which is at the Chicago. Here a pretentious stage program is being shown—a tableau portraying Chicago events of recent years.

Balaban and Katz was organized in 1917 by Sam Katz, his father Morris, and the Balaban brothers, Barney, A. J. [retired], John and Max. Their first theater was the Central Park, which seated 2,400 and was a far cry from the Balaban's first movie house—a nickelodeon which opened with a capital of $125 and was converted from an old store room that was equipped with camp chairs for seats. After the Central Park, came the Riviera, Tivoli and Chicago, etc. The latest acquisitions are the Nortown, the Gateway, and the Southtown.

New Biography Calls Harding Friends' Victim

Allen Nevins Writes for Reference Work.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The eighth volume of the "Dictionary of American Biography," issued tomorrow, brings the lives of the salient men and women of every occupation in the making of the United States down to the bracket between the names of Frederick Grinnell, inventor of the automatic fire sprinkler, and Freeborn Garretson Hibbard, Methodist minister and author. It provides also an estimate of President Warren G. Harding issued with the critical authority of the American Council of Learned Societies "with all the blacks, whites, and grays that were part of the man."

"There is no biography of Harding worthy of the name," writes Allan Nevins, historian and journalist, author of the present biography. "Mrs. Harding before her death destroyed his papers."

Mr. Nevins, author of a voluminous biography of Maj. Gen. John C. Fremont, remarks of Harding:

"Harding became known as a safe and conservative member, attached to the standard Republican policies and especially sensitive to attacks upon big business. Personally attractive, he was of convivial habits, drinking a good deal and playing poker. He achieved no distinction whatever as a debater or an originator of legislation."

Of Harding's presidential years Mr. Nevins adds:

"Both the official and social atmosphere of the capital became obviously relaxed, careless, and open-handed. Harding worked hard and showed a wise reliance upon his ablest cabinet members, but the liquor and cards in the executive mansion, the gayety of his pleasure trips and the predatory aims of some of his associates quickly aroused critical comment.

"As he lacked firm leadership, he also lacked vigilance and foresight. His worst single error was his failure to guard the public domain in the west from the marauders who wished to use it and who acted through Secretary Fall.

"By the spring of 1923 difficulties were thickening fast around the President. In Washington a series of scandals still secret from the general public was threatening to break. There is evidence that Harding was also deeply embarrassed by the existence of an illegitimate daughter born to Nan Britton, formerly of Marion, in October, 1919.

"On the transcontinental tour which he undertook with Mrs. Harding in June, 1923, and which ended with his death in San Francisco on Aug. 2, he repeatedly asked Secretary Hoover and certain trusted newspaper correspondents what a President whose friends had betrayed him should do.

"The exposures which continued for several years after his death showed a looseness and dishonesty which paralleled those of the era just after the civil war."

Get Logan $750 and $500 at Art Show.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

THE thirty-sixth annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity opened yesterday afternoon in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The jury were a catholic minded body and their selection is remarkably representative. For the first time in years a typically academic painting was rewarded with the first prize. If modernism does prevail, it is at least a pleasant modernism with few aggressive qualities. Its weakest feature is bad drawing.

Feeling has been running high since the jury's selection was made known. A number of our better known artists are not represented in the exhibit. The fault lies nowhere except that a jury invariably acts in a mysterious way and this jury, made up of out of town museum directors, was looking for a new note in painting. From an impersonal standpoint only two charges may with justice be leveled at them. They chose too few pictures and where in several cases they could have contented themselves with one work typical of that particular individual, they passed three or four pictures each approximating the other. This is especially true in the case of Macena Barton. Her work is good, but she has not deviated a hair's breadth in her treatment of the portraits which are her contribution to this show.

Among the painters who are represented are Pauline Palmer, Anna Lee Stacey, Increase Robinson, Roy Collins, Paul Trebilcock, Ruth Van Sickle Ford, Harriet B. Krawiec, Walter Krawiec, Edward T. Grigware, A. Lou Matthews, Marshall D. Smith, Charles Willmovsky, Gregory Prusheck, Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, Malvin Marr Albright, Josephine L. Reichmann, Abigail K. Brown, Gustaf Dalstrom, May Gilruth, Kathleen Buehr Granger, Carl Nyquist, Frank Gavencky, and Theodore Johnson.

The prize awards are these: The Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan medal and $750 to "Girl Reading," by Claude Buck; the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize of $500 to "Betty," by Frances Foy; the Fine Arts Building Purchase prize of $500 to "Little Harbor," by George Melville Smith; the Mr. and Mrs. Jule F. Brower prize of $300 to "Bananas and Geranium," by Laura van Pappelendam; the William Randolph Hearst prize of $300 to "Melting Snow," by Sam Avery; the Chicago Woman's club prize of $200 to "Frances Hildes," by Macena Barton; the Joseph N. Eisendrath prize of $200 to "Thistle Poppy," by Richard M. Crisler; the Harry A. Frank prize of $150 to "Nude," by Louis Ritman; the Clyde M. Carr prize of $100 to "Landscape Composition," by Gregory Prusheck; the Chicago Woman's Aid prize of $100 to "Snow in Park," by Agnes Potter van Ryn; the Municipal Art league prize of $100 to "Portrait Study," by Christian Abrahamsen, and the Robert Rice Jenkins memorial prize of $50 to "Rose," by Jaroslav Brozik.

The exhibition will continue to March 20.

A concert by Maria Olszewska, Leola Turner, and Paolo Marion of the Chicago Civic Opera company, accompanied by Leo Kopp, will be given at the Drake hotel this afternoon for the benefit of the School Children's shelter, formerly the North Side shelter, at 1947 Sheffield avenue. The institution feeds and clothes school children of the unemployed.

STUDENTS, WEIGHING RIGHTS AND WRONGS, TAKE SOCIAL VIEW

The opinions of fifty-four graduate students at Northwestern university as to what constitutes the greatest wrong a man can commit against the social order, as well as what constitutes the least wrongful act, were revealed yesterday by Dr. George H. Betts, professor of education and director of research.

For a man to desert an unwed expectant mother was deemed as the greatest offense against the moral code. The practice of birth control by married persons was considered of least offense.

The students looked on illicit relations after marriage, speeding away after hitting some one with a machine, and kidnaping a child for ransom as, in that order, high in the scale against the social order. They regarded the refusal of a prosperous industry to pay its workers a reasonable wage as worse than refusal to bear arms in a war that an objector considers unjust. Low in the rating of social wrong in the view of the students were killing in self-defense, a doctor's allowing a deformed child to die, and for a jury to free a father who had killed a man for assaulting his young daughter. Falsifying income tax reports was voted only a step lower than for students to falsify examination grades.

Dr. Betts pointed out that the fifty-four students, twenty-six of whom were women, showed a severer attitude toward personal than social misconduct. According to their code, he said, it is worse to use profane language than unfairly to crush out one's business competitor.

Illinois Owes Child a Chance, Society Told

Private Charity Is Called Inadequate.

THE greater burden of charity should fall on the public through taxation rather than on private agencies, so declared Henry James Chandler, former president of the City club and chairman of the state committee on child welfare legislation, yesterday at the Chicago Woman's club.

The greater burden of charity should fall on the public through taxation rather than on private agencies. So declared Henry Porter Chandler, former president of the City club, and chairman of the state committee on child welfare legislation, yesterday at the Chicago Woman's club.

Mr. Chandler in an address at the annual meeting of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, told of the objectives of the committee in reference to child welfare which include lifting the restrictions on mothers' aid, the regulation of adoption of children, provision for the illegitimate child, and provision for state guardianship of the dependent child.

"The state owes the child his future and life as a normal citizen," Mr. Chandler declared. "Charitable funds of large volume should be provided by the people through a public tax where the benefits to be received are spread over a period of years, such as mothers' aid, and the care of children. There will never come a time when the private agencies will not be needed, however.

"As far as is possible, the committee believes, the state should give support to a normal home and aid children that must be supported. There are limitations on the mothers' aid now being given which affect innocent children. For instance, stepmothers are not eligible, nor are foreign mothers. The committee has recommended lifting the restriction on the selections for mothers' aid, so that the award may be made on the basis of need rather than arbitrary classification."

The illegitimate child should be supported by its father according to his means until dependency is over, Mr. Chandler said. He added that the committee had approved that idea. At present responsibility is ended after the father has paid $200 the first year and $100 a year for nine years thereafter or a single settlement of $800.

For State Guardianship.

"The guardianship of the dependent child should be assumed by the state," Mr. Chandler continued. "Now, if children have no means of support, they are brought before a county judge, who will commit them the same as delinquents to a reform school merely to provide them a living. Committing a boy to St. Charles School for Boys is often the first step to a criminal career.

"The committee believes that where there seems to be no other way of support the state should accept the guardianship through the department of public welfare."

Carroll H. Sudler, in the president's report of the work of the society for last year, said 1,746 children are being cared for and a total of 4,138 were served by the society during the year. The cost of operation of the society, which maintains children in private homes and institutions, was $348,992.98. Contributions came from more than 12,800 donors.

C. V. Williams, superintendent of the society, pointed out that many of the children whom the society serves are returned to their homes after the homes have been rehabilitated. In placing children in foster homes, he said, the society makes an intensive study of each child, his habits and disposition, family background, and carefully investigates the home in which the child lives.

Chauncey McCormick was elected president, succeeding Mr. Sudler. Other new officers are C. B. Goodspeed, vice president, and Hermon Dunlap Smith, secretary. The officers reelected were Donald M. Ryerson and Augustus A. Carpenter, vice presidents; Bowman C. Lingle, treasurer, and Dimmit C. Hutchins, counsel.

More Social Service Work.

Conditions due to the depression were apparent during 1931 in the work of the Juvenile Protective association, according to its report for the year, made yesterday to the directors at the annual meeting at the Woman's City club. A reduction in the personnel of the association necessarily crippled the association in its function of protecting the youth of the city against various evils, but the year was ended with a reserve of $7,435 with which to start 1932.

Fears Democracy Declines.

"If democracy is the acid test of civilization, then we are not as civilized as we think we are," Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Sinai temple, told a crowd that filled the main dining room of the City club in Plymouth court last night, for the seventeenth anniversary dinner of the Urban league. Speaking on the topic, "How Civilized Are We?" Dr. Mann deplored the general public inertia toward the tremendous loss of life in auto accidents, unemployment insurance, responsibility in office, and similar problems.

Resignations of Ayres Boal and Mrs. Samuel Dauchy from the executive board of the league were announced by Miss Amelia Sears in her report for the nominating committee, which was accepted and the following declared elected to the board: Claude A. Barnett, Mrs. U. G. Dudley, Miss Mary McDowell, Harry D. Oppenheimer, Miss Sears, and William J. Rathje. To fill vacancies Miss Sophonisba Breckenridge, Mrs. Frank Edwards, Dr. Philip A. Swartz, Mrs. Clara Paul Paige, and Dr. Arthur G. Falls were elected.

In addition Dr. Mann, George W. Dixon, Harry Eugene Kelly, and Anthony Overton were named members of an advisory board, all having formerly been members of the executive board.

WRIGLEY RITES ARE HELD IN PASADENA HOME

Brief Service Marked by Simplicity.

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Unostentatious funeral services conducted by an Episcopalian rector in the Pasadena home of the late William Wrigley Jr., marked the farewell of his family and closest associates to the Chicago capitalist this afternoon.

The Rev. Leslie B. Learned of All Saints Protestant Episcopal church conducted the services, which, in keeping with the family's desire were marked by the utmost simplicity. The services were concluded in little more than fifteen minutes.

Mrs. Ada Wrigley, the widow; the capitalist's only son, Philip K. Wrigley, and Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley, and Mr. Wrigley's daughter, Mrs. James R. Offield, sat apart during the service, with a cluster of close friends and business associates in the background.

Burial to Be at Catalina.

At the conclusion of the services the casket was taken to a mortuary, where the body will remain in a crypt until a mausoleum is prepared for it, topping an eminence overlooking Avalon harbor, Catalina island, where Mr. Wrigley used to watch the shipping and the sunrise, in his vacations on his island domain.

Hundreds of persons stood bareheaded on the lawn in front of the white and green tiled colonial home of the Wrigleys on Orange Grove avenue during the services. Not more than fifty gathered inside.

Flowers Fill Several Rooms.

Flowers and floral pieces filled room after room of the home. One of the pieces was a huge model, in roses, of a steamship. Another was a floral map of Catalina island. There were remembrances from governors of several states, from President Hoover's family, and from the world of business, baseball, and politics in Washington, New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia, California and Arizona.

The active pallbearers included William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs; Harry Boyle of Phoenix, Ariz.; David Fleming and John N. Stewart of the Catalina island project; Robert Storey and D. M. Renton of Pasadena; David Blankenhorn, James Gibson, and Paul Graham of Los Angeles, and J. H. Patrick, president of the Wrigley owned Los Angeles baseball club.

Memorial services were conducted for Mr. Wrigley in the Casino building on Catalina island during the hour of the services on the mainland.

SERVICE HELD HERE

A thousand persons filled St. Chrysostom's church at 1416 North Dearborn street yesterday to pay a final tribute to William Wrigley Jr. in his home city.

They came in limousines, in street cars, and on foot. There were financiers in silk hats, society matrons in mink coats, baseball plays in rough tweeds, girls from the Wrigley offices, and men in working clothes. The congregation was a cross section of Chicago.

Over a cenotaph, placed between four tall candles in the chancel of the church, the Rev. John Crippen Evans, associate rector of St. Chrysostom's, pronounced a eulogy of Mr. Wrigley as a man "who lived completely—because he met the trust of life on its own simple, direct, and forthright terms."

Retains Youth at 70.

"Although he passed the scriptural three score years and ten, yet old age was unable to lay hold on him," Dr. Evans said. "William Wrigley never could have passed into old age. Senility never could have touched him. His life was too full, too complete.

"The flush of youth was constantly on his cheeks and buoyant enthusiasm in his heart. He was a boy at 70, and that is real achievement. It is in that sort of attainment that the Christian pulpit is primarily interested, because the message of the pulpit is wholly concerned with life—life that lives and will not die.

"One need not look far for monuments to the material achievements of this man. William Wrigley's monuments dot the world. This church is one, for he was one of its most generous benefactors. All these monuments to his energy and ability will never be overlooked.

Proves Life Can Be Refreshing.

"But even more significant is an achievement of another sort to which a monument never can be erected on this earth. William Wrigley's life proved that a man can live youthfully, refreshingly, and triumphantly in a world that long has been soggy, dull, or dead to myriads of people.

"William Wrigley lived. His real life did not and will not die."

Dr. Evans read from the first epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians. The vested choir sang two psalms and a hymn. Some of the men who had known him in the fields of finance, or sports, and others, of humbler walks, who had benefited by his generosity, pressed handkerchiefs to dim eyes.

The eulogy was brief and the whole service consumed hardly half an hour. The congregation filed out between ranks of blue clad ushers from Wrigley field, the home of the Cubs baseball team.

The carillon played a postlude. The melody was Mr. Wrigley's favorite, a popular Hawaiian tune called "Aloha," which means farewell.

FANNY BLODGET RITES TO BE HELD IN WEST TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Fanny High Blodget, pioneer resident of Chicago, who died on Wednesday in her winter home in Pasadena, Cal., will be held in Pasadena today. The body will be taken later to Chestnut Hills, Mass., for burial. Mrs. Blodget had lived at that place during the last few years. She was 82 years old.

Mrs. Blodget's father was John High Jr. He came to Chicago in 1836 and perished in a fire at Dearborn and Lake streets in 1857. Mrs. Blodget was born in 1850 in her father's house, which faced Dearborn park, the site now occupied by the Chicago public library.

Mrs. Blodget was the widow of William Blodget. She is survived by one son, Richard High Carleton of New York, who was born by her first marriage to the late Guy Carleton, and a sister, Elizabeth High Noyes, who has been a resident of Chicago since 1852. Nieces and nephews of Mrs. Blodget who live in Chicago include: Mrs. Florence Clarkson Taylor, wife of Judge Thomas Taylor; Annie Cutler Dudley, Ernest H. Noyes, and George Henry High.

MARY TEMPLETON LEAVES $236,500 TO AID CHARITY

Follows Gifts Made by Sister.

Miss Mary Templeton of Evanston left $236,500 to Presbyterian organizations and to Chicago charities, it was disclosed yesterday when her will was filed in the office of Probate Clerk Mitchell C. Robin. The same beneficiaries were given more than $450,000 in the will of Miss Templeton's sister, Miss Jessie G. Templeton, who died on Oct. 25 and whose will was admitted to probate some time ago. The Jessie Templeton bequest, however, will not be realized until the death of a third sister, Miss Hannah Templeton, who resided with Miss Mary at 1128 Forrest avenue, Evanston.

Miss Mary Templeton, who died on Jan. 24 at the age of 64, provided that her sister Hannah should receive $5,000 outright. A gift of $2,500 was made to a brother, Robert T. Templeton of 1519 Warren boulevard. Three nieces and nephews share equally a $10,000 gift.

Church Groups Benefit.

Of the remainder of the estate $5,000 is given to the Presbyterian hospital in cash and the residual property is divided into 100 parts. Fifteen parts each are given to the church extension board of the presbytery of Chicago, to the board of foreign missions of the same church, and to the Presbyterian hospital. Ten parts each are given to the Y. M. C. A. of Chicago, the Chicago Orphans' asylum, the United Charities, and the board of national missions of the Presbyterian church. Five parts each are given to the Women's and Children's hospital, to the Old People's Home of Chicago, and to the Presbyterian board of pensions.

Pioneer Evanston Residents.

Miss Jessie Templeton, who was 69 years old, was, with her sisters, a pioneer resident of Evanston. She left her property in trust to benefit her sisters during their lifetimes after making specific bequests of $47,500 to other relatives. The sisters' property accumulated from the estates of their parents and a brother, attorneys said.

F. XAVIER ARENS, NOTED SYMPHONY DIRECTOR, DIES

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Franz Xavier Arens, founder of the New York People's symphony concerts, died suddenly today of heart disease. He was 75 years old. A native of Germany, Mr. Arens came to the United States at 11, later returning to his homeland to study music under Julius Hey. Later he became Mr. Hey's assistant and was appointed to represent him at the Congress of Nations at the Chicago World's Fair.

After graduating from the Royal Conservatory of Music at Dresden in 1885, Mr. Arens took over the leadership of the Cleveland Philharmonic orchestra.

From 1892-'96 Mr. Arens directed the Indianapolis May music festivals.

FOUND DEAD IN HOME.

Charles Peterson, 53 years old, 6159 North Claremont avenue, a janitor, was found dead in his home yesterday afternoon. Death apparently was due to heart disease.

Deaths of a Day

BROWNFIELD, Ill.—[Special.]—Miss Jane Lewis, 78, a lifelong resident of Pope county and member of one of its pioneer families, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trovillion.

PORTLAND, Ore.—(AP)—Wainwright E. Heywood, 75, who twelve years ago retired after having won considerable reputation as a sculptor, died at his home here today. Heywood was born in Straffordshire, England. Heywood came to the United States to execute work for the St. Louis fair and later participated in the Seattle fair.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Dr. Curt Von Weidel Sr. died at his home in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., last night. He was 75 years old. Two sons, Dr. Curt Von Weidel Jr. of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Dr. Hassow Von Weidel, founder of the Von Weidel laboratories, survive him.

BALTIMORE, Md.—[Special.]—A. Lincoln Dryden, 66, for years a personal and political friend of President Hoover, and widely known Republican leader of the eastern shore of Maryland, died tonight at his home in Crisfield, Md. In the last days of his illness, Mrs. Hoover sent him messages of encouragement.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(AP)—Col. Henry Tazewell Thompson, one of the central figures in quelling the "Darlington riot" of 1894, is dead at the age of 73. Col. Thompson, a son of former Gov. Hugh S. Thompson, was captain of the Darlington military company when the "riot" developed from a battle between citizens and dispensary constables. Col. Thompson had a conspicous military career, which covered 40 years, in the National Guard.

BALTIMORE, Md.—[Special.]—Louis Guerineau Myers, secretary of the general education board of the Rockefeller Foundation, New York, died at the Church Home and Infirmary.

THIRD RUTH JUDD JUROR ILL; TAKE SECOND RECESS

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Winnie Ruth Judd spent a day out of court today, staging another of her fits of temperament. Jail attendants and her attorneys suffered equally from her wrath when she was refused permission to have her streaked blond hair washed and waved in her cell.

She was undemonstrative but trembling when she was taken into Judge Howard C. Speakman's court during the afternoon for the formality of another recess in her trial on a charge of murdering Agnes Anne Leroi, trunk slaying victim. The second recess, until tomorrow morning, was made necessary when a third juror, P. J. Lassen, was added to the hospital list on which already are M. T. White and Joseph L. Standage.

Fears were felt tonight that White would be unable to take his place in the jury box again. Standage, the thirteenth and alternate juror, was reported recovering from a cold. Lassen was suffering from a severe cold today, but Bailiff Ed Warren of the "hospital" dormitory, relayed a physician's opinion that he would recover quickly. White is threatened with influenza.

Judge Speakman said this afternoon he would "continue to take recesses if we have to wait until July" to resume the trial, which already has gone eight days.

The ten healthy jurors, who have been transferred to another dormitory, spent the morning at a city park playing baseball under the eye of bailiffs and this afternoon were taken in a body to a motion picture show after it was decided the picture was "harmless."

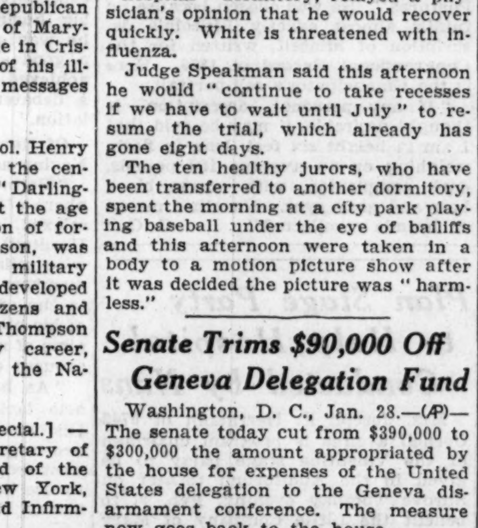
Senate Trims $90,000 Off Geneva Delegation Fund

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The senate today cut from $390,000 to $300,000 the amount appropriated by the house for expenses of the United States delegation to the Geneva disarmament conference. The measure now goes back to the house.

THE RADIO TECHNICIAN SAYS...

"4 PILLARS FOR ACCURACY"

...AND THAT MEANS EVEREADY RAYTHEON TUBES



Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation the fragile parts cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position. All other tubes have only a two-pillar foundation. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps and vibration often impair their vital accuracy.

THE service man who keeps your set in repair is a radio expert ... he knows tubes. If you ask him the cause of most radio ills and troubles, he'll say "tubes" without a second's hesitation. His experience has shown him that a tube can light up—often seem to test all right—and still it may be the cause of faulty reception. The reason is that its elements are out of alignment ... inaccurate!

There's one way to be sure of accurate tubes, and of the flawless reception they give ... use Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes throughout. They have four sturdy pillars to anchor their elements in place, one at each corner of a square. Other tubes have only two, and can be damaged by the jolts of handling and shipment, and by vibration from dynamic speakers. 4-pillar tubes have the strength to safeguard their vital accuracy!

Your dealer can demonstrate the superiority of 4-pillar tubes. Compare them tube for tube with others, and the difference is amazing. But to realize what an enormous improvement they can make in a radio, install a complete set of 4-pillar tubes ... then listen!

Eveready Raytheon Tubes are Quick Heaters. Don't be fooled by tubes of the old, slow-heater type with which the market is flooded. A modern tube should heat up in 10 seconds or less. Time it yourself!

Geneva Turns to Rhythm and Bridge Playing

With Backgammon Now and Then.

THE women of the commuting group in Geneva, that attractive little town west of here on the Fox river which has a delightful and smart colony of commuters, are going in strong for rhythm these days since a guest of Mrs. Edmond Raftery's started them on the road to grace, and slimness, incidentally.

Miss Valeria Ladd, who is spending her sabbatical year from the Noyes School of Rhythm in New York traveling throughout the United States, has been visiting the Rafterys for about a week, and at a luncheon Mrs. Raftery gave for her when she first arrived she demonstrated the Noyes system of rhythm and immediately all the guests wanted her to conduct some classes, which she has been doing. She is leaving soon, however, and her pupils are hoping they will be able to carry on without her direction.

Some of those who have started to achieve "greater beauty of movement and uncalculated grace," which Miss Ladd assures them will be the result if they follow out her teachings, are Mrs. Henry E. Cooke [formerly Martha Hubbard of Chicago], Mrs. Gorton Fauntleroy, Mrs. Norman S. Farker, Mrs. Ralph W. Davis and her mother, Mrs. Raymond G. Scott, Mrs. George E. Michael [who hasn't been able to do much rhythming, however, except with her facile fingers, for she has had to play the piano most of the time], Mrs. Charles C. Reckitt and her mother, Mrs. A. C. Goodrich; Mrs. William Phillips, Mrs. John Van Nortwick, Mrs. Charles P. Rockwood, Mrs. Albert Newcombe, Mrs. Arch E. Richards, Mrs. George W. Overton, and Mrs. Walter A. Wood.

Contract Bridge Vies with Backgammon, Etc.

Like the residents of all the other suburbs or small towns hereabouts, Genevans are keen on contract this winter and at every gathering, small or large, card tables are sure to be set up some time during the afternoon or evening. There is much discussion, of course, about the relative merits of the official and the Cubertson systems, but we notice that most of those who win regularly say little about systems. Backgammon is popular, too, and various other games, such as puff football and puff billiards—the silliest games imaginable, but lots of fun.

Everybody in Geneva skis when the weather is right for it, and down on the river in a little bay by Col. Fabyan's estate, Riverbank, there is grand skating when there is ice, but there hasn't been anything of the sort so far this winter, much to the regret of every one.

The children skate on a pond at the Golf club, but that, too, has been in disuse this year.

The largest affairs of the winter in Geneva are the three dinner dances given by the Winter club at the Golf club; two are past events and one will be given on Feb. 20. Everybody in the commuting colony at Geneva has house parties over the week-ends and those who haven't houses large enough to accommodate many guests often take rooms at the nearby Baker hotel in St. Charles for part of their guests.

Howard Raftery, popular young architect who keeps bachelor quarters in the city during the week, often takes crowds of young people to Geneva to spend Saturday and Sunday with his charming parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Raftery, who have one of those houses which seem to be elastic as to sleeping quarters. It is an old house, remodeled, down by the river, and most attractive.

Badminton is the most popular winter game with the men of Geneva and every Saturday afternoon and Sunday they play in the gymnasium of one of the schools. Hinsdale and Winnetka also have numerous badminton enthusiasts, we are told. Wouldn't it be interesting if teams from these three villages staged some sort of tournament this winter?

Mrs. Clive Runnells Guest of the C. G. Kings.

The presence here of a former Chicagoan, Mrs. Clive Runnells, is the signal for much entertaining for her, including a dinner Wednesday, given by the Joseph M. Cudahys, one last night at which Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick Blair were hosts and one tonight which Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. King will give. Mrs. Runnells is visiting the Kings and will remain on in their house at 1530 State parkway after they leave next Thursday to visit their son-in-law and daughter, the Clarence Mitchells, in Santa Barbara. The Kings are not opening their house in Santa Barbara this winter at all. Mrs. Runnells will go to New York for a visit later and then will be here again en route to her home in Santa Barbara.

Palm Beach Letter Tells of Fashions.

In a letter from Palm Beach we learned that the George A. McKinlocks have been entertaining quite a bit for their guest, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, with luncheons and dinners, some at their home and others at the Gulf Stream club and the Seminole Golf club. Our correspondent also wrote that Mrs. McKinlock is dressing most simply this season, usually in black velvet in the evenings, gown and wrap, the latter with ermine cuffs and collar, and in white for daytime affairs. Mrs. Elisha D. Hubbard [Muriel McCormick] wears clothes of the utmost simplicity and she seldom wears jewels of any sort. Her style of hair dressing has changed some since her marriage, being shingled closely behind but allowed to grow in a fluffy wave on top.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Thomas have just returned to Chicago after a short stay at their Palm Beach house. They were given a moonlight bathing party at the Colony-Ambassador club a night or two before they left by the Byron Chandlers, Mrs. Thomas wearing an attractive costume of blue beach pajamas with a pancake beret. The guests assembled on the terrace overlooking the ocean and many bathed in the great pool, while others danced—there was a jazz orchestra and an Hawaiian one—and others consulted a gypsy fortune teller or a Hindu seer.

The feature of the evening was a wheel chair parade in which the 70 guests and the orchestras participated, going down to the Colony club in the Beaux Arts Gardens for more dancing and then back to the Colony-Ambassador for a buffet supper. Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, who is at Mrs. Glenn Hodges' apartment awaiting the arrival of her husband and the completition of their new house in Via Bellaria, was at the gala opening night of the Patio Marguery in a lovely French frock of chartreuse taffeta with touches of cyclamen, with a bouffant skirt and the first bustle Palm Beach has seen this season, so our correspondent writes. Joseph T. Ryerson leaves today for New York to meet Mrs. Ryerson, who is going there from Palm Beach, and the Albert Erskines, who will go there from Mississippi, to sail on Feb. 3 for a three weeks' West Indian cruise.

Foreign Relations Council Is Busy These Days.

It seems strange to be hearing about disarmament here when Japan and China are on the verge of war, but perhaps that is just the time for us to learn more about this greatly discussed and debated question. Anyhow, the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations is doing its part to enlighten all those who wish to be enlightened by having luncheon meetings on disarmament today and tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Hotel La Salle. Quincy Wright of the University of Chicago will preside at today's luncheon when Harold G. Moulton of Washington will present the economic aspect of the disarmament question, illustrating his talk with diagrams thrown on a stereopticon screen. He promises this will make the economic tangle of disarmament clear to even the most inexperienced layman.

Silas H. Strawn, who, with Mrs. Strawn, reaches Chicago tomorrow morning from a month in Washington, will preside at tomorrow's luncheon. James Grafton Rogers, assistant secretary of state, who is coming with the Strawns to be their house guest over Sunday, will be the first of two speakers tomorrow, and will present the attitude of the administration toward the coming conference. Following him Harry D. Gideonse of the University of Chicago, who is known as a brilliant and ruthlessly honest analyst of international affairs, will speak on "The Prospects of This Disarmament Conference."

The Woman's Athletic club has sent out announcements of a piano recital by Winifred MacBride next Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Luncheon, as usual, will follow the program. The club board of directors also announces that the club building will be open to members for inspection in all departments on Friday afternoons during the season. Tea will be served in the lounge from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Freund will sail tomorrow on the Kungsholm for a month's cruise of the Caribbean.

Mrs. Edwin Cyrus Bolton of Detroit is visiting her sister, Mrs. Oliver Dennett Grover, in her Italian court studio apartment.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Edward Hale Campbell are visiting the admiral's brother-in-law and sister, the Rev. and Mrs. Claude C. Travis of 5249 Kenmore avenue. Admiral Campbell is commander of the 13th district at San Diego.

The following officers of the Three Arts club were elected at a recent annual meeting: Mrs. Charles E. Kohl, president; Miss Gwethalyn Jones and Mrs. Clay Judson, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. John C. Pitcher, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Walker, assistant treasurer; Mrs. John Holabird, secretary.

TAX CLASS STYLES

Women Talk Politics as They Reflect Styles

Gowns and Commonweal Are Mingled.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

WOULD that the comely Mexican fighter for feminism, Señora Margarita Robles de Mendoza, had dropped in on the study group of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters yesterday morning at Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter's town apartment. She might have reconsidered or at least written an exception to her remark a week ago that American women are still in the awkward stage politically.

To watch these smartly conservative women assemble for any one of their classes, you'd never guess they are bothering their heads with government ills, but to see their poise, self assurance, and quick wits in discussion is the "proof of the pudding."

In the absence of Mrs. Carpenter yesterday, because of the illness of her sister, Mrs. Ralph Winston, one of the presiding officers of the Lake Shore league, received the members of the study group. Buttons, and they've come back into their own this season with real furore, were the smart trimming on her green and black crêpe dress. A sharp gray quill trimmed her black felt hat, almost a beret in its influence.

At the entrance to the Carpenter drawing room Miss Paula Wilms badgered every one with booklets and questionnaires on taxation, the subject of the day. Miss Wilms' black woolen ensemble with gray broadtail accessories was one of those costumes that might run the gauntlet of the semi-sports from a game of jacks to tea at the Blackstone. The collarless fur jacket and a silly little muff were distinct fashion notes, as well as the close fitting turban lavishly trimmed in matching fur.

The dull black crêpe dress worn by Mrs. Edwin O. Griffenhagen emphasized the designers' decree that the high waist line is to take definite hold this spring, gripping firmly around the diaphragm and the ribs. A cunning little buckle was tucked away in the center back of Mrs. Griffenhagen's dress, another new fashion note. Mrs. Arthur Bissell was attired in a conservative brown wool that looked like it might have been fabricated in some peasant's hut.

FOUR NOTED JUDGES MISSING AT HOOVER'S JUDICIAL RECEPTION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—There were four vacant chairs at the White House tonight as President and Mrs. Hoover held a brilliant dinner party for members of the Supreme court, their wives, and 66 others.

Absent, of course, was the venerable Oliver Wendell Holmes. Justice Brandeis, who recently has been ill, likewise felt unable to attend the White House party in honor of his colleagues. Nor was either Justice McReynolds or Justice Vandevanter able to attend.

After the introductions in the spacious east room the President and Mrs. Hoover led the guests into the dark panelled state dining room. There Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes were given the seats of honor. Four other justices and their wives also were accorded honor seats.

The men of the party enjoyed their coffee later on the second floor of the executive mansion, thronging the library and Lincoln study. As at other White House dinners, additional guests were invited in later to attend the musical that ended the evening.

Among the guests who were present at dinner were the attorney general and Mrs. Mitchell, Senator and Mrs. Ashurst of Arizona, and Representative Sumner of Texas. They represented the judiciary committees of their respective chambers.

Others were Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general; Samuel H. Hofstadter, chairman of the state legislative committee investigating New York City.

Clever French Coat Has Detachable Vest

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The new coat styles that are coming out in Paris are designed with a weather eye on the changing seasons and are so devised that they can be worn for late winter and on into spring.

The great hobby of the French dressmakers is, as has been said before, removable gadgets that change the aspect of a garment, and the removable fur piece is a detail in this class that is getting more and more prominent in Paris styles. The latest removable part to the coat is made of both cloth and fur. It may be a collar or a capelet or a vestee or bolero that comes off to leave a definitely spring coat.

One of the best of these is shown on the Maggy Rouff coat, illustrated here. This coat is made of light beige broadcloth. It is fitted at the waistline and closed by a tied-on belt. The skirt is unflared and well wrapped over. The triangular plastron you see inside of the brown ruffle astrakan collar, buttons over four brown buttons on each side and is finished by a crossed and buttoned band collar of astrakan.

You unbutton this plastron and its small fur collar and it comes off, leaving a decidedly open-front and spring-like coat, with its ruffle collar of astrakan standing well away from the neck.

The sleeves are double, the outer sleeve being just below elbow length, flaring and banded with astrakan, while the inside sleeve is full length and closely fitted.

Pianist and Alienist Discuss Music for Reducing Mental Ills

"Mental Depression Released Through Music" was the title of a paper read last night by Moissaye Boguslawski, noted pianist, at an open forum sponsored by the East Gate lodge in the Masonic temple.

Another speaker was Dr. Alex S. Hershfield, former state alienist. He expanded on the scientific aspects of the Boguslawski system of treating mental and physical ailments with carefully selected musical compositions. He asserted that various ailments, from furious mania to some forms of paralysis, can be aided with music when other means fail and added that the medical profession is at the threshold of an era when music will be a regular prescription.

Straw Jackets Latest Cry of Parisian Modes

Other Features of the Current Displays.

PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Straw was added to the economical features in spring styles today when a prominent dressmaker showed a jacket and dress trimmings, both of close-woven lacy straws.

A fitted hip-length brown straw jacket was worn with a beige cotton sports frock. A black silk coat had a white lacy straw collar.

Prints gay as a florist's shop, used for frocks, coats, and slippers, marked the second outstanding feature of the seasonal showings which hitherto displayed only plain fabrics. New materials had either conventionalized bright flowers on black grounds or a solid mass of small bright designs.

Printed silk crêpe frocks were worn with matching sleeveless jackets, or coats, or wool coats lined with prints. Slippers were made of brilliant prints matching dresses.

The shows stressed white sports frocks made of a new cotton called roumanex, looking like a heavy diagonal wool. It was used for high-waisted white skirts with colored sleeveless blouses attached, and for the white jacket worn with them.

A new coiffuere made its debut today. Mannequins wore their hair curled closely to the head with a cluster of curls on the left forehead. Wigs lacquered blond or silver were worn with evening clothes.

Bruyere and Jane Regny today joined the Association for the Protection of Artistic Seasonal Industries, making the total number of members 13. The association spokesman said the organization planned to issue before the next season identity cards stamped with the name, address, and house of the buyer. He said a committee of American buyers was expected to be formed in the United States.

Bare shoulders are out, but bare backs are in for evening wear.

The rainbow procession of evening gowns displayed in the crowded salons invariably showed covered shoulders with a wide drape fichu effect or short puffed sleeves, while décolletés had dipped to the waistline.

Several models displayed bathing suit backs with only a shoestring shoulder strap holding the gowns in place. Many gowns were so long they swept the floor three inches in back. Only one dinner pajama was seen, indicating the trousered mode probably is on the wane.

The colors were white, forget-me-not, blue, sea green, shell pink, oerise, and black. The fabrics were satin, chiffon, flamisol, a new pebbly crêpe, peau d'ange, a dull satiny crêpe.

Gowns varied from unadorned chiffons to satins glittering with diamante and silver sequins. A forget-me-not blue peau d'ange had a décolleté embroidered with black sequin.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

LOUNGING PAJAMAS.

If you need pajamas for tea time or for lounging, you doubtless will want to use this pattern for them. The frilly collar and short, flaring sleeves are pretty, and the bias hip seaming makes it a slenderizing model. The trouser legs are cut with circular fullness, giving the effect of a skirt.

The pattern, 2631, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36 [illegible] 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material with 2¾ yards of 3 inch wide ribbon.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

Almost the first thing a child is taught in school is reading. Obviously this must be so because without the ability to read the child can hardly go into any other subject. And thusly in the game of bridge the reading of cards is about the last subject that can be taught to the player bent on improving his game. And if you can draw a moral from that, why go ahead. At any rate, yesterday's play-a-problem was an excellent example of card reading of the simple sort. This was the hand:

NORTH
♥—9,3
♦—10,9

WEST
♠—8,5,3,2
♥—2
♦—K,J,8,6,5
♣—7,5,4

EAST (Dealer)
♠—Q,7
♥—A,K,7,6,5,4
♦—3,2
♣—Q,J,6

SOUTH
♠—J,9
♥—Q,J,10,8
♣—A,K,3

East dealt and bid a heart. South overcalled with a no-trump. West passed. North took out with two spades. East passed. South bid three no-trumps and every one passed.

West opened the ♦ 6, dummy played the 9, East the 2, and South the 4. Dummy now led the ♠ 4, East played the Q, South the J, and West the 2. East now led the ♦ 3, which declarer took with the A, returning the ♥ 8, which East captured with the K. East now led the ♣ Q, which South took with the K. He returned the ♥ Q, which East took with the A. East then led the ♥ 4, which South captured with the 10. South then took the remainder of the tricks, as follows:

He led the ♥ J from his own hand. Then the ♠ 9, which dummy took with the ♠ 10, and then led out the ♠ A-K-6. To the last trick dummy led the ♣ 10, which declarer overtook in his own hand with the A for his game and one extra trick.

Remembering that East had to have 2½ high card tricks for his initial bid, it is obvious that as soon as the dummy goes down and he, East, cannot beat the ♦ 9, he is marked with both black queens.

South then allows him to make the ♠ Q and, when the ♦ 3 is led at trick 3, South knows that East has no more. He can then afford to take the trick with the A, since he knows that West can never get in again to make his ♦ K.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Send your bridge problems to Charles True Adams, The Chicago Tribune; inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

SYNOPSIS.

Ricardo Dane visits New York in search of his aunt, Miss Filomena Stanley, his mother's half sister. Ricardo's mother had recently died and left him heir to the ranch and mountain land in Romeu Valley, California, where he had spent most of his life. He intended to find his sole remaining near relative and bring her back to Romeu Valley to spend her remaining days. He had understood this to be his mother's dying wish. His aunt, an actress, had been out of favor with the family, although his mother had sent her checks.

Ricardo calls at the New York address of Miss Filomena Stanley and finds not the ancient aunt he'd expected, but a beautiful young aunt. He arrives in the midst of a cocktail party, staged by Filomena and her roommate, Frances, a Follies girl, in their Bohemian studio. He stayed for the party and meets Filomena next day to talk everything over at luncheon. Ricardo finds taking care of his aunt an enjoyable task. His arrival was fortunate for Filomena, who was in a sad state financially, having been out of work for weeks. Filomena moves into a larger apartment and Ricardo takes more modest quarters in the same building on another floor. Being a Stanley of Romeu, Ricardo insists Filomena should know how to ride a horse, and gives her a piano as a reward for endeavoring to learn.

INSTALLMENT V.

A STRAYING FIANCE.

When the piano arrived and was at last arranged to suit Filomena after long discussion about the lighting, and was tuned properly, she sat down and looked at it. Then she smiled at Ricardo and began to play. Before she stopped his untrained ear had recognized the craft that lay behind those apparently careless notes.

"It's a wonderful piano," she said, crossing to the divan where he lounged, and standing in front of him. "O, Ricardo, it's such a wonderful piano! I never dreamed I'd ever have anything half so wonderful. You don't know—you don't know what you've done for me."

"And don't forget what you're going to do for me. You've got your award of merit ahead of time, now you've got to go ahead and learn to stick on the horse, remember."

She smiled radiantly. I'd learn to ride a unicorn for this," she said.

Later he suggested that she might just as well have lessons again.

"I shall be home before Christmas," Ricardo wrote to Rachel Beatty. "My aunt is interested in music and I have been to some concerts with her. Time goes so quickly here that to do the things I still want to do I shall have to stay a few weeks longer. But I don't want to miss Christmas on the ranch. New York is all right but it's pretty different. I'm still riding around the park, but it is rather tame stuff sticking to a bridle path and an English saddle."

He wrote another page about the varied occupations of a western young man seeing New York for the first time. He wrote rather long letters, for he had been accustomed to write at such length and in such detail to his mother. It was rather natural to write in the same way to Rachel. The gaps in his narrative were the gaps that might have been filled by the things that Filomena did or said. But they could not be put on paper and still sound as though Filomena were a proper aunt. To say that she was interested in music was all right. But to say that he was teaching her to ride because she had never ridden anything except a camel would involve so much explanation. . . .

Of course, he did intend to be home by Christmas. Which left almost a month to enjoy New York and Aunt Filomena.

He had honestly intended to look up Web's friend Eunice, whom he recalled vaguely as a tall girl who had come from some place or other to go to dances with Web at Stanford. She had known Rachel somewhere, for she had once visited Rachel at Romeu Valley, but he had no recollection of this. When he looked for the scrap of paper on which Web had scribbled her address he could not find it.

"O, this is nice," purred Filomena, "you're so clever getting ringside seats for us."

Then came a telegram from Web announcing that he would be in New York for four days. As it was Filomena's afternoon for a music lesson Ricardo met him at the Grand Central and went to his hotel with him.

"Did you ever look up Eunice?" asked Web as they began discussing plans for the evening.

"No," Ricardo admitted. "I lost her address and you know I haven't had much time, and I——"

"Yes, I know how you feel about women," conceded Web, "and you've only had about six weeks here with nothing to do, once you found your aunt. But I want to give her a good time while I'm here. So let's take her out to a show tonight. I'll call her up. Maybe she knows some girl who would come along."

"No need to do that," said Ricardo hastily, "I'm sure I can find some one who——"

"Probably you can. I thought you must have been doing something with your time. How's your aunt, did I ask you?"

"O, she's topping. You'll like her, I'm sure. I'll get back here about seven. You get Eunice and I'll get the tickets. Right?"

At seven o'clock Web and Eunice were waiting in the hotel lobby for Ricardo and the girl he had thought he might be able to find.

"I hope he's not bringing his aunt," said Eunice.

"Knowing him," said Web, "I have somehow a feeling of absolute confidence that whatever he brings it will not be a maiden aunt."

Eunice was a tall girl, unusually graceful for her height, with an unusually fresh pink and white skin. There was nothing startling about Eunice's good looks.

Being aware of Ricardo's feeling toward Rachel Beatty, whose good looks were likewise far from the sensational type, neither of them was prepared for the dazzling vision that came into the lobby at Ricardo's side.

"What's he picked up, a stray princess?" asked Web as Ricardo, beaming, approached them.

"More likely a stray chorus girl," returned Eunice in a stage whisper.

Ricardo seized Eunice's hand. "I remember you, if you have forgotten me," he assured her, looking her over with that comprehending glance that makes girls realize that they are being observed at their most charming. "This is Eunice Greenway, who also lives in the wild west," he said to the vision in cloth of gold at his elbow. "This is my aunt, Miss Stanley."

Webster Sutton and Eunice exchanged an outraged glance.

"This is your what?" asked Web a little blankly and not at all politely.

Ricardo and his aunt broke into delighted laughter. Amid their laughter they explained variously that, of course, they knew it was difficult to believe that Ricardo's aunt was not decrepit, but the ways of nature were strange.

Web swiftly accepted the situation. "'Swonderful," he cried, pumping Filomena's hand, "'swonderful of Dick to find such a made to order aunt. You know, Dick and I went to school together—I suppose I can call you aunt, too, can't I?"

Filomena slid one lovely ringless little hand under his arm as they went toward the big dining room. "No one but my genuine nephew can call me aunt," she said gravely, lifting her lovely little face with its pointed chin and fringe of bright hair. "But there's a quaint custom of calling maiden aunts 'miss,' isn't there? I shall be called Miss Filomena in a tone of deep respect."

"Not too deep," he protested.

When the theater was out, Web's query, "where do we go from here, my children?" was answered promptly by Filomena.

"Chez Jeannette is the place every one goes," she explained; "it's frightfully stuffy and crowded, and you have to pay outrageously. But you can't go home without seeing Chez Jeannette."

"Jeannette it is," agreed Web, "nothing is ever too much to pay when you only have three evenings in New York."

"That's what I thought," she observed, "and I suppose that's what Jeannette thinks, too. There's a bar where you can get rather good drinks. At least, Ricardo says it's all right. I don't drink because I'm a maiden aunt, and, of course, maiden aunts don't."

He smiled broadly at this. "Not being my maiden aunt, as you keep pointing out, you might take a drink with me?"

"O, no. Being out with a strange gentleman doesn't at all alter my status as an aunt. I have my own reputation to keep up after you go home."

As visitors with money to use for that purpose usually do, they succeeded in getting excellently placed at very small tables, beside the tiny square of glittering dance floor.

"O, this is nice," purred Filomena, "you're so clever getting ringside seats for us."

The two girls had to discuss food and drink with a hovering waiter. Ricardo and Web went out to the bar. Filomena ordered a club sandwich and said that Ricardo wanted ham and eggs. He always did.

"Do you suppose it's safe to order for him?" inquired Eunice dubiously.

"I know what he wants," said Filomena with confidence.

"O, probably you know his tastes by now," conceded Eunice, "I don't think I dare order for Web, he'll have to decide when he gets back."

"We must order something terrible for him and tell him he said he wanted it," proposed Filomena.

"He wouldn't believe it."

"We must make him believe it, and then he'll think he's had too many drinks."

"I don't know everything he likes. After all, I don't live with him."

"He wants a large order of anchovies," Filomena decided, "and a meringue glace. He wants them both at once. White Rock with my sandwich. And White Rock with the ham and eggs. That's all. O, but you haven't ordered. What do you want?"

Eunice ordered caviar and the waiter was allowed to go.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Nurse Needs Shoes.

"I am entering the nursing profession and must have a pair of low heeled white oxfords. I have been unable to buy them because I have not worked since I graduated from high school. My father is an invalid and has not worked for nine years, so my family cannot help me. I wear size 5½ C. I would like some white hose, too, size 9½. L. P."

Can you supply the needs of this young probationer who is anxious to go into training at once? The sports slippers you wore last summer would do.

Young Chap Writes His Frank Opinion of Hipflask Girls

BY DORIS BLAKE.

They drink and tell, too, just as some of the young males kiss and broadcast the news. They accept their share of what the hipflask contains and then sit down and write what they think of the drinking sisters. As witness the most recent report received, signed "Hex."

"My friend and I stopped off in a town on our way north to see two girls we knew there. . . . We had dinner at their home. . . . Then, it was proposed we go on to a dance at the country club. . . . The girls brought along a bottle lifted from the cellar. . . . And could they drink?"

And so on. The rest of the caddish communication we will not disclose. Enough to say that the incident served as a broadside against our "very loose moraled young women."

"Maybe we are hard on the young man. But we hate a tatler. Yet—it may be due to this morning—after return to the extremely conventional standards for which man is noted that morality is claiming an old fashioned revival in feminine circles.

The revival is on, young ladies. And if you want to be as uptodate in your private lives as you are in your dress, you leave the liquor and the easy necking habits alone. Mrs. Mary Agnes Hamilton, lecturer and former member of the British house of commons, reports that young people in England are moving away from the drinking and swearing habits of early post-war fashion. They are turning to domesticity and marriage with a good old fashioned idea of making it a go with the first altar partner.

In our country, too, the very smart young women are abandoning the wild ways and the wild days of the post-war era. It is only a group of not so smart young folk here and there who still pursue the loose manners and loose morals of yesterday's young generation.

It was a losing game for women. It still is, where it is practised. If a man drinks and tells it probably is more becauce his girl ideals are outraged than because he is a cad. Whether modern woman rejects the idea of being idealized by man or not, it is what the gentleman in love wants to do and you can't stop him.

This Dry Shampoo Formula May Prove Valuable to You

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If for some reason you do not want to make a date with your hair dresser or yourself for a shampoo and you want your hair to look bright and clean, here is an emergency pick-up for you. Just take your clean Turkish towel and rub the head vigorously fore, aft, top, and sides. Take another towel and repeat.

Then take your brush and give yourself five minutes' good brushing. You may have to have your wave reset, but I have in mind for this emergency shampoo people who are suffering with colds or some other ailment that disposes temporarily of the soap and water shampoo.

This treatment is excellent for the scalp and hair. You will feel, yourself, how tingling it is and how much more life there is to the hair, as a consequence. If you feel you have rubbed dry hair a bit too dry, just wet your finger tips with a little warm olive oil or oil of sweet almonds, and rub it into the scalp at convenient intervals.

You know, I think the idea of rubbing a tiny bit of oil into the scalp nightly to combat the lusterless hair is a good one. Usually the oil treatment is postponed until the night before a shampoo. Then you practically soak the hair in oil. But you can lay on just enough to make the scalp feel moist and the hair show a bit more weight and gloss by a light fingered application nightly.

You can do this, too, without ruining your wave. You feed your face cream nightly. Why not feed the scalp its lubricant, too?

A hurry-up treatment for the oily haired is the dry shampoo method. You can use the towels as described. If this is not sufficient to stem the oil, use orris powder or warm corn meal. Sprinkle through the hair and then brush out thoroughly. Common table salt, possibly handier, may be employed in the same manner. A friend of mine uses one of the cleaning liquids with success. The odor evaporates quickly.

The sulphur preparations for dandruff conditions, on account of the odor, have to be used the night before a shampoo.

1931 Bible Sales Near High Record, Report at Meeting

There was no depression in Bible sales during 1931. This was reported yesterday at the annual luncheon meeting of the Chicago Bible society at the Morrison hotel by speakers who declared that sales of Bibles in the central states last year mounted to the highest figure except one in the 92 years of the society's existence.

More than 1,000,000 copies of the Testaments were distributed from the Chicago agency alone last year. The total was only slightly less than that of 1930.

Prof. Arthur E. Holt of the Chicago Theological seminary spoke at the meeting.

Children Unable to Cope with Sarcasm, Teasing by Adults

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

One mother writes me: "I should like you to advise me as to how to help my little girl. She cannot stand any teasing at all."

Few children can. Teasing and sarcasm are the two things they cannot fight. Obedience, punishment, reprimands and all the other problems children have to tackle they seem quite able to cope with, to judge from the letters received from frantic mothers. But in teasing there is no comeback that is its own satisfaction. If teasing is done by outsiders it hurts, but if it is done by the parents or those who love them it is even more painful.

Though we can refrain from teasing children ourselves, it is not always possible to protect them from it—either by other children or by adults. [Even doting uncles and aunts seem particularly partial to a playful kind of gentle teasing which often gets the child in a state where he is ready to "lam the world one," as one small boy put it.] When children are little we should try to protect them from this most tantilizing vice as much as we can.

But as children grow older all we can do is to teach them how to accept teasing. Mothers can explain that if they don't show that the teasing bothers them the teaser will stop, as all he wants to do is to get the child mad.

One mother, in desperation, gave her little son "teasing" lessons. He was so easily tantilized that something had to be done. He understood it was a game that she played with him to teach him to recognize this vice and to teach him to control his annoyance.

Hollywood's Crowds Flock to 'Mata Hari'

Police Stars Let Autos Reach Theater.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The crush of Hollywood first nighters to attend the première of Greta Garbo's "Mata Hari" here tonight caused the Chinese theater to hand out enlarged facsimiles of Los Angeles policeman's badges to every ticket buyer. The facsimiles were full of glue on one side, and the first nighters fixed them on the windshields of their motors, otherwise they couldn't pass inside the police lines which shunted all ordinary traffic off Hollywood boulevard in vicinity of the theater.

After ten years with Hal Roach, in which his short reel comedies were one of Roach's most dependable sources of income, Charlie Chase, the comedian, was summoned into Roach's office and asked to take a fifty per cent cut in salary. He refused, and is leaving on a vaudeville tour shortly, doing a piano, singing and comedy act.

The surgeons give Estelle Taylor nothing but bad news. Her neck is held in a steel, wood and plaster contraption and they say she must continue to wear it and lie almost motionless for two more weeks. Her injury is a cracked neck vertebra, due to an automobile accident.

"Freaks," the weird Tod Browning story built around the abnormal figures and restless lives of a side show group, will open tomorrow in San Diego for a week's test run, to see if the picture can be assimilated by American audiences as it stands. If the audiences manifest displeasure Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer expects to re-do portions of the picture. Hollywood audiences saw it at previews, pronounced it a "smashing," "gripping" film.

William K. Howard, the Fox director, has left for Phoenix, Ariz., to study Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd's murder trial, because his next assignment is to direct "The Trial of Vivian Ware."

George Archainbaud has a hobby that doesn't fit in with the general idea of a movie director as a dignified big shot. George collects stamps. Among some of his treasures are authentic American pony express stamps, so it will be seen he has gone in for his hobby in an expensive way. But the real kick is to see Archainbaud at the Radio-R-K-O lot, rush up to Mary Astor, or some one else, and ask them to give him the stamp, please, off some piece of foreign fan mail that has just arrived.

They engaged five Negro mammies to act as cooks for "Wet Parade" scenes at Paramount. In order to make the action authentic they roasted hams, suckling pigs, and spitted roasts of lamb. The food was scheduled to be distributed to charitable organizations after the scene was shot, but alas, it smelled too good to some of the cast, and charity lost out on most of it.

WEDDING

Mrs. Estella West of Kansas City, Mo., announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Estella, to Dr. Alfred F. Gariess, son of Mrs. Bertha Gareiss of 6158 South Whipple street, to take place tomorrow in the chapel of St. Luke's hospital. Dr. Gareiss and his bride will leave after the ceremony for New Orleans. Miss West is a graduate of Northwestern university and Dr. Gareiss was graduated from the medical school of Northwestern.

THE "OLIVE BRANCH" DIDN'T HALT WAR, BUT BRINGS $53,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The auctioneer's hammer fell tonight on the "Olive Branch Petition," the famous peace offering to George III. that once crossed the Atlantic in a sailing ship bearing with it the hopes of American colonists. It sold for $53,000. There was something of drama among the brilliant throng in the American Art Association Anderson galleries as the sale of the almost priceless Lothian manuscripts and incunabula was halted precisely at 10 o'clock to make way for the "Olive Branch."

The historic document, its faded parchment bound with old blue tape and the whole inclosed in a polished silk lined box bearing the arms of Earl Fitzwilliam, was placed upon the "pulpit" where Auctioneer A. N. Bade presided.

"Who'll say $25,000?" asked Bade, his voice breaking an almost reverent hush as the audience realized that the thing before them once was touched by hands that made American history.

Seventeen bids in all, from possibly half a dozen individuals.

Charity Bridge Party at Hotel Sherman Tonight

A bridge party and dance will be held at the Hotel Sherman tonight, sponsored by the Guilders, a philanthropic club of women recently formed. It is planned to hold such entertainments from time to time to get funds for a home for boys and girls on the west side. Bridge, dancing, and fortune telling will be features.

MRS. GEORGE ZENDT.

Tickets may be obtained at the door or by calling Superior 4830. The money will buy such necessities as fuel, food, etc. Among the women who have taken tables are Mrs. Royden J. Keith, Mrs. Frederick Moorhead, and Mrs. George Zendt of the Seneca, Mrs. Felix Borowski, Baroness Violet Beatrice Wenner, Macena Barton, and Sis Willner.

Gieseking Symphony Soloist

BY EDWARD MOORE.

WALTER GIESEKING, the pianist, became one of the season's important visitors to the Chicago Symphony orchestra last night, as he will be again this afternoon. He loomed particularly large because he made an expert presentation of something that hardly gets its fair showing nowadays—namely: the art of playing Mozart.

It was the concerto in C that he chose, Koechel 467 if complete accuracy is insisted upon, and with it he made his point completely clear. It was a demonstration which for daintiness, grace, accuracy, fineness could not have been bettered. At that it was surprising to discover how much vitality there can be in the fine spun tone that Mr. Gieseking employs in such cases.

Not that he is merely a specialist in spider web melodies. He also played Richard Strauss' "Burleske," and made a thunderous and stirring show out of it. But that is the sort of piece to be learned and then played with a tongue-in-cheek brilliancy, which was precisely the impression he made with it. Consequently one is likely to remember him most vividly for the beauty of his Mozart performance. That was uncommonly fine art.

The program was M. S. throughout, by which is meant not manuscript, but Moussorgsky-Miaskowsky-Mozart and Strauss. Back into the répertoire came Nicolas Miaskowsky's Seventh Symphony, a disquieting observance in one movement, quite evidently an important document in the five year plan, and intended to convince all humanity of the beauties of revolutionism. Perhaps it has not yet succeeded in doing this.

Elsewhere there was in the M list Moussorgsky's "A Night on the Bare Mountain," and in the S list two excerpts from Strauss operas, the Dance of the Seven Veils from "Salome" and the Love Scene from "Feursnot." The performance under Mr. DeLamarter's baton was colorful and inspiring throughout, in several instances transcending the music performed.

Optometrists of Illinois Open Sessions Monday

The Illinois State Society of Optometrists will open its twenty-fourth annual state convention in the Palmer house Monday, Feb. 8. More than 500 members from throughout the state will attend. The convention will consider as a principal subject plans for a statewide advertising and propaganda campaign.

TODAY!

The Chicago Theater Celebrates 15 Years of BALABAN & KATZ PROGRESS!

THIS WEEK BRINGS TO A CLIMAX
FIFTEEN YEARS OF EFFORT AND ACHIEVEMENT!

FIFTEEN years ago we dedicated ourselves to the task of establishing Chicago as the world leader in entertainment and resolved to serve its every community with theatres of comfort and refinement!

That ambition has been fulfilled—what was to many an Utopian dream fifteen years ago is an actual fact today.

Chicago IS the World leader in Entertainment! And Publix Balaban & Katz Theaters serve upwards of one million theater-goers every week.

Every innovation, every progressive step in theatre building, in ventilation, and in theatre service was made in Chicago. The present idea of scientific cooling systems for the summer months first came into being in our theatres.

We created a new form of entertainment when we inaugurated the vogue of presenting outstanding stage and screen stars in motion picture theatres, bringing to the millions the most important personalities and attractions millions, regardless of cost, the most important personalities and attractions at our low admission prices.

We do not intend to rest on our laurels. Our past accomplishments are but a slight indication of what Chicago may anticipate in the days to come.

We regard of inestimable value the good will we have established through these years and we are determined to maintain it at all costs. We are grateful to Chicago for the opportunity it gave us and for its continued confidence.

Dual Ratio

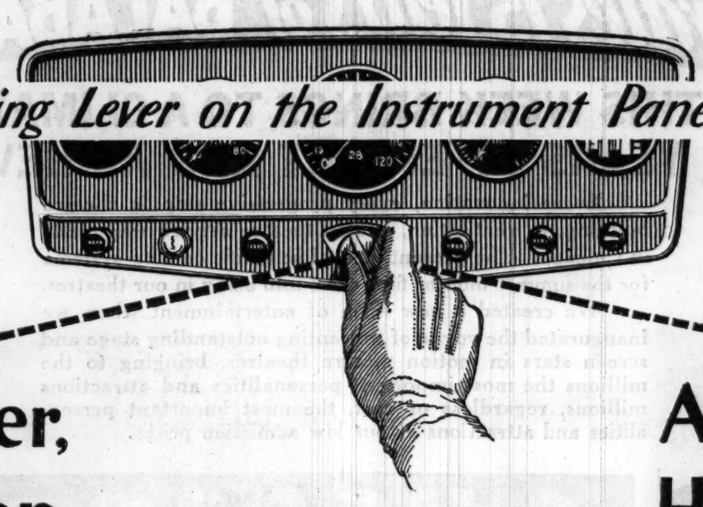
Takes the Compromise Out of Motor Cars

Every automobile built is handicapped in its performance on hills in order that it can perform on level roads.

NOW, for the first time Dual-Ratio makes it possible for a car to be 100% efficient in hills—and also 100% efficient in level country. No compromise! Dual-Ratio completely changes the car's performance. Lightning acceleration. Power to sail up hills—or speed with smoothness that is almost like coasting.

Every automobile built is handicapped in its performance on level roads in order that it can perform on hills.

By Simply Turning Lever on the Instrument Panel Your Auburn



Runs Faster, Smoother, with Less Noise, Vibration and Wear, With Economy

Dual-Ratio is an even greater improvement in automobiles than were Free Wheeling and Silent-Mesh Transmission. To enjoy its advantages you do not shift gears any differently than now. Simply turn a lever on the instrument panel and you completely change the character, performance, and capabilities of your Auburn. The results obtained eclipse all previous automobile performance.

Turn it one way and you have a car that goes up hills FASTER than any other production car—that accelerates and gets away from traffic AHEAD of all other cars—and that gives extra power, without strain on the motor, for pulling through sand, etc.

Turn the lever the other way and you have a car especially adapted for level roads—that will run FASTER AND SMOOTHER than any other production car. You are not needlessly racing your motor, depreciating it, wasting power and fuel!

In the higher ratios the motor drops down one-third of its revolutions, but your car continues at the speed of other cars whose motors are being abused. For this reason Dual-Ratio makes possible a great reduction in wear and tear on the motor and moving parts—a reduction in vibration—a reduction in noise—and a reduction in fuel consumption. It means smoother, easier, and more enjoyable performance, and LONGER CAR LIFE.

Accelerates Faster and Climbs Hills Faster than Any Other Production Motor Car

Just as Auburn was the pioneer of Straight Eights, years ahead of others; and originated the X-type frame which others are copying; and offered the first car to combine Free Wheeling with Silent-Constant Mesh—and first to have Free Wheeling in all forward speeds; so Auburn again leads with Dual-Ratio. In this manner, Auburn keeps its value the greatest on the market, at the least cost to the consumer.

Faster, smoother, quieter performance, with less wear, in level country.

Performs equally well in hills as in flat country, without overtaxing and depreciating motor.

In the lower ratio the Auburn can sail away from traffic—extraordinary power in get-away.

On straight-aways your car continues at same speed, but the motor drops down one-third of its former speed.

Dual-Ratio is available in the new Auburn 12-cylinder Custom Models. We make the unequivocal claim that these cars accelerate faster, run faster and smoother, and climb hills faster and easier than any other production car. 160 Horse Power, 133-inch wheelbase.

12 AUBURN 8

POWERED BY LYCOMING

Dual-Ratio is available in the improved Auburn Straight Eight Custom Models. 100 Horse Power. 127-inch Wheelbase. L. G. S. Free Wheeling with Silent-Constant Mesh Transmission. Improved steering, brakes and bodies. The strongest claim that can be made for these cars is—They represent the greatest Eight-value Auburn has ever built.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Amid fist fights, protested goals, a match penalty, a major and double major, as well as 16 other penalties, the Detroit Falcons defeated the Chicago Blackhawks, 4 to 2, in a National Hockey league game here tonight.

Both teams, apparently unaffected by last night's game in Chicago, which the Hawks won, 2 to 1, were out to win by fair means or foul. Tied two all at the close of the second period, the Falcons scored twice in the final period and then went on a stalling defense which thwarted the Hawks' fierce five man attacks.

Hawks Protest Violently.

Teddy Graham, Hawk defense man, drew the match penalty, which expels a player for the remainder of the game, midway in the final period and Cy Wentworth accompanied him to the penalty box at the same time to serve a double major of 10 minutes. Both penalties were called by Referee Cooper Smeaton after the Hawks had protested violently against the fourth Falcon goal. They claimed the shot hit the goal posts. The official charged the pair with "misconduct and back talk." Substitutes were allowed to replace them, however.

Rough hard checking which started with Ebbie Goodfellow's major in the first period, continued throughout. Altogether 19 penalties were called.

Hawks Score First.

The Hawks scored first, Boucher breaking into Falcon ice with the puck, eluding the defense and riding in on Connell. Just as he reached the net he passed to Thompson, and Thompson crossed up the rushing defense by passing the rubber back to Boucher, who beat Connell easily in 2:16. Then Frank Carson broke away a minute later and sent the puck to Danny Cox, who duped Gardiner with a shot that was unbeatable.

Three minutes later the Falcons went ahead when Goodfellow and Kilrea teamed for a goal, Kilrea taking the pass as he flashed in on Gardiner. Then the penalties began, Gottselig and Aurie taking trips together for a bumping match, and Graham joining them a minute later for hooking.

It was nip and tuck again as the second period opened, with the Hawks suddenly thrown on a frantic defense when Cook and Wentworth drew charging penalties in quick succession.

Boucher joined the penalty parade for tripping Doug Young, making six penalties in less than ten minutes. Lewis then was banished for slashing. This gave the Hawks the tying goal.

March Ties Score.

Cook started the play, swinging down the right boards to give Mush March the puck inside Falcon territory. March flashed by Alex Smith, Falcon defense man, and drove a shot past Connell to make the score two all.

The final period opened just as fast as the first, with the Falcons taking the play, but failing to click on passes until the seven minute mark, when Aurie laid a perfect pass to Goodfellow, who slammed the puck past Gardiner to put the Falcons a goal ahead.

Trouble broke loose at the eight minute mark. Goodfellow slipped Kilrea a pass near the goal and the Falcon wing man slammed it at the net. The goal judge flashed the light, but the Hawks protested vigorously that the puck hit the post and should not count. The protest almost reached the fistic stage.

Finally Referee Smeaton allowed the goal, gave Graham the match penalty and Wentworth the double major of 10 minutes.

With five minutes to play the Hawks sent down five forwards, but the Falcons rebuked them with a stalling defense.

LAYTON PROVES POOR STOOGE FOR SCHAEFER MAGIC

Beats Balk Line King, 50 to 25, in Cue Meet.

Johnny Layton, a ten time champion, crushed the three cushion title hopes of Jake Schaefer, the balkline master, at Mussey's yesterday. Layton, a disappointment thus far, trounced Schaefer, 50 to 25, in 50 innings.

Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia took the undisputed possession of first place by winning from Len Kenney of Chicago in the first night game and was assured of the leadership when Arthur Thurnblad, defending titleholder, dropped the second night game to Allen Hall, also of Chicago.

Hall Stops Champ.

Reiselt triumphed over Kenney by 50 to 32 in 45 innings. Reiselt now has won five and lost one and leads Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, who has won four and lost one. Kenney fell to eighth place with three victories and four defeats.

Thurnblad bowed to Hall, 50 to 26 in 50 innings, and went to third place with four games won and two lost. He defeated Hall in the final game for the championship last year, 50 to 42. Hall moved into a tie with Tiff Denton for eleventh place with two won and five lost.

Layton in his match against Schaefer played with the same defensive skill and unerring accuracy that checked Willie Hoppe in two title finals here four years ago. Schaefer played well, but was completely "locked up," as cue men express it, and it was seldom that he had a natural shot.

Jake Has One Chance.

Schaefer's only chance to display his skill was in the 25th inning, when he made six, his high run of the game, starting off a safety and making four shots that seemed virtually impossible. It was the great Schaefer stroke at its best.

Layton won because he played to make points when the shots were on, and when the outlook was not so bright he played safe. Schaefer, a 3 to 1 favorite and anxious to make points, went out to score and when he missed, he invariably left a shot for Layton, which went to demonstrate clearly that a balk line wonder could be a three cushion novice.

Layton and Schaefer now are tied with three games won and three lost and have only an outside chance to remain in the championship fight. If they win their remaining five games they may gain a tie for the title.

Layton Opens Fast.

Layton opened at a terrific pace, scoring 13 points to Schaefer's two in the first ten innings. In the next ten Layton increased this margin to 19 to 6. At the end of 30 innings, Layton showed the way at 27 to 16. At the end of the 40th inning Layton's

BUT WHAT OF SHANGHAI, RUDY?

Columbus, O., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Michigan's basketball team completely outplayed Ohio State's five here tonight to win, 38 to 25, in a conference game. As has been the custom with the Ohio State team, few baskets were made during the first half and not until after about 12 minutes had been played in the first half did the Buckeyes garner a goal from the field. Then they rang up three in rapid succession. The attack of the Ohio team was similarly bottled up in the second half and after 15 minutes of play only four goals were counted.

Ohio was vastly superior to Michigan in the free throw game, making 11 out of 14 attempts, while Michigan was totaling 6 out of 15 chances.

Michigan started fast in the first few minutes of play and had the Buckeyes 13 to 6 before the Ohioans really got into the game. After a pair of free throws by the Buckeyes, Michigan ran the score up to 19 to 7. Here Ohio made its three baskets in a row, the only ones of the half. With a long basket by Eveland Michigan rounded out the period, 21 to 14.

The story was the same in the second half, the Buckeyes trailing for more than half the period by ten points, with the Wolverines drawing away toward the end.

Dusek Is Victor

Rudy Dusek of Omaha, Neb., defeated Matros Kirilenko last night at the Rainbo Fronton by winning two straight falls. Dusek won the first fall in 38:20 and the second in 3:12. A crowd of 2,000 attended.

GINTER KNOCKS OUT MURGURIA IN FIRST ROUND

John Ginter of Howard's Boxing school knocked out Richard Murguria, Mexican Athletic club, in the first round to win the bantamweight title in the final round of the north side suburban championship amateur boxing tournament last night at the Belle Plaine Athletic club.

There were two other knockout victories in the lighter divisions, Billy Glasgow taking the flyweight championship by sending Matt Clavenich to the mat in the first round, and Phil Heinz knocking out Bruno Winez in the second round for the featherweight title. The results:

118 POUND CLASS—John Ginter knocked out Richard Murguria, 1.
126 POUND CLASS—Phil Heinz knocked out Bruno Winez, 2.
135 POUND CLASS—Ray Davis beat Fred Herboz, 3.

DON'T OVERLOOK RICHBOURG IN CUBS' OUTFIELD

Former Brave May Draw Regular Job.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Lance Richbourg will have to be counted in when the scramble for outfield jobs gets under way at the Cubs' Catalina Island, Cal., training camp next month. That's the opinion of Rogers Hornsby, the Cubs' boss, who came up from his St. Louis home yesterday to attend the William Wrigley memorial services at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church.

Richbourg, one of the few native Floridans in major competition, specializes in the art of right fielding, so in his quest for regular employment he will be confronted by a hurdle in the shape of Vin Barton.

Barton, recalled from Los Angeles last summer when both Riggs Stephenson and the famous Hack Wilson fell apart, will be remember as the young fellow who, while hitting for an average of only .238, manufactured 13 home runs.

It Was Hornsby's Idea.

It was at the suggestion of Hornsby that the club slipped something like $25,000 to the Boston Braves for Richbourg's services, so the north side pilot naturally hopes for the best. One thing that the Floridan has in his favor is his speed. He also fields capably. And as a hitter he turned in a .286 mark last season, which rates well when it is considered that he was thrown in with a team not inclined to cause the opposition pitchers much worry.

Although Stephenson's physical condition will be a puzzle until he actually puts on a uniform and makes some motions, Hornsby believes there is a possibility of using the veteran in left field at least part of the time.

"The best you can expect from Stevie is fifty or sixty games," said Hornsby. "It is even possible that the ankle fractured last summer may prevent him from ever again playing regularly, but if there is any chance at all, he will be in there for his hitting strength."

Gives Taylor, Moore Chance.

Because of the uncertainty surrounding Stephenson's physical condition, provision will have to be made for an understudy. Just now Danny Taylor and Johnny Moore appear to have the inside track on this leisurely assignment, but eventually one of them probably will be shipped to join the Cubs' little brothers at Los Angeles.

It also is possible that Barton might be permitted to remain in right field and Richbourg shifted over to the opposite side. He isn't well acquainted over there, but has been around the big leagues long enough to realize that there isn't much difference in the two jobs.

The first squad of Cubs, due to be taken out of here two weeks from tomorrow, will include every youngster on the roster. The four catchers —Hartnett, Hemsley, Zack Taylor, and Campbell, who was recalled from Los Angeles, will be included for good measure. The veteran infielders and outfielders and even the experienced pitchers like Root, Grimes, Smith, Bush, and Malone will not be summoned until the rookies have had ten days of exercising on the magic isle.

The White Sox officials yesterday announced receipt of the signed contract of Pat Caraway.

A Smashing Tap on Wrist and Battalino Hears Birdies

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 28.—The poor old escutcheon of clean sport suffered another body blow from the vulture fangs of the unscrupulous element when the referee tossed Bat Battalino, the ex-featherweight champion, and his roommate, Freddie Miller, out of the ring in Cincinnati last night on charges of faking.

Battalino, who is one of the best prize fighters in the world, had gone down from a terrific jab to the shoulder and, when the referee made him get up, swooned again, quite helpless, from a furious volley of lefts and rights to the elbows. The referee, Lou Bauman, thereupon disqualified both boys and the customers, who seem unable to realize that a good, raw fake is far more hilarious entertainment than ten fast conscientious rounds, demanded the return of their money.

They're Mr. Reilly's Boys.

Inasmuch as the bout had been advertised as a fake in many newspapers of general circulation well in advance of the fight and the reasons behind the fake had been plainly set forth, the customers would seem to have only themselves to blame if they went to the show expecting to see a legitimate contest. In fact, they had only to take into consideration that Pete Reilly was the manager of both pugilists.

Mr. Reilly was manager of Jack Delaney in Delaney's picturesque surrender to Jack Sharkey in the New York Garden and he was also manager of both Andre Routis and Battalino the night Routis yielded the featherweight championship to Battalino. In the present case the purpose was to transfer the title from Battalino to Miller and keep it under Mr. Reilly's management.

There will now be a great deal of official correspondence featuring the double negative and the split infinitive between various prize fight commissions and one may be sure that in due time this unsavory incident will be severely condemned by unanimous resolution. Battalino and Miller and Mr. Reilly will then be warned that it will go hard with them if there is any repetition of this questionable conduct and the escutcheon of ennobling sport will be wiped clean again. That is the advantage of a washable escutcheon.

Just Big Hearted Boys.

One virtue of the prize fight profession which I think has never been sufficiently recognized is the forgiving character of the commissions which govern it and the customers who support it. There is never a pugilist or manager immersed so deep in sin but that the commissioners, by a majority vote if not unanimously, will lift him out or, if he refuses to be lifted out, crawl to where he is.

I dare suggest that if any action at all is taken against the erring boys who took part in the deplorable affair in Cincinnati, all will have been forgiven within six months and, if not entirely forgotten, then only remembered as a mischievous and harmless prank of some headstrong but fundamentally nice boys.

I was present at a prize fight for a championship of the world in Cincinnati some years ago in which the defending champion, a bantamweight, weighed in at 135 pounds at 3 p. m. and weighed at ringtime about 140. His opponent weighed about 125 pounds himself, and he was regarded as a smart, honest boy who would violate none of the ethics of the situation which called for ten rounds of the fast and furious, with no unnecessary punching in the body and no knockdowns.

And the Customers Like It.

Still, just before the first bell, the champion's manager, a really fine young sportsman, who had only recently shot a man in the back in self-defense, thought it advisable to visit the other boy's corner and admonish him.

"I know," the young pugilist said sincerely. "O. K. on the nose and ears and arms, but no fair in the belly."

It was a nice, fast prize fight, too, and the customers enjoyed it immensely, yelling and leaping from their chairs from time to time throughout the half hour.

Mr. Reilly is so typical of the prize fight profession, so innocent of illusions, and so bland that it would be a great loss to the sport if the prize

FIFTH BOXER TO RETAKE 147 POUND CROWN

Battle Disproves Rumor of Fix.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Jackie Fields whipped Lou Brouillard of Worcester, Mass., in 10 rounds of what seemed to be furious fighting at the Chicago Stadium last night and won the world's welterweight boxing championship.

Mr. Fields, from our own Maxwell street in Chicago—although he isn't a fish peddler—will find the crown fits him perfectly, for he wore it from July 25, 1929, to May 9, 1930. He is one of the few ex-world champions to stage a comeback and regain the title.

The decision was unanimous. Referee Dave Miller and Judges Rube Metz and Livingston Osborne all gave it to Fields. So did nearly all of the folks in the crowd of 11,203, who paid $28,270.24.

Ugly Rumors Before Fight.

There had been ugly rumors before the fight, rumors that it was just a matter of Fields stepping into the ring and getting the decision. Or, as the horse track folks would say, "the race had been run the night before."

But the scandal mongers were all wrong. At the beginning of the sixth round it was impossible to tell how the bout was going, so furious had the fighting been.

If it had not been for the ugly rumors it would have been one of the greatest championship battles Chicagoans had witnessed since Jack Dempsey lost to Gene Tunney in the 14 count struggle.

When last night's fight ended Gen. John V. Clinnin climbed through the ropes and presented Fields with a belt emblematic of the championship. Fans at the ringside pointed out that Gen. Clinnin would not have played that rôle if he thought the fight was anything but on the level.

Fifth Title Repeater.

Fields, the best looking boxer in the cauliflower business and a real master of his profession when he met the rather awkward left hander, Brouillard, is the fifth fighter to hold the welterweight championship twice. Mysterious Billy Smith was the first, Rube Ferns was the second, Jack Britton was the third, and Jack Thompson, the Chicago Negro, was the fourth.

Fight fans have come to look at the welterweight title as the football of the prize ring.

The first few rounds were fairly even. Little damage was done, although Brouillard popped Field with a hard right to the mouth early in the round. Fields at this time was flinching from the wallops Brouillard was tossing in his direction.

Brouillard Wabbly in Sixth.

Fields fought back in the fourth and fifth and had about evened it up. In the sixth he put on his first great rally. His vicious lefts straight from the shoulder and his rights which traveled all the way from the hips connected. The champion, a desperate look in his face, was wabbling this way and that. He was being whipped so badly that he hardly looked like a champion. The army of Fields backers began to call for a knockout.

Fields continued his attack in the seventh and eighth rounds. He hit Brouillard with everything but the water bucket which Manager Jack Kearns and Trainer Teddy Hayes were sharing as a ringside seat on the steps leading up into the ring.

Fields had a wide margin by the time the ninth round opened, although he hadn't been able to upset the tough Brouillard. He seemed to realize he had the fight won. His backers were fairly lifting the roof off the big west side arena by this time.

Fields Stronger at Finish.

Brouillard rallied here and there, but as often as he came in charging in toward his challenger Fields punched back with his tantalizing left and his more forceful right. The tenth round went to Brouillard by a shade. Still Fields was pecking back at him with that left and was connecting here and there with his right. Fields was stronger at the final tap of the bell.

Several championship battles have been fought at the Stadium since Paddy Harmon put up the big arena, but this was the first in which a major title changed hands.

If it hadn't been for the rumors about the "race being run the night before" it would have been a perfect night for the folks who get their evening's kick out of a punch fest.

Nichols, Jones Win.

There was nothing neighborly in the light heavyweight tourney fight between the two Buffalo boys, George Nichols and Lou Scozza. Nichols weighed 164 pounds to Scozza's 171½ pounds, but easily won the decision. Nichols connected with a solid left to the jaw, which sent Scozza down for a count of two in the second round.

Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro, advanced one more step toward the light heavyweight championship by winning on a technical knockout over Battling Bozo of Birmingham in the ninth round.

Franta Nekolny, Czecho-Slovakia, 146½ pounds, and Jackie Brady, Syracuse, N. Y., 146, boxed ten rounds to a draw. The fight wasn't particularly interesting.

In the four round preliminary Franklyn Cheek, Milwaukee, 124, defeated Baby Colima of Mexico, 123 pounds. Cheek floored Colima for two counts in the second round. It was a slugfest all the way.

DVONCH PICKS DVONCH TO WIN GOLDEN GLOVES

He Backs Heavyweight Claims with Fists.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The heavyweight Golden Gloves champion this year is going to be a big strapping 200 pounder if Duffy Dvonch has his way about it. Dvonch, who won the outdoor Central A. A. U. tournament last summer, yesterday entered the Chicago Golden Gloves trials with the announced intention of winning the title and the right to meet New York's best heavyweight.

Johnny Long, who weighed less than 170 pounds, won the heavyweight title last year. He whipped Adam Smith, the veteran of Rockford, Ill., Golden Gloves boxing. Johnny is a left hander and a good fighter, but when he met Justin Sirutis, the New York champion, he was outweighed more than 30 pounds. For two rounds Long outpointed Sirutis, but in the last round he weakened and lost the decision. Thus Sirutis became one of the three New York boys to win their intercity fights. Chicago boys won 13 fights.

Johnny'll Be Back This Year.

Long, however, proved his ability when he whipped Adam Smith in the finals for Smith disposed of New York's second place boxer in the intercity competition. Long will be back in this year's tournament. However he's entered in his natural division, the light heavyweight. Long qualified for the Tournament of Champions in 1931 in the Gary, Ind., sectional tournament sponsored by the Gary Post-Tribue. He entered the heavyweight class so that Jack Kranz might have a clear path in the 175 pound class. Kranz won that title and also won intercity and international championships.

Long lives in Hammond, Ind. He is a junior in the Hammond High school. Since last year Johnny has won 18 of his 19 bouts. Tony Sutton, the 175 Golden Gloves alternate, beat him once, but Johnny knocked out Tony the other night in retaliation.

South Bend Opens Feb. 15.

Dvonch will not find it easy sailing to win in the Tournament of Champions. Merrill Tonn, alternate on last year's squad for a time, has entered again. After the tournament last spring Tonn quit boxing and went to northern Wisconsin to work in a lumber camp. Seven months of wood chopping put him in good physical condition and his comeback has been markedly succesful. Tonn has won 10 of his last 14 matches.

The majority of the 20 out of town tournaments will be held the second or third week of February. Walter Willey, sports editor of the South Bend, Ind., News Times, has set Feb. 15 for the first night of the Golden Gloves bouts in South Bend.

SMITTY—FOR CRYING OUT LOUD

Battalino Is Fined $5,000 and Suspended

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 28.—(AP)—A $5,000 fine and indefinite suspension were imposed by the Cincinnati boxing commission on Christopher [Bat] Battalino, Hartford, Conn., featherweight, for his no contest match with Freddie Miller, Cincinnati southpaw, here last night.

The commission heard all parties today. The members gave Miller a clean record and said he would be paid for three rounds, the distance the fighters had gone when Referee Lou Bauman stopped the bout on the grounds Battalino was not trying. Miller's claim to the title, however, was not allowed.

The 2,015 persons who paid to see the fight billed as for the title are to be reimbursed in full, but James Shevlin, who promoted the bout for the Fair Play Athletic club, will suffer no loss. The money is to come out of Battalino's fine.

The Hartford fighter's suspension will be effective in all states affiliated with the National Boxing association, but, the Cincinnati commission said, will not affect matches Battalino may have contracted for previously.

GAR WOOD'S TIME NOT WORLD MARK, OFFICIAL RULES

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Although he drove his Miss America IX. over Indian creek, Miami Beach, Fla., yesterday faster than any human ever has piloted a hydroplane, Gar Wood appears to have failed to set a new world's record by about two turns of his craft's propeller blades.

The probable failure to dethrone Kaye Don, British pilot, was disclosed today by W. D. Edenburn, chairman of the racing committee of the Yachtsmen's Association of America, when he explained that to establish a new world's speedboat record the old mark must be bettered by at least one-half a nautical mile an hour. Edenburn also pointed out that the record must be calculated on the basis of nautical and not statute miles per hour.

Wood in his two trials yesterday attained an average speed of 110,785 statute or 96.20 nautical miles an hour. Kaye Don's world's record was 110,223 statute miles an hour and Edenburn reduced this to 95.71997 nautical miles.

Champions on Merry Garden Fight Program

Champions of Golden Gloves, Catholic Youth organization, and A. A. U. tournaments will feature the eight bout card tonight at Merry Garden arena, Sheffield and Belmont avenues. Tony Muscarello, A. A. U. featherweight title holder, will fight Bill Reardon of Oak Park in one bout. Others bring together Gene Higgins, C. Y. O. lightweight champion, and Joey Kleko, last year's Golden Gloves alternate; Pete Verri, A. A. U. lightweight titleholder, and Hank Kastman, north side Golden Gloves winner, and Larry Strong and Bob Hermance, Wisconsin Golden Gloves winner.

Young Stribling leaves Chicago today for Macon, Ga., to resume training for his tentative match with Ernie Schaaf at Chicago Stadium Feb. 26. He arrived yesterday on business and said he is in good physical condition, his broken left hand being healed.

Jimmy Eliopoulos, flyweight runnerup in several amateur tournaments, and Oscar O'Hannion, Catholic Youth organization champion, will meet in the main event of the show tonight at the Northwest Lions Athletic club, 4300 West North avenue. Phil McQuillan, south side welterweight, and Bill Kirkpatrick will battle in the semi-windup. Six other matches will round out the program.

Rusty Hughes, who played with the Detroit Cougars against the Blackhawks in Chicago, will start fighting as a professional April 15, after the hockey season. Hughes, who is now playing with the Syracuse stars hockey team of the International league, has engaged in seven amateur ring bouts.

Jimmy Christy and Jim Myers will headline the amateur show at the Coulon club, 1154 East 63d street, tonight. Red Chinski and Ray Cannick battle in the semi-windup match. Six supporting contests will be held.

A Smashing Tap on Wrist— and Bat's Out fight commissions, in a sudden access of wrath and morality, were to exclude him and all his fighters, definitely and forever. A man of such imagination and such resourcefulness is not easily replaced in the prize fight business, and after all it is easy to pass a resolution of censure which would cover the case and renew the whiteness of the old escutcheon.

It's No Game for Football Coach.

I have read that Mr. Eddie Casey, the coach of the Harvard football team, recently was offered the post of prize fight commissioner in Massachusetts, but turned it down because, among other reasons, he didn't want it. This was a wise decision for Mr. Casey and also for pugilism in Massachusetts.

The Harvard football coach could not be expected to approach the job with an understanding mind. If Eddie Casey as prize fight commissioner had to review a case of faking he would be likely to approach the problem from the angle of a Harvard coach considering a fake between two football teams. In such case he would have to deal very severely with all concerned, whereas a good prize fight commissioner must realize that if all the parties to all the fakes of the last ten years had been punished by the football code of sportsmanship there wouldn't be any match available for a big fight next summer.

If Mr. Reilly is ruled out, pugilism's loss will be racing's gain, for he is a man ideally suited to serve as the president of a winter horse track and one of the racing associations operating in the south is certain to bid him in.

Levinsky and Baer Have Something to Fight for Tonight

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Madison Square Garden has rigged up something tangible for King Levinsky and Max Baer to quarrel over in their ten round heavyweight bout tomorrow night.

The winner, Promoter Jimmy Johnston has decided, automatically will become chief deputy alternate for the Schmeling-Sharkey affair next June. Just why Promoter Johnston feels he will need an alternate has not been made clear, but the fact remains.

Despite a disappointing showing in two previous appearances here last winter, Baer has been established a slight favorite over the Kingfish tomorrow night. Expected to scale 215 pounds, the Californian will pack a weight advantage of some 20 pounds. Further, he has shown in his workouts at Orangeburg that he is much more serious about a fighting career than he used to be.

margin was 39 to 17. He had his high run of 8 in the 35th. He ended the game with a run of 3 in the 50th inning.

Jay Bozeman, the sensational Californian, suffered a setback in the first afternoon game when he was beaten by Bud Westhus of St. Louis, 50 to 33, in 48 innings. This was the first time in eight games that Bozeman failed to count at least 40 points. Westhus and Bozeman were even at the end of ten innings with 11 points each. Westhus later had two runs of six which served to check Bozeman's march.

Bozeman now has lost five out of eight games while Westhus has won three and lost six, with only two games left.

INDIAN QUINTET DEFEATS TAYLOR TRUNKS, 26 TO 22

The American Indians basketball team defeated the Taylor Trunks girls, 26 to 22, last night at White City. The Trunks led, 12 to 10, at the half.

Light Foot, right guard, whose performance belied his name, was too closely watched to score in his usual fashion. Bear Paws, 6 feet 2½ inches tall, made five baskets for the victors.

The center jump was eliminated and the ball put in play after each score under the basket by the team which had been scored upon to offset the Indians' advantage in height.

The Rock Island five, champions of the South Town Commercial league, won the curtain raiser by defeating the Ryan Sportsmen, titleholders of the Tri-Chi Industrial league, 17 to 15. Lineup:

ST. PATRICK PREP QUINTET MEETS DE PAUL TONIGHT

Tuley, Crane Capture City League Games.

Prep Games Today

CATHOLIC LEAGUE.
Weber at Loyola.
St. Patrick at De Paul.
De La Salle at Mount Carmel.
St. Ignatius at Joliet.

SUBURBAN LEAGUE.
Morton at New Trier.
Oak Park at Proviso.
Deerfield at Evanston.

WEST SUBURBAN CONFERENCE.
Riverside at West Chicago.
Downers Grove at Maine.
Glenbard at York.

St. Patrick and De Paul, the two undefeated heavyweight quintets in the north section of the Chicago Catholic High School league, will meet tonight at the De Paul gymnasium. Both squads have scored four consecutive victories.

De Paul's lightweights, leading the sectional race, will face the St. Patrick ponies in a preliminary game. De Paul is undefeated in its four league contests, while St. Patrick has dropped only one game.

Weber Meets Loyola.

In other north section games, Weber's squads will meet Loyola at the latter's gymnasium. In the south division De La Salle will face Mount Carmel and St. Ignatius will travel to Joliet.

In the Suburban league, New Trier heavyweight squad will seek its fifth straight victory when it meets Morton at Winnetka; Oak Park will go to Maywood, facing Proviso, and Deerfield will meet Evanston on the latter's floor.

Tuley heavies of the west section scored its second victory yesterday by defeating McKinley, 35 to 21, at Tuley's gymnasium. Kadish led the victors, scoring three baskets and three free throws. Tuley led, 12 to 7, at the end of the first half.

Gruenig Stars for Crane.

Bob Gruenig made his last appearance in a Crane uniform as the Techs defeated Harrison heavies, 27 to 19, on Crane's floor. Gruenig scored five baskets and one free throw to lead Crane to its third west section victory. Crane held a 19 to 4 advantage at half time.

St. Philip and Leo divided a pair of south division games last night at St. Philip's gymnasium. The section leading St. Philip heavies triumphed, 26 to 25, Foster making the winning basket in the final minute, and the Leo lights defeated St. Philip, 13 to 11.

SHAMROCKS FACE LEVINE, PLA-MOR MATES TONIGHT

Karakas Will Try to Match Porky's Skill in Nets.

The Kansas City Pla-Mors will make their last regular visit of the season at the Chicago Stadium tonight when they meet the Shamrocks. The Pla-Mors lead the American Hockey league in games won, and Porky Levine leads in goal tending. A victory tonight would enable the Shamrocks to pull up within one game of the top.

Goalie Levine is the star of the Kansas City team, but there are several other outstanding performers. Pete Mitchell holds the American league cup awarded the most valuable player, Johnny McKinnon is the highest scoring and one of the roughest defense men in the league, and Mike Goodman excels in speed and back checking.

Three Days' Work Ought to Help.

In a recent Kansas City-Tulsa game Levine was dispatched to the penalty box for maltreatment of a wing who loitered around the goal, and ended up in a small riot with Tulsa spectators.

Three days of strenuous practice this week have given the Shamrocks an opportunity to snap out of the doldrums and prepare a campaign against the mighty Pla-Mor defense.

The Shamrocks' own defense collapsed on the last Kansas City visit, and the Pla-Mors won their third victory out of five games, 5 to 2.

Last year's leading American league goalie, Paddy Byrne, will be on the bench while his rival, youthful Mike Karakas, tends the Shamrock goal.

Wasp Campbell Will Be There.

Art Smith is no longer a Shamrock, leaving Buswell, Headley, and Taylor to carry the burden of defense, with Bert Clayton in reserve. The Pla-Mor lineup is the same, and includes the team's leading scorer and one of the Shamrocks' most troublesome foes, Center Wasp Campbell. The lineup:

SHAMROCKS.		PLA-MORS.
Karakas	G.	Levine
Buswell	D.	McLeod
Headley	D.	McKinnon
Johnson	C.	Campbell
McFadyen	L. W.	Goodman
Brydson	R. W.	McCormick

2 K. OF C. TEAMS SEEK 10TH IN ROW AT WHITE CITY

Three games, involving leading teams of four divisions of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league, will be played tonight at White City. Lafayette, which has won nine straight in the central section, and Hildebrand, which has a similar record in the west division, are on the program. The schedule:

Perez, south division, vs. Lafayette, central.
Hildebrand, west division, vs. O'Connell, north.
Madonna, central division, vs. Loyola-Hyde Park, south.

All of the teams except Hildebrand were contenders last spring in the league's championship series. O'Connell finished second after eliminating Loyola-Hyde Park. Perez is leading the south division, Lafayette the central, and Hildebrand the west.

Hold Funeral Today for Gannon, K. C. Basket Star

Joseph A. Gannon, a star basketball player for several years with Dowling council of the Knights of Columbus league, will be buried this morning at Holy Sepulchre cemetery. Gannon, who was 25 years of age, and a graduate of De Paul university, died Tuesday at his residence, 6343 South Mozart street. Funeral services will be held at St. Rita church. He is is survived by his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. John Gannon, and four sisters, Mrs. Anna Enright, Mrs. Mary E. Vander Plow, Mrs. Kathleen Barry, and Dorothy E. Gannon.

CORD CORP. NET EQUALS 26C PER COMMON SHARE

Development Program Lowers Profit.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Cord corporation, the holding company organized in 1929 by E. L. Cord, president of Auburn Automobile company, last night issued its annual report, showing net profit of $582,788 for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30. The earnings are equivalent to 26 cents a share on 2,260,000 capital shares outstanding. The earnings show a considerable reduction from 1930, when the firm earned net profit of $1,477,477, or 65 cents a share on the same capitalization.

President Cord in his report attributes the decline in earnings to heavy expenditures made in the development of new products by the various subsidiaries. The firm holds a majority stock interest in Auburn Automobile, which recently reported record profits for 1931.

Showing in Balance Sheet.

The balance sheet of the company listed investments at $6,448,991. Stocks of affiliated companies are carried at $6,406,291. Investments include listed stocks of $5,418,111, which had a market value at the close of the fiscal year of $9,304,231, it was stated. The same stocks at the close of the market last Wednesday had a quoted value of $11,567,360. Unlisted shares carried in the investment account at $988,180 had a book value on Nov. 30 of $2,092,000, it was reported. Earned surplus at the end of the year showed an increase to $2,304,432, and total assets were carried at $16,060,394.

President Cord said that the L. G. S. corporation, a manufacturing division, has shown a considerable loss for the year, due to an intensive development program, but is now operating 24 hours a day and turning out 75,000 free wheeling units per month.

Cord corporation shares were quoted yesterday on the Chicago exchange around 7 on light trade. The market was generally listless, with stocks generally following the down trend of the New York market.

Shows $680,524 Profit.

The Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company issued its yearly statement yesterday. The company earned net profit of $680,524, equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.90 a share on 203,674 shares of common stock. This compares with earnings in the preceding year of $961,954, or $5.06 a share on the common stock.

Net sales were slightly in excess of 1930, totaling $5,441,073, against $5,272,068. Current assets were carried at $4,062,784 in the year-end balance sheet and current liabilities were shown at $250,061. Current assets included $1,688,937 in cash and marketable securities at the market.

$2,686,481 LOSS FOR '31 REPORTED BY BUTLER BROS.

Results of the 1931 operations of Butler Brothers, large Chicago wholesale merchandise house, were made public yesterday at the annual meeting of stockholders. The firm had a net loss in 1931 of $2,686,481, as compared with a net loss in the preceding year of $2,542,306.

Lester L. Falk, attorney, was elected to the board of directors to succeed Walter Scott who also retired as senior vice president. It is understood that Mr. Falk's election will be followed later by the election of another director as part of a program for bringing new blood into the firm's affairs. The other retiring directors were reëlected but the position left vacant by the death of Charles E. Butler was not filled. This position will be filled at a meeting in April, it was said.

Frank L. Cunningham, president of the company, told stockholders that the large loss sustained last year was attributable to the low ebb of public buying and the continuous decline in prices. "Demand concentrated on low priced close profit goods," he said. "Price declines continued from January to December. Expense has been cut to the bone. We have discontinued expansion in the retail field for the present."

Profit and loss surplus at the close of the year stood at $1,689,042, as compared with $4,390,446 at the close of 1930. Total assets shrank from $37,973,916 to $34,820,868.

Top yesterday, $6.60; average, $6.15.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,500; hogs, 30,000; sheep, 16,000.

The edge was off the cattle and hog markets yesterday. The latter slid slowly back to the previous low spot of the winter, with the day's general average price of hogs at $3.85 equaling the lowest in the last 32 years. The peak at $4.15 was only 5c above the low point.

Although the trade was rather lifeless throughout the session, some of the smaller houses were more willing buyers on the 5@10c lower basis following reports that a cold wave is due today. Late reports from the dressed meat trade were not discouraging, but the absence of eastern competition for hogs left prices open to a cut.

Consumptive demand at eastern points has been seriously impaired by continued warm weather and order buyers here are more indifferent than usual. Only 6,000 hogs sold to shippers yesterday, the smallest number for a Thursday since early last month.

Hog Futures Steady.

Contracts in the hog futures market attracted little interest yesterday, though some offers were lowered. Bids were also reduced mostly 25c. March light and mediums were bid $4.00@4.25 and offered at $5.00, while May light and mediums carried bids of $4.50.

Cattle prices have been on the upgrade most of the week and better grades are 50@75c above a week ago. However, packers report that wholesale prices fail to show a correlative gain and signs that the cattle market was slipping were obvious on yesterday's session. It was useless for sellers to attempt to move their holdings at the week's full advance and concessions were granted in medium grades toward the finish when it became apparent that a fair carry-over was probable.

Yesterday's top price, $9.50, was paid for three lots of cattle averaging 1,025 @1,084 lbs for eastern shipment, but the proportion selling at $8.00 and above was too small to cut much figure in the trade. The bulk of all steers changed hands at $5.25@7.50, with stock of low killing quality at $4.50 and below. Butcher stock sold slowly at weaker prices. Calves, however, jumped 25c in value in sympathy with the upturn in lambs.

Lambs Recover Loss.

All of what was lost in the lamb market during the last few days was recovered in yesterday's sweeping advance which carried the peak price to $6.60 at the close, within 15c of the highest spot in two weeks and within 30c of the highest since middle of last October. Reports of a cold wave on the way for today stimulated buying by smaller interests in anticipation of a better outlet for meat over the week-end.

Gains of 25c were general in virtually all classes and large local packers at the finish were aggressive at 25@35c upturn when there was some possibility of running short on numbers. Smaller receipts were reported at all leading markets. The total at the seven western market centers showed a decrease of 20 per cent compared with a week ago.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,500 cattle, 30,000 hogs and 16,000 sheep, against 1,072 cattle, 26,902 hogs and 9,135 sheep the previous Friday, and 1,700 cattle, 30,811 hogs and 15,203 sheep a year ago.

FRENCH BANKER CITES FAITH IN GOLD STANDARD

PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Complete confidence in the gold standard and a firm intention to maintain the franc on that basis was expressed by Gov. Clement Moret today at the annual stockholders meeting of the Bank of France.

He said the Bank of France had tried to sustain the value of foreign money, such as the pound sterling and the reichsmark, and indicated the bank's share in the $100,000,000 credit to Germany, due Feb. 4, would be renewed.

GETS REPRIEVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Germany got 30 days reprieve from bankruptcy this morning, and the politic and economic muddle of Europe got another knot for some one to unravel.

That is the meaning of the action of the board of regents of the Bank of France in voting to extend for 30 days their $25,000,000 share in the $100,000,000 credit advanced the Reichsbank last summer by the banks of France, England, the United States, and the World bank. This credit is due to be reimbursed next Thursday.

U. S. Gold About Stationary.

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Gold transactions today were confined to a decrease of $459,400 in the metal under earmark for foreign account, the New York Federal Reserve bank statement disclosed. There were no imports or exports.

ROCK ISLAND SHOWS $386,545 LOSS FOR 1931

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad suffered net loss of $386,545 in 1931, according to the preliminary statement published yesterday. This compares with net income of $7,700,229, equal to $5.56 a share on the common stock in 1930. The December net loss amounted to $1,340,465, compared with net income of $150,755 a year ago.

Gross operating revenues of $99,069,563 last year were the smallest in over a decade, falling $24,010,347 from 1930 and $40,202,461 from 1921. Operating expenses were reduced about $17,000,000 last year.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad reported gross revenues for December of $7,563,950, as compared with $8,146,075 in the preceding month and $10,879,800 in December, 1930. Net railway operating income for the month totaled $726,918, as against $1,309,309 in the preceding month and $1,459,521 a year previously. For the entire year gross revenues aggregated $111,218,959, as against $141,379,422, and net railway operating income $20,506,918, as against $27,956,064.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway reported gross revenues for the year totaled $15,135,961, as compared with $19,784,299 in 1930, while the net operating deficit amounted to $1,700,501, as against $5,505,969.

December net railway operating income of roads reporting yesterday included:

R. J. REYNOLDS 1931 EARNINGS SET NEW RECORD

The tobacco companies have made good headway throughout 1931. R. J. Reynolds Tobacco in 1931 earned record net income of $36,396,817, against $34,256,665 in 1930, equivalent on both classes of its common stock to $3.64 a share, against $3.43 the year before.

Liggett & Myers reported 1931 net income of $23,121,382, against $24,002,315 the year before, or equivalent to $6.87 a share on its outstanding common and class B stock, against $7.15 a share in 1930.

In the year ended Dec. 31, the General Cigar company had a net income of $2,720,667 after depreciation, amortization, interest, and federal taxes equal, after deduction of preferred dividends, to $5.01 a share on 472,982 shares of common stock. This compares with $3,201,521, or $6.03 a share, on the common in 1930. Current assets as of Dec. 31, 1931, were $27,104,605 and current liabilities were $1,360,659, against $27,030,564 and $1,681,513, respectively, at the end of 1930.

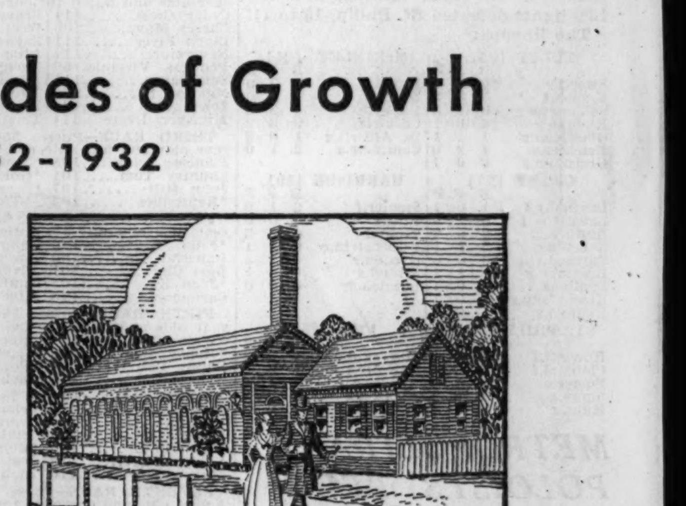
1852-1932

ASSOCIATED SERVICE has just completed 80 years of growth. This service is supplied by 120 companies, whose operations in 3,000 communities make the Associated System one of the eight largest utility groups in the United States.

Of the present companies, eight were operating in 1852, the year of organization of the Ithaca Gas Light Company, principal unit of the original Associated group. The cities these eight companies serve and the years the companies were founded are:



First Worcester Gas Light Company plant.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.	1848	LOCKPORT, N. Y.	1851
WORCESTER, MASS.	1849	ITHACA, N. Y.	1852
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.	1850	ELMIRA, N. Y.	1852
EASTON, PENNSYLVANIA	1850	CAMBRIDGE, MASS.	1852

The System's strong position at the beginning of 1932 is supported by the following factors:

OPERATING STRENGTH

1,443,706 Customers—A gain of 21,450 in the 12 months ended November 1931.

Gain in Domestic Service—An increase of 9% in average annual residential use of electricity, while gas was practically even, nearly offset industrial losses in this period.

This gain was accompanied by an average reduction in rates of one-half cent per unit (kw. hr.). The reduction resulted from the success of the System's inducement type of rate, which makes it possible for customers to use additional electricity and gas at a decreasing cost.

New Business — $5,807,577 of load-building gas and electric appliances were sold in the first 11 months of the year. In the past three years, 420 mills and factories moved to Associated territory; 550 already there expanded their operations requiring additional use of electricity and gas for power and heating purposes.

Operating Costs — Operating expenses were cut 2.9% in the 12 months ended November 1931. Several important operating properties were acquired by the Associated System in 1929, but there was not sufficient opportunity to consolidate them entirely in the System before business entered its present period of uncertainty.

FINANCIAL STRENGTH

Revenues Increase—During this period gross operating revenues were $105,582,794, a gain of about 1%; net earnings $43,553,880, a decrease of 7%. This decrease was largely accounted for by a 33% increase in provision for retirement of fixed capital.

231,055 Security Holders — Strength of the Associated System attracted 19,485 new investors during this period.

Eight decades of growth have rooted the properties of the Associated System deep in the life and business of America. These years included a dozen business depressions, yet each was followed by progress unmatched before. When the savings due to the operating economies effected and the earnings from the new business obtained are realized under more normal conditions, it is believed the results will be gratifying to customers, employees, and stockholders.

The character of Associated service, which is concentrated in the rich industrial areas of the East and the successful record of the operating properties, promise that the System will have a full share in the growth of the utility industry.

DU PONT AVOIDS SLUMP EFFECTS BY DIVERSIFYING

1931 Income Totals $21,109,352.

BY O. A. MATHER.

A striking example of how some American corporations have escaped the full effects of depression by diversifying their products and creating new ones is given in the annual report of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company, made public last night. While the company is one of the largest factors in the chemical industry, it also has large outside interests and investments, including a large holding in the General Motors corporation.

"Some of the departments and subsidiaries last year experienced further decline in volume, while others maintained or exceeded their volume of the previous year," President Lammot du Pont says. "It is general knowledge that such basic industries as coal and metal mining, steel and iron, petroleum, agriculture, automotive and construction, including maintenance, experienced a substantial further decline in volume.

"Normally, these industries consume, in one way or another, large quantities of the company's important products. Consequently both the dollar and tonnage volume in these products has declined. Business in such products represents about 60 per cent of the company's total dollar sales. On the other hand, the company's tonnage volume in dyestuffs, rayon and cellophane, increased substantially over the previous year.

Volume of Business.

"The great diversity of our products makes it impossible to state accurately the volume of the company's business as a whole on a tonnage basis. However, an approximation indicates that the volume of business on a tonnage basis was 4½ per cent less than for 1930 and that the average prices of our products as a whole declined 10 per cent. Notwithstanding a 14½ per cent decline in dollar sales, net income from operations was only 2.9 per cent less than the amount for the previous year."

The company's income from operations was $21,109,352 last year, compared with $21,745,508 in 1930. Income from investments was $34,377,602, against $36,653,511 in 1930, although this latter figure included an extra dividend of $2,923,600 received from General Motors. Net income for 1931, after all charges, was $53,190,060, equivalent, after dividends on the debenture stock, to $4.29 a share on 11,008,512 common shares. This compares with $55,962,009 in 1930, which was equivalent to $4.67 a share on 10,783,555 common shares.

Sees Decline Checked.

In commenting on general conditions at present, Mr. du Pont judges that business is further below normal than ever before, but that the recent rate of decline has been checked and there is increasing evidence of approaching stability.

"Although the going has been hard," he concludes, "more real advance has probably been made during the last two years of adversity than during the immediately preceding years of comparatively easy progress. We must all continue to be more industrious. Both public and private budgets must be balanced. As soon as confidence returns, and the time should not be far away, the wheels of industry and trade will begin to turn more rapidly and the stimulus of our wants, combined with the energy and capacity of the American people, will gradually bring back a sounder prosperity based on a recognition of real values and an abandonment of unsound speculative dreams."

NO SERIOUS INFLATION

The weekly financial statements issued last night by the federal reserve board again afford no basis for fears, both in this country and in Europe, that the United States is planning an era of serious inflation. Within the last week money in circulation has declined $24,000,000, including a recession of $14,844,000 in federal reserve currency. This fact is encouraging as denoting the slow return of money from hoarding, although the decline in money in circulation from the holiday peak has been considerably less than normal.

Our monetary gold stock has declined $24,000,000 in the last week, or exactly the same recession as in money in circulation. Our gold stock now stands at $4,426,000,000 and money in circulation is $5,589,000,000. The federal reserve banks hold $2,986,986,000 of our gold, which is $18,928,000 less than a week ago, and their notes in circulation total $2,627,296,000.

Contraction in Credit.

Moreover, there has been contraction in federal reserve credit, instead of expansion, in the last week. While the member banks increased their borrowings by $18,653,000, the reserve banks disposed of $25,780,000 of bankers' acceptances. The ratio of reserves to liabilities firmed to 67.4 per cent, compared with 67.3 per cent last week.

Brokers' loans declined again in the last week. The current total is $513,000,000, a decrease of $18,000,000 from last week and setting another new low record. Such loans a year ago totaled $1,734,000,000.

The New York federal reserve bank yesterday made no change in its 3½ per cent rediscount rate.

Sloan May Be Next Head of U. S. Steel

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 28.—Matthew S. Sloan resigned today as president of the New York Edison company and from all official positions and memberships of boards of trustees and directors of the Consolidated Gas company of New York and its subsidiaries.

MATTHEW S. SLOAN

His resignations were accepted at a meeting of Consolidated Gas trustees, and Frank W. Smith was elected president of the New York Edison company and of the United Electric Light and Power company, its subsidiary, to succeed him.

In announcing his resignation Mr. Sloan said: "I have business plans for the future which I am not at liberty to discuss now."

Various rumors were in circulation as to Mr. Sloan's plans. Chief interest centered in a report that he is slated to become president of the United States Steel corporation when James A. Farrell retires on April 1.

Cite His Aggressiveness.

Mr. Sloan has been noted in public utility circles for the aggressive and forceful manner in which he has at all times approached the problems of the companies under his management and of the industry generally. As head of the New York Edison and affiliated companies he was responsible for the institution of policies simplifying and unifying the operations of the several electric companies and other important developments in recent years.

As Brooklyn Edison head he increased the annual revenues from about $8,500,000 a year to about $48,000,000 at present, in spite of several rate reductions, and the 600,000 horsepower steam generating station at Hudson avenue, Brooklyn, was designed and erected under his leadership. It is one of the largest, newest, and most efficient plants in the world, and the leading electric station in the metropolitan area.

Mr. Sloan was born in Mobile, Ala., Sept. 5, 1881, and was graduated at 19 from the Alabama Polytechnic institute. His first job was with a public service plant in a small Alabama town.

Has Been Storm Center.

Mr. Sloan, a member of President Hoover's unemployment relief committee, recently has been the storm center of efforts to organize Brooklyn Edison company employés.

Besides opposing the union agents, Mr. Sloan locked horns with several clergymen who went to the help of employés and resigned from the Episcopal church of the Holy Trinity because of the union activities of a curate.

Youngstown Steel Ingot Output Expected to Gain

Steel ingot production in the Youngstown district yesterday was reported holding at 36 per cent of capacity, or in line with estimates at the start of the week. Indications promise a further slight advance in next week's operating schedules. Republic Steel corporation, with a reported ingot melting rate of 60 per cent of capacity in its Youngstown district plants, continues to show the greatest activity.

General Railway Signal.

Do you have any statistics on General Railway Signal company common stock? If so, I would appreciate some information on it.—C. C. C.

General Railway Signal company was incorporated 28 years ago. It produces about half the automatic safety devices for railroads manufactured in the United States. It has valuable patents. Earnings have held up relatively well. Operations have been favored by the attitude of the interstate commerce commission toward the adoption of safety devices by railroads and by new business from rapid transit lines and subways in New York.

Net income for the first half of 1931 was $752,000, or $2.11 per common share, against net of $1,170,000, or $3.04 per common share, on a larger capitalization for the corresponding 1930 period. Net income for 1930 was $2,432,000, or $7.07 per common share, against $3,118,000, or $8.25 per common share, for 1929. Net for 1928 was $2,048,000, and for 1927 $2,941,000.

In the eight years through 1930 about $7,100,000 profits were plowed back into the company's treasury. On June 30, 1931, current assets were $8,389,000, and current liabilities were curities, valued at market, were $2,547,000, and notes payable were $500,000. Working capital was $6,779,000, against $7,775,000 (including marketable securities at cost) at the close of 1930. There was no funded debt.

Capitalization consisted of 28,334 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred (par $100) and 324,100 no par common shares, excluding treasury stock. On Sept. 14, 1931, stockholders voted to retire 32,500 common shares of treasury stock which had been purchased in the open market.

On Nov. 24, 1931, a press dispatch quoted the management as stating that the volume of unfinished business on hand was greater than the volume a year before.

Dividends on the common stock have totaled $5 a year since 1926.

Toledo Edison.

Please give me information on Toledo Edison preferred.—C. L. H.

Substantially all the business of Toledo Edison company consists of supplying electricity to Toledo, O., and certain suburbs.

Per share earnings applicable to the preferred, all classes, were $25.58 in 1930, $33.68 in 1929, $27.40 in 1928, and $14.19 in 1927.

There were outstanding 141,416 preferred shares in 1930 and 102,261 in 1927.

HEAR INDUSTRIAL LEADERS PLAN TO BOLSTER PRICES

Five Billions Credit May Be Extended.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A group of prominent industrialists are considering a plan by which large corporations rich in cash may act to extend some $500,000,000 in commercial credit, which in turn may theoretically be used as a basis for some $5,000,000,000 in further credit, tending to swell bank deposits and bolster commodity prices.

This plan, the Associated Press learned today, envisages the payment for commodities purchased by the rich corporations by 60 or 90 day promissory notes, rather than cash. The corporations would leave their cash on deposit with their banks. The sellers who received the rich corporations' notes could discount them at their banks, and the banks could in turn rediscount them at the federal reserve.

Backing for Currency.

Such notes, it is asserted, would in turn be used as legal backing for currency, much of which now has virtually a full gold backing even though it is perfectly legal, under the federal reserve act, to use 60 per cent of commercial notes.

This gold is now partly sterile and some industrialists fear that the amount of eligible commercial notes will decline tending to absorb part of the balance of free gold which the federal reserve system now possesses, in excess of requirements.

In other words this free gold, amounting to about $500,000,000, together with $901,000,000 now being used for full gold backing, could be used more effectively if more commercial paper were made available. A federal reserve note requires only 40 per cent gold backing and 60 per cent commercial paper.

Many large corporations have huge cash reserves. General Motors had on Dec. 31, for instance, roughly $204,000,000 as compared with $179,000,000 a year previously.

No Knowledge of Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 28.—A plan for making use of commercial paper instead of checks in paying for purchases of supplies, as a means of increasing the volume of credit outstanding, arresting the deflation, and maintaining the United States on the gold standard, is under consideration by leading industrialists of the country, according to reports circulated here and in Washington today.

The plan, which was advanced, according to the reports, by interests representing 90 per cent of the purchasers of raw materials, was presented to government officials in Washington two weeks ago. Leading bankers and industrialists who would be in a position to know about the matter if as much as 90 per cent of the country's raw material purchasers were involved, said last night that they had no knowledge of the plan.

JAPANESE BONDS DROP AS TRADE INCREASES; U. S. ISSUES MOVE UP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 28.—Japanese bonds were under pressure on the stock exchange today, losses amounting to 1 to 5¾ points on trading that was somewhat heavier than it has been during the last few days. The bond market as a whole was lower with the notable exception of United States government bonds, which rose briskly 1-32d to 30-32ds point with the single exception of the Liberty 3½s, which held unchanged.

Japanese government 6½s lost 2⅝ points and the 5½s a point. The government guaranteed Oriental Development company 6s, due 1953, broke 5¾ points, the 5½s, due 1958, 3¼ points, and the Taiwan [Formosa] Electric Power 5½s, 3⅞ points. Great Consolidated Electric Power company of Japan 7s, due 1944, lost 2¾ points and the 6½s, due 1950, 1⅝ points. Tokio Electric Light 6s broke 5½ points and the City of Tokio 5½s were down 1¾ points. The Toho Electric Power issues displayed the best tone of the Japanese group, finishing unchanged to fractionally higher. City of Yokohama 6s fell 3⅝ points. Ujigawa Electric Power 7s were off 3¼.

Foreign bonds, as a group, were irregularly lower yesterday. Republic of Uruguay loans showed the best strength in the South American issues.

PELLEY URGES MOTOR TRUCK REGULATION

Intelligent regulation of motor truck transportation was urged by J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, in a talk yesterday to members of the American Fruit and Vegetable association at the Sherman hotel.

The motor truck, because of its many obvious advantages, is here to stay, Mr. Pelley said, and now the problem is to regulate it so that it will not be operated in inequitable competition with other forms of transportation. The problem could no doubt be solved by unrestricted competition with a survival of the fittest, but this would only result in tremendous losses which are unnecessary and which must be borne by the public, he explained.

Mr. Pelley pointed to the use made by his road of the motor truck, which permits the line to accept less than carload lots of freight for delivery the next day. Formerly delivery took from two to four days.

"We know from actual experience that there is urgent need for governmental regulation that will establish fair competition between the several transportation agencies, and that unless it is corrected unfair competition will eventually destroy the stability of transportation so essential if the industrial and commercial development of this country is to continue," Mr. Pelley said.

Japanese Yen Off Sharply in N. Y. Exchange Dealings

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A sharp drop in the yen, prompted by the turn of affairs at Shanghai, featured foreign exchange dealings today. Closing at 35.70 cents, the Japanese currency was down 62½ cents net. European rates were dull and somewhat mixed.

BETHLEHEM CO. DECIDES TO OMIT 50 CT. DIVIDEND

Steel Firm's Profit Only $115,745.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 28.—Directors of Bethlehem Steel corporation today omitted the dividend on the common stock. The stock had been on a $2 annual basis since July, 1931, with the payment of 50 cents a share in the two preceding quarters. The regular dividend of $1.75 a share was declared on the preferred stock.

A statement issued by the company said: "In view of present conditions it was decided not to declare any dividend on the common stock."

The company reported net profit for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, at $115,745 after taxes and charges. This was equal to 12 cents a share on the preferred stock, compared with net profit of $23,843,406 in 1930, equal to $5.26 a share on the common after preferred dividends.

Loss in December.

In the December quarter the company had a net loss of $1,776,938, compared with net loss of $1,502,002 in the preceding quarter, and net profit of $2,291,000, or 17 cents a share on the common after preferred dividends, in the final quarter of 1930.

Orders on hand on Dec. 31 were $41,514,877, compared with $48,262,342 on Sept. 30 and $68,426,595 on Dec. 31, 1930.

The total amount of new business booked in 1931 was $150,077,099, against $239,934,505 in the preceding year. Operations in the fourth quarter averaged 30 per cent, compared with 32 per cent in the third quarter and 38.6 for the entire year. In 1930 the operations were 61.7 per cent. Current operations are about 21 per cent.

Cash and liquid securities as of Dec. 31 amounted to $50,278,721, compared with $57,236,989 a year earlier. Expenditures of cash for additions and improvements in 1931 were $12,699,897. The estimated cost of completing construction authorized and in progress at the end of 1931 was $6,905,000.

Grace Cites Outlook.

January shipments will be a little lower than in December and there has been no improvement in business yet, according to Eugene G. Grace, president. Concerning prospective business Mr. Grace said there seemed to be a little better feeling. He anticipates only a little buying from the railroads and only for actual needs.

Mr. Grace said there had been little change in the steel price situation lately and prices are about the same as recently. He said that the company had been getting some business from automobile manufacturers right along, including Ford.

The Winsted Hosiery company declared four quarterly dividends of $2 each. This places the stock on an $8 annual basis, against $10 previously.

McKesson & Robbins Cuts Its Bonded Indebtedness

McKesson & Robbins, Inc., one of the country's largest drug manufacturing and distributing organizations, has reduced its original bonded indebtedness of $22,000,000 to $21,000,000 as a result of purchases made during 1931 and during the early part of the current year. As a result of purchases in the open market the corporation has virtually fulfilled all of its sinking fund requirements up to and including July 15, 1932.

N. Y. Exchange Expels Brodil, Crew Captain

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 28.—The New York Stock exchange today expelled Franklin V. Brodil, former Columbia university crew captain, who had been a specialist and trader on the exchange for nearly four years. Mr. Brodil was found guilty of inequitable principles of trade.

During his years at Columbia, from which he was graduated in June, 1923, Brodil was a star footall lineman, receiving all-American mention in 1922. He stroked the varsity crew for three years and was captain in 1923. In 1923 and 1924 he was an assistant football coach.

At his graduation he got the Rolker prize for the member of the graduating class estimated as most worthy of special distinction because of industry, scholarship or preëminence in extracurricular activities, and also the prize of the Alumni association for the most faithful and deserving member of the graduating class.

An Independent Trader.

Mr. Brodil joined the stock exchange on May 31, 1928. He was floor member of the firm of E. C. Rollins & Co., which was dissolved on Dec. 21 last year. Since then he has been an independent trader.

The substance of the charge and specification against Mr. Brodil was that he had been guilty of conduct of proceedings inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade in that on a number of instances during the latter part of 1931 while acting as a specialist he had purchased stock for his own account at the same price at which he had unexecuted orders on his books which had previously been intrusted to him for execution.

Was Stock Specialist.

He was formerly a specialist in Abitibi Power and Paper common and preferred, W. T. Grant, Ingersoll-Rand, Interborough Rapid Transit, Kreuger & Toll, Norwalk Tire, Royal Dutch, Reis, United States and Foreign Securities, Crucible Steel, and Yellow Truck.

The last disciplinary action by the exchange was the expulsion of four specialists and suspension of another in February, 1931, for supplying stock owned by them in executing orders intrusted to them without revealing the real ownership of the stock.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 28.—Share traders devoted themselves to their various worries again today. The new ructions on the Sino-Japanese war front, the ups and downs of the railway wage fuss, the poor earnings statements for the December quarter now bobbing up over the map, and alarmist talk regarding a number of important dividend meetings now pending were some of the items raised to be mulled over.

Stocks were generally on the drift. The list got away to a poor start and never seemed able to get a toehold. A rumor that the Chicago carrier conferees were on the verge of patching up their quarrel put a halt to the selling along toward the last, but final prices in most cases were not very far above their worst of the day. The losses footed up about 1 to 3 points.

Selling in All Sections.

Selling, while it went on monotonously in all departments, was never very agressive in any direction. There was some evidence of support for the leaders and none of them fared any worse than the average. The bears are evidently willing to let things rock until some of the potentialities of the situation—especially the wage parley—are out of the way.

Railroad shares kept the limelight. The poor earnings statements now coming out against them kept them from cashing in as they might otherwise have done on the late news from Chicago, indicating that a settlement of the all important question was near at hand. Between these contrary influences the price changes in most of them were kept within narrow bounds. Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, Union Pacific, New York Central and others prominent in the group developed weakness.

Oil Leader Drops.

One prominent issue to drop to new bear market low was Standard Oil of

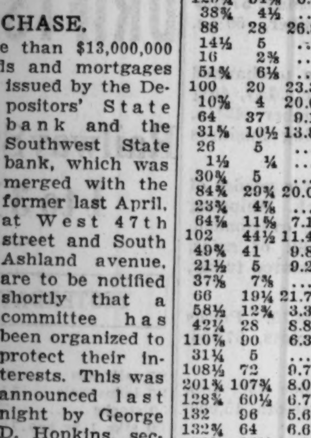
NAME COMMITTEE FOR $13,000,000 IN REALTY BONDS

George D. Hopkins Will Be Chairman.

BY AL CHASE.

Investors in more than $13,000,000 in real estate bonds and mortgages issued by the Depositors' State bank and the Southwest State bank, which was merged with the former last April, at West 47th street and South Ashland avenue, are to be notified shortly that a committee has been organized to protect their interests. This was announced last night by George D. Hopkins, secretary and assistant treasurer of Wilson & Co., packers, who will be chairman of the new committee.



GEORGE D. HOPKINS. [Root Photo.]

The other members of the committee who have been appointed include John S. Jurik, former vice chairman of the board of directors of the Depositors' State bank; James A. Calek, vice president of the same institution, and Percival G. Hart, realtor. The auditor of public accounts will be invited to name a fifth member.

"While the great majority of the bonds and mortgages issued by the two banks are in good standing," said Mr. Hopkins, "it's encouraging to have the work of reorganizing the defaulted bonds and mortgages so quickly under way.

Will Require Patience.

"The Depositors State bank closed in order to protect depositors' interests upon recommendation of the officers and directors of that institution. The mortgages and bonds sold by this bank constitute a large sum, and this committee, as soon as possible will advise the holders of such securities as to their status. The Southwest State bank was taken over by the Depositors' State bank last April.

"It'll require patience on the part of the bond and mortgage holders, as some time will be required for the committee to familiarize itself with the various issues and make its recommendations. The committee has been pledged the assistance of the stockholders and directors of the bank and will solicit the coöperation of the auditor of public accounts."

The office of the new protective committee has been established at 6015 South Ashland avenue. Mr. Jurik has been named secretary of the committee. The Stockyards Trust and Savings bank has been named depositary.

Tower Castles Issue.

Walter C. Palmer, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee handling the Lackner, Butz & Co. $325,000 first mortgage bond issue on the Tower Castles at the southwest corner of Sherman avenue and Noyes street, Evanston, last night made public further information on that project. He stated that the gross income from date of receiver's appointment on Feb. 26, 1930, to Dec. 31, 1931, was $85,485.

The total disbursements were $83,869. These included $19,206 operating expenses, $4,000 fees for receiver, $3,700 for fees of solicitors for receiver, $14,410 payment for mechanics' liens, $36,550 payment to trustee, to be applied on indebtedness as fixed by decree of foreclosure, and $5,497 general taxes for 1929. The cash balance on hand on Dec. 31, 1931, was $1,615.

The building's occupancy on Dec. 30, 1931, was 90 per cent, Mr. Palmer states. The original issue has not been reduced. The North Town State bank was receiver from Feb. 26, 1930, to April 13, 1931, and subsequently the Chicago Title and Trust company acted in that capacity.

Not on the Committee.

In reporting the meeting of the bondholders of the Monroe and Wells building in yesterday's TRIBUNE it was stated that one of the eight appointed on a protective committee was a representative of the Greenebaum interests. Edgar N. Greenebaum states that this is not correct.

"This meeting was called by the owners of the property," he said. "The committee appointed is sponsored by them and we desire no representation on it, as we feel the interests of the bondholders will be best looked after by our regular committee."

SHARE MARKET IN WALL STREET DRIFTS LOWER

New Jersey. Belief that the $1 extra dividend would not be declared was responsible for the pessimism regarding its erstwhile trading favorite. The new low was 25⅝, a drop of ¼ from the previous minimum. Another notable to bump a new bottom was Bethlehem Steel. Its weakness was due, of course, to fears that the common dividend would be omitted at this afternoon's meeting of the board.

The bears got after General Electric again and it also gave way to a new low for the major decline. Much of the current selling in this issue is said to be coming from New England sources acting as trustees for several large accounts.

Selling in Coca-Cola.

Reports that Coca-Cola is to be placed on an $8 dividend basis shortly brought fresh selling into that issue, depressing the price more than a point. Westinghouse suffered from reports that its orders had fallen off sharply of late—as much as a third some versions had it. Some of the selling in this stock was said to be for foreign account.

Another bit of street gossip to figure in the day's declines had it that Kreuger & Toll is planning new financing. The loss here was only fractional.

Public utilities were again on the run, with American Telephone taking a fresh loss of about 2 points.

Among the special movements were a drop of nearly 8 points in American Power preferred A shares, a 5 point flop in Bethlehem Steel preferred, and one of 9½ in Standard Gas and Electric preferred.

Turnover was around 1,100,000 shares.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat traders who give special attention to the farm board situation are mixed in their ideas. The popular belief of the trade is that the farm board has over 25,000,000 bu of May wheat which is construed by some operators as indicating that shorts are in a bad position and will have to buy in their contracts, and that the farm board will eventually take delivery of the cash wheat. Others say that should the farm board try to sell out, there would be a sharp break in prices, and with the growing sentiment against government being in business they say there is no good reason why wheat should sell materially lower.

Corn traders stick to the recent expressed opinion that May corn around 41@42c is a sale and that under 40c it is fairly safe to buy, although they do not look for more than a moderate upturn. Country roads are bad but should the weather turn cold and roads become hard enough to travel, an increase in country offerings would result.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was dull today only one contract or 150 barrels being done. This was in July with that month closing 4 points higher and others from 3 to 4 higher. Easiness of lard and a featureless cotton market were offset by steadiness of grains. Crude oil held rather firm being quoted at 3¼@3⅜c in the southeast and the valley and 3⅛c in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 4.30c; March, 4.42c; May, 4.55c; July, 4.69c; September, 4.77c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract with closing prices as follows: March, 4.42c; May, 4.55c; July, 4.55c; September, 4.60c.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Cotton goods were quieter today with prices steady. French rayon crêpes sold more freely. Burlaps declined a little and reached a new low since 1921. Moderate sales of wool goods are continuing. Rough weaves in silks are selling better.

ORIENT BUYS COTTON

Cotton interests heard that the orient was a good buyer of cotton contracts yesterday and has been for some time past. Reports from the dry goods trade indicate a more friendly feeling to cotton and consumption is expected to be increased as cotton is going more and more into women's dresses. New Orleans was a fair seller and commission houses in general sold. Trade buying helped to absorb the offerings. In the face of all these conditions, price fluctuations were within a 10 point range, and the close on futures in Chicago was 1 point net higher to 1 point lower, with other markets 2 points higher to 1 point lower. Spots were unchanged, New York being 6.70c; New Orleans, 6.60c; Galveston, 6.55c, and Houston, 6.50c. Liverpool closed 2@5 points lower. A London cable indicated possibility of a strike of the Burnley cotton workers, who balloted in favor of such a move. The New York cotton exchange service says the world's consumption of American cotton in December was 1,007,000 bales, compared with 890,000 bales in 1930. For the five months ended Dec. 31 consumption was 4,934,000 bales, or 489,000 bales in excess of previous season. Prices follow:

HIDE FUTURES

Speculative interest in futures on the New York Hide exchange was limited and sales of only 80,000 lbs were reported. The continued deadlock between packers and tanners and uncertainty as to the future combined to restrict trading. Prices were 5@15 points lower. March was quoted at 6.60@6.65c; June, 7.20@7.25c; September, 7.80@7.85c, and December at 8.35@8.45c at the close.

COLDER WEATHER SEEN ADVANCING ON WHEAT BELT

Fear of Damage Helps Maintain Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Conflicting influences resulted in erratic fluctuations in the wheat market yesterday, the weakness in stocks leading to selling at times, while the prospect that the lowest temperatures of the season so far would enter the winter wheat belt within the next 24 hours led to buying of the deferred deliveries due to apprehension of damage to the new crop. Prices, however, held within a range of ¾@⅞c for the day with the close ⅛c lower to ½c higher, the latter on September.

July wheat, while sold freely at times by houses with eastern connections, went to a premium over the May for the first time this season and finished at 58¼c, while May was 58c, and September, 59⅞c. March closed at 55⅝@55½c.

In addition to the fears of damage to the new winter wheat crop there was a great deal of attention paid to the reports regarding developments in the far east and the chances of the United States becoming embroiled in the difficulties between Japan and China. Considerable apprehension was noticeable in some quarters during the day.

Wheat Crop May Suffer.

Owing to the unusually mild winter the wheat crop is officially reported as being in an abnormally advanced condition for this season of the year. This especially applies to the central valleys where the plant remains green, and the government weekly weather crop report issued at Washington on Wednesday pointed out, "in danger of injury from possible severe freeze."

Private reports covering a large part of Kansas received by the Uhlmann Grain company showed that as a rule the wheat crop was protected by snow against any severe drop in temperatures, but there were also numerous points where no snow was on the ground and the plant in a condition where there might be damage. In Nebraska the greater part of the state is covered with snow. Practically no protection, however, was shown in other reports from the states east of the Mississippi river, and also from Missouri.

Trading in wheat futures in the Buenos Aires, the Argentine market, without interruption and no difficulty is expected despite the recent government decree placing it under federal control. The close there was ⅝@¾c lower with March closing at 40⅜c, or within ½c of the lowest figure of the season. Exports from Argentina for the week were smaller than expected, although estimated at 4,042,000 bu against 3,851,000 bu the previous week, and 3,510,000 bu last year.

Liverpool Wheat Lower.

Lack of demand for cash grain and increased pressure to sell Russian wheat and rye resulted in a decline of ⅝c in the former grain in Liverpool with the May closing at 53⅝c, or 4½c under Chicago at the time. Winnipeg closed unchanged to ⅛c lower with May at 61⅝c in Canadian currency which was quoted at 13 per cent discount. Black sea exports for the week aggregated 832,000 bu compared with 1,576,000 bu the previous week and 256,000 bu last year.

Corn was dull with prices holding within a range of ½@⅝c, and in the main the market reflected the action of wheat, closing unchanged to ¼c lower with March at 37⅞c; May, 40¼c, and July, 42c. There was the same character of buying around 40c for the May which has been noticeable on all the breaks of late, but there was not sufficient outside interest to bring about any advance of consequence. For the third day this month local handlers failed to report any grain sold for shipment while purchases to arrive were estimated at 32,000 bu.

Prospects of a cold wave entering the southwest and which might spread into the south failed to cause any buying of oats of consequence although recent reports have suggested a material enlargement in the acreage seeded to winter oats, partly a reflection of the curtailment in cotton. Futures closed unchanged to ⅛c lower with May at 25⅝c and July at 25c.

Expect Demand for Rye.

With the world's rye crop estimated at less than theoretical requirements the trade has been anticipating a liberal foreign demand for this grain but so far it has failed to materialize. However, reports from abroad that the German government was being forced to sell part of its holdings to prevent an advance in the price in that country led some observers to believe that there would be a revision in German import regulations in the immediate future. So far this season Russia has cleared 18,926,000 bu against 9,490,000 bu last year. Futures were dull and finished ⅛@¼c lower with May closing at 45⅝c, and July, 46½c.

BUTTER FUTURES WEAKEN

Butter futures failed to hold an opening gain on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, distant deliveries closing with fractional losses. Eggs were unsettled, refrigerators up ⅛c, and fresh ⅛c lower to ⅝c higher. Potato futures were unchanged. The storage and production reports in butter continued bearish, production news showing another increase over last year, although a decline from the previous week was recorded. Another heavy inward movement was recorded in the storage report. Covering was heavy at the start and prices move forward actively but selling gained the edge later and decline of ⅛@¼c was recorded at the close. Egg news was bearish in general but failed to have any influence. A deadlock exists in the January refrigerator eggs, trading in which delivery ends today. Sales: butter, 80 cars; eggs, 11 cars; potatoes, 104 cars. Deliveries: butter 1 car; eggs, 6 cars; potatoes, 3 cars Idaho russets. Prices follow:

COCOA STOCKS DROP.

Statistical reports to the New York Cocoa exchange indicate a further decrease in stocks in New York, London, Liverpool, Havre, and Hamburg. Reports of automatic curtailment of production in many tropical areas because of low prices have improved the trade outlook somewhat, according to cocoa interests.

HEDGE SALES OF LARD

A higher opening in lard yesterday was met by hedge selling by local warehousemen and western packers and prices declined and closed with net losses of 2½@7½c, January being the strongest. Buying was scattered. Hogs were steady with arrivals at western points larger than a week and a year ago. The government report on hogs on farms Jan. 1 in eleven states aggregated 43,009,000 against 39,528,000 last year and 39,936,000 two years ago. Trade in bellies was light and prices unchanged. It is said that packers have absorbed all the surplus offerings. Cash trade was slow but light pork loins were firmer at 7½@8½c. Exports of lard were 1,461,000 lbs. Prices follow:

LEGAL NOTICES.

NOTICE

To the Holders of Seven Per Cent Trust Indenture Bonds under Trust Indenture dated as of Sept. 1, 1923, of Williams Sealing Corporation.

TAKE NOTICE:

That in accordance with the provisions of Article Three of the Trust Indenture executed September 28, 1923, as of Sept. 1, 1923, from Williams Sealing Corporation, a corporation, with its principal office at Decatur, Illinois, to Millikin Trust Company, a corporation, with its principal office at Decatur, Illinois, as trustee and a resolution of the Board of Directors of said Williams Sealing Corporation adopted at a meeting held December 16, 1931, all of the Bonds issued under said Trust Indenture and now outstanding will be redeemed and paid at the offices of said Millikin Trust Company, at Decatur, Illinois, on March 1, 1932, the holders of each bond then to be paid as follows: As to all bonds except the series which became due on September 1, 1931, the principal sum thereof and the interest coupon due on March 1, 1932, and a premium to the amount of 5% of the principal sum of the bond. As to the bonds of the series which became due September 1, 1931, the principal sum thereof and any unpaid interest thereon at the rate of 7% per annum to March 1, 1932, but without premium.

Holders of all said bonds are hereby notified to present said bonds at the time and place mentioned for payment in accordance herewith.

Notice is also given that pursuant to said resolution said bonds will be redeemed prior to said date, at the option of the holder, for the principal sum of each bond and interest thereon at the rate of 7% per annum from September 1, 1931, to date of presentment [but not later than March 1, 1932] and 5% of the principal sum as to all bonds except the series which matured September 1, 1931, and as to those bonds no premium is due.

MILLIKIN TRUST COMPANY, Trustee.
By J. P. Gorin, Vice President.
W. A. Hammer, Secretary.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928 and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

FOR EXAMPLE: The average monthly cost of a $200 loan repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.

Get the Cost in DOLLARS Before You Borrow.

U. S. Destroyers Ordered to Shanghai as Fire Rages in City After Attack by Japanese Marines

JAPANESE WARSHIPS AND MARINES SHELL SHANGHAI AND ATTACK CHINESE NATIVE CITY. General view of the buildings in the international settlement along the Whangpoo river. As far as is known no fighting has occurred here, American, British, and French troops and marines being in readiness to protect the interests of citizens of their countries. (Story on page 1.)

[Acme Photo.]

WHERE AMERICAN MARINES ARE HOLDING THEIR LINE IN THE INTERNATIONAL SETTLEMENT. Soochow creek, along which the men under the command of Col. Richard S. Hooker have established posts. Markham road bridge, which is shown in the background, is being used as the American base of operations. Five years ago the Americans and the British held this bridge together. (Story on page 1.)

MORE U. S. DESTROYERS SENT TO SHANGHAI. The John D. Ford, one of destroyers already in Chinese waters. Four destroyers at Manila have been ordered to join the Yangtze river patrol fleet at Shanghai.

[Acme Photo.]

SOME OF THE WARSHIPS WHICH ARE ANCHORED IN THE WHANGPOO RIVER OFF SHANGHAI. Fighting craft of Japan, Great Britain, France, and the United States ready for trouble. With them are commercial vessels. The Chinese authorities have complained that the warships take up so much space that commerce is interfered with by them. (Story on page 1.)

[Acme Photo.]

FLAGSHIP OF AMERICAN ASIATIC FLEET IN CHINESE ZONE. The U. S. S. Houston, one of the nation's most modern cruisers, from which Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor issued orders sending destroyers to Shanghai. It is believed to be at Manila. (Story on page 1.)

RAILWAY STATION AROUND WHICH DESPERATE BATTLE IS BEING FOUGHT. The north station of Shanghai-Nanking railway, in which $20,000,000 of British money is invested. It is reported on fire after being captured by Japanese and then recaptured by Chinese. (Story on page 1.)

[Acme Photo.]

BARBED WIRE BARRIER BETWEEN NATIVE AND INTERNATIONAL TOWNS. American, British, and French troops were on guard at this and similar barriers. Japanese strategy during the attack was to corner Chinese between their firing line and barbed wire. At one point Chinese troops broke through but were repulsed by British. (Story on page 1.)
